QUEENS GRAFT BEFORE HUGHES

Builders' Committee Asks the Governor to Investigate Gresser's Administration.

SEWER FEES GONE ASTRAY

And Money Paid to Borough Officials Who Held Up Private Work.

NELSON READY TO TELL ALL

Sewer Department Chief Who Quit Under Fire Deserted by His Old Friends—Boss Harvey Blamed.

For the purpose of laying before Gov. Hughes a bill of particulars of alleged graft in Queens County and a full statement of reasons why they believe Borough President Gresser should be specially investigated twelve citizens of Queens will leave for Albany on the 8 o'clock train this morning.

They are a committee representing the fifty Queens County residents who stormed the Borough President's office last Wednesday and had to be dispersed by police reserves. Most of the twelve are builders who wish to tell Gov. Hughes of the Queens County "contractors' gang," its ex-Sheriff political boss, its Department of Sewers as operated by Joseph Nelson, and of its District Attorney, who, they assert, has made it impossible for them to reach the Grand Jury with their case through the ordinary channels.

The committee proposes to ask Gov. Hughes for an overhauling of Queens County affairs by a Special Deputy Attorney General, and in giving a reason for this its members specify against President Gresser that he is Tammany leader of the Third Assembly District, and consequently in a position to control the regular investigating machinery of the borough. They assert that Frederick G. De Witt, the present District Attorney, obtained his nomination through Herbert S. Harvey, the ex-Sheriff, and that Harvey is especially aggressive in preventing the graft charges recently made from being formally looked into.

The committee is headed by Dr. William Matthews of Elmhurst, and among its members are Lucian Knapp, A. E. Keating, E. Platt Stratton, and Charles P. Caldwell, an attorney of 42 Broadway. Mr. Caldwell made arrangements yesterday for an audience with Gov. Hughes immediately upon the arrival of the committee this morning, and he will leave for the Governor's consideration thirty pages of charges and incidents of alleged graft on which they are based, together with many sworn affidavits attached as exhibits.

Compared to the Tweed Gang.

"The conditions in Queens County are especially aggravated by the fact that the county is building up rapidly, and the old system of graft—intrenched through years of growth—is no longer tolerable under the new conditions," said Dr. Matthews in discussing the committee's plans last night. "If this investigation is ordered by the Governor," he added, "it will reveal a situation which will make the raids on the public funds by the old Tweed gang seem inconsequential in comparison.

"I hardly know what department of the borough is worst. There is a man 'higher up' behind them all, and it has been merely a question of making each department produce its proper proportion of boodle on the old familiar Tammany lines. Graft in contracts for all departments furnishes the principal source of trouble, and it dates back well beyond the present régime. The former Borough President was ousted from office, in fact, for just such boodling as forms the basis of our present complaint."

In their document of specific charges the Albany committee reviews Queens County history and politics for the last half dozen years and bring in many names of those who have been prominent as leaders.

The case against Joseph Nelson, the Sewer Department chief, who has just resigned and whose books are under investigation by the Commissioners of Accounts, is considered at length. It is set forth that he was once before suspended, and was reinstated without trial "after he had threatened to expose the conditions in his department if he was not at once returned to active duty."

"Cornelius Burke was Superintendent of the Sewer Department," the document recites, "and resigned because he insisted upon locking up at night the permit books and found that he could not enforce his orders because of directions given by his superiors."

The "permit books" figure with special prominence in the graft charges, as it is alleged that receipts for cash payments of $10 each for sewer connections for new buildings were actually given on blanks taken from the "repairs" receipt book, on which no fee is due.

Wrong Receipts Used.

Several samples of receipts for cash paid by builders of new buildings on "repairs" receipt forms are included as exhibits for the Governor. It is said that in this way alone during the recent boom in building activity many thousands of dollars in fees have found their way into the hands of politicians instead of going into the borough funds.

The stubs of the "repairs" receipt book, through which the work of the crooked inspectors might be traced, are said to have been "lost," and the method of their disappearance is one of the things the committee desires to have investigated.

A list of carts and horses carried on the payroll as working on the streets is inclosed as an exhibit with this comment: "It will be noticed that just before election time the number of carts and teams is greatly in excess of those ordinarily required. Those familiar with the workings of the department are ready to testify that most of the excesses here shown represent padded payrolls. In this connection it must be borne in mind that Joseph Burns, now employed in the Highway Department, was suspended under charges and reinstated without a trial after he had publicly boasted that the public officers of the borough did not dare to press the case against him."

Just how the money paid by builders ostensibly for proper fees leaked into other channels is narrated in a sworn affidavit made by Dr. Matthews. It recites that he paid a check for $250 to Matthew Goldner, a Sewer Department official, for the privilege of connecting twenty-five houses with the sewer, these houses being newly completed on Linden Street, Ridgewood. The check came back finally from the Corn Exchange Bank with no indorsement upon it to indicate that it had become part of the public funds. Instead there were the initials "M. H. G." in lead pencil on the back, and on inquiring at the bank Dr. Matthews found out, as he says, that the

HELD UP IN FIFTH AVENUE.

Cashier MacDonald of the St. Regis Routs a Highwayman.

The particulars concerning a daring holdup on Fifth Avenue, near Fifty-seventh Street, which was made between 12 and 1 o'clock last Sunday morning, became known yesterday. The victim was James S. MacDonald, cashier at the Hotel St. Regis.

About 12:15 Mr. MacDonald turned into Fifth Avenue from Fifty-fifth Street, where the hotel is located, and walked up Fifth Avenue toward Fifty-ninth Street to take a crosstown car for his home. The avenue was practically deserted.

While he was passing the house of Marcus Daly, at 725 Fifth Avenue, which is on the east side of the avenue, a man sprang out from the areaway which extends between the Daly house and the stone wall surrounding the Collis P. Huntington mansion, and struck at him.

The man wore brass knuckles, and his first blow knocked out one of MacDonald's front teeth. The cashier was carrying a heavy walking stick, and when he recovered from the first blow, he managed to bring the cane down heavily upon his assailant's head.

At the same moment the headlight of an oncoming automobile was seen, and without further parleying the highwayman took to his heels up the avenue, turning down East Fifty-seventh Street. Mr. MacDonald followed him for half a block, and then hurried back to the avenue to stop the automobile, but it sped by without heeding his signal.

For the next fifteen minutes Mr. MacDonald tried to find a policeman, but did not succeed. He then hurried home to have his injuries looked after, and decided then that he would not report the matter to the police on account of the publicity which might ensue. He told some friends about it, however, and thus the facts became known.

CLERK LEFT $2,300,000.

Hoffman's Wealth Unknown Till He Died—Had Invested in Wall Street.

By a decision of Surrogate Ketcham of Brooklyn yesterday the residuary estate of Charles Ferdinand Hoffman, who died at his home, 134 State Street, that borough, on April 9, was divided among two nieces and an aunt, the surviving legatees, who will receive a share in $2,000,000 worth of securities and property.

It was not until after Hoffman's death and his will was offered for probate that he was known to be wealthy. He was a clerk in Wall Street, employed as a confidential man by the brokerage house of Brown Brothers. Through his own ingenuity he invested wisely and kept his own counsel. His will showed that he had amassed a fortune of at least $2,300,000.

By the terms of that document, his mother, Mrs. Caroline Hoffman, was to receive the residue of the estate, amounting to $2,000,000. Mrs. Wilhelmina Burdett, the testator's sister, and John F. Hoffman, a brother, were to have respectively $35,000 and $10,000. All three died before the testator.

Surrogate Ketcham decided that instead of their shares going to the next of kin, as questions were raised to that effect, the surviving legatees should receive this property, as he believed that was the intention of the testator. The legatees benefiting by this decision are the Misses Margaret and Carolyn Hoffman and Mrs. Spagnola.

RICH MAN UNDESIRABLE ALIEN

Son of Prof. Romanes, Wife, Children, and Nurses Sent to Ellis Island.

The feature of the United States Immigration law which refuses an alien the benefit of either the skill of our physicians or the advantages of our climate was illustrated in the case of George E. Romanes, who with his wife and two children and their two nurses was taken to Ellis Island yesterday from the Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska. The man was held because of ill-health and the others accompanied him to the island.

Romanes, who is a man of means, was held on a certificate of a surgeon of the Marine Hospital Service that he is suffering from tuberculosis. He is a son of the late Prof. George John Romanes, the great English biologist and scientist and a member of one of the oldest families in Scotland.

Prof. Romanes in 1891 founded in Oxford University the lectureship which bears his name. Under the terms of the foundation some man of eminence is elected each year to deliver the lecture, and this year Col. Roosevelt has been chosen.

Prof. Romanes was the author of many scientific works, including "Darwin and After Darwin," "Jelly Fish-star Fish and Sea Urchins," and "Mental Evolution in Animals." He died at Oxford on May 23, 1894, leaving five sons and a daughter.

Romanes, his wife, and their two children, Christopher, 3 years old, and John, 3 months, and the children's nurses, occupied one of the best suites on the Minnewaska. When the vessel reached Quarantine, Immigration Inspector Sclaar and a physician of the Marine Hospital Service boarded her. Had Romanes crossed the ocean on a vessel carrying steerage and second-cabin passengers he probably would have been allowed to land, for the examination of first-cabin passengers is perfunctory. The Minnewaska, however, carries only first-class passengers, and so he fell under the scrutiny of the doctor, who ordered him to Ellis Island. His wife and the children and the maids accompanied him.

GRADY IN A HOSPITAL.

Senator Is in Bad Shape, but Not Critically Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Senator Thomas F. Grady, who has been absent from his seat in the Senate for nearly two weeks, and for some days has been confined to his house by illness, was taken this afternoon to the Albany Hospital, where he remains under the care of Dr. Samuel B. Ward. Dr. Ward said to-night that the Senator was resting comfortably. Some of the Senator's friends declared that he was in "pretty bad shape, but not critically ill."

Dr. Ward is a nerve specialist, and it was intimated to-night that the strain had been too much for the Senator of late. Another friend declared that he had suffered from a hemorrhage. The Senator was regarded as being on his way to recovery after his late indisposition when he was removed to the hospital this afternoon.

Senator Grady has just announced that he will retire from public life at the close of his present term.

ORDER REHEARINGS ON OIL AND TOBACCO

Supreme Court Action Puts Off Decision on Big Trust Cases for a Year Perhaps.

NO EXPLANATION OFFERED

Generally Assumed It Is in Order to Have Full Bench Pass on Them—Taft Not Hurrying Appointment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Supreme Court to-day ordered a rehearing of the cases against the Standard Oil and American Tobacco Companies. Late this afternoon President Taft let it be known that this action of the court had not in any way altered his intentions with regard to the filling of the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Brewer two weeks ago. No date was set for the rehearing, but in the natural course of events it can hardly come much, if any, before the Christmas recess. The greater probability is that it will not come until next year, and that the decision will be delayed for at least a year from the present.

Nothing was said by the court about the corporation tax cases, from which fact two inferences are made. The first is that the bench as at present composed, with seven Justices, able to do duty, has reached a decision by such a vote as will justify it in handing down its verdict. The other, which is much less likely, is that the court has not yet got to the voting point in its consultation over these cases. If the first inference is correct, the decision may be expected before very long. If the second is correct, there may yet be an order for a rehearing in these cases also.

The order in the two great trust cases completely surprised all in the courtroom. It is another evidence of the absolute secrecy which surrounds the doings of the Supreme Court, that not an inkling of what was to come had reached even the closest of the court attachés. Attorney General Wickersham and Solicitor General Bowers were both in court, on the possibility that a decision in one or both cases might be handed down. The Attorney General had hurried from Chicago, where he spoke on Saturday night, by fast train in order to be here in time. Both he and Mr. Bowers were completely surprised by the court's action.

Mere Item in Long List.

It was toward the close of a long list of orders that Chief Justice Fuller made the announcement. It is probable that not a dozen persons in the courtroom heard what he said. For several weeks the courtroom has been crowded on Mondays in the expectation that a decision in one of the great trust cases might come down. To-day also there was the usual crowd. Associate Justice Day delivered an opinion in one case, and Justice White one in another. Then the Chief Justice began to read, and as it was seen that he was simply delivering the usual list of orders in cases where no opinions are rendered, or where only motions are disposed of, the interest flagged.

The Chief Justice reads in a voice so low and soft that it hardly carries beyond the rail in front of him, and persons sitting on the benches in the rear of the little room have the greatest difficulty in catching enough words to give any idea of what he is saying.

Since no opinion in a trust case seemed to be coming to-day, the crowd in the room began to thin out. Presently hardly half the space was occupied. The Chief Justice continued to read in his quiet voice, and no one was the wiser about what was going on until suddenly a man on the second row of benches, with his hands cupped about his ears, caught the number 316.

"Tobacco case," he whispered to his neighbors, and instantly all on that bench were straining their ears to hear. They caught the number 317, the other tobacco case, and then 725, that of the Standard Oil case. But that was all. What the order was no one heard. But one of the clerks of the court had been standing close behind the Chief Justice, and he understood what was said. Immediately he stepped down to the bench where the puzzled newspaper men sat and whispered: "Rehearing in the trust cases."

Instantly there was a rush for telephone and telegraph wires by the newspaper men, while the others in the courtroom sat wondering what had happened. It was several minutes before the news had traveled around the room, and still the Chief Justice was calmly reading, finishing the list of orders for the day. Just to show how little ceremony there was in this important action on such important cases, here is every word that Chief Justice Fuller uttered in delivering the order:

The Text of the Order.

"Number 316, the United States, appellant, vs. the American Tobacco Company et al., and number 317, the American Tobacco Company et al., appellants, vs. the United States, and number 725, Standard Oil Company et al., appellants, vs. the United States. These cases are restored to the docket for rehearing."

That was all.

At once, of course, speculation began as to why the court had made the order. From the fact that no date was set for the rehearing it was assumed that it was determined upon because the court found itself so divided that it hesitated to render a decision and desired to have the President fill the bench before settling the cases. This would give the new Justice an opportunity to participate in the decisions. This opinion still holds, although later consideration recalled the fact that in any case when ordering a rehearing the court would not set the date until opportunity had been given for counsel on both sides to consult and see what they desired to do about it.

It was recalled immediately that the day after the death of Justice Brewer, Attorney General Wickersham gave an interview in which he said that, in his opinion, the only possible contingency in which a rehearing would be ordered was that in which the court should find itself divided 4 to 3 on one or both of the trust cases. The report was at once spread to-day that the court had, in fact, found itself so divided, but there is absolutely no authority for such a statement. Nothing has come from the court itself, and the secrecy surrounding the making of the orders shows that the court is not taking anybody into its confidence in regard to these cases.

It was also reported at the Senate that the court stood 3 to 3, with one Justice still undecided. This, too, is pure surmise.

Speculation on the Vote.

The natural inference is that the vote is 4 to 3 merely because it could not be anything else with seven Justices voting without putting at least five on one side.

MEN VOTE FOR STRIKE ON NEW YORK CENTRAL

Trainmen and Conductors Refuse the Last Offer of the Railroad Officials.

FINAL CONFERENCE TO-DAY

Men Vote to Go Out Unless They Get Increases Ranging from 8 to 64 Per Cent.

Whether the 5,500 trainmen and conductors on the New York Central go on strike will depend on a conference to-day between representatives of the trainmen and of the railroad.

Ninety-seven per cent. of the men have voted to strike, demanding the same wages which have been granted by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. If the company does not agree to these to-day, it was said last evening that the word to strike will be sent out.

At the conference yesterday was Grand Master W. G. Lee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Grand Master A. B. Garretson of the Order of Railroad Conductors, grievance committees of the trainmen and conductors of the New York Central, and the officials of the road. For the first time in the negotiations President W. C. Brown of the New York Central attended the conference. The representatives of the road were General Manager A. H. Smith and Assistant General Manager P. E. Crowley.

The officials of the road were willing to grant advances ranging from 8 to 25 per cent., but the Baltimore & Ohio schedules would mean an advance of from 8 to 64 per cent., which they said would be impracticable. The trainmen and conductors have voted to accept nothing less than the Baltimore & Ohio rates.

When the conference broke up the officials held a meeting and later sent an alternative proposition to Grand Masters Lee and Garretson, at the same time inviting a conference with the representatives of the trainmen and conductors today.

Neither side would say what the new proposition was, but a hasty meeting of the employes' committees was held at the Broadway Central Hotel, at which it was submitted by the two Grand Masters. When the conference was over Grand Master Lee said:

Vote for B. & O. Schedule or Strike.

"All I will say is that the compromise was unsatisfactory. We notified the railroad that the vote by which the last proposition was rejected was also a vote to strike for the original demands. It must be the Baltimore & Ohio schedule or none."

In case of a strike, he said, all the Vanderbilt roads are likely to be affected. These include the Michigan Central, the West Shore, the Big Four, the Nickel Plate, the Lake Erie & Western, the Boston & Albany, and the Pittsburg & Lake Erie. The Michigan Central, he said, is now voting on a strike for the same demands. He added:

"The men on the Central have been told that conductors can earn as high as $176 a month. This would be based on running 8,000 miles a month, which would be impossible. On the same basis the Baltimore and Ohio conductors' highest wages would be $240 a month. We want the same rates on the freight and passenger trains. The minimum rate for conductors cannot be less than $125, for trainmen and baggagemen $75 and $70 a month respectively."

The last strike on the New York Central took place twenty years ago, when the members of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association quit work. That strike was a failure, as the switchmen were not well organized and the engineers refused to strike in sympathy.

It was reported last night by the officers of the Masters' and Pilots' Association that the men on one of the New York Central tugboats were discharged for refusing to handle the freight of one of the tugboats of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, whose boat crews are on strike, and that thereupon the crews of several of the New York Central tugboats went on strike. An officer of the association said that about twenty of the tugboats were affected by the strike.

STOPS TRAINS ON SUNDAY.

Steel Corporation Shuts Down on All Lines It Controls.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 11.—Following the stoppage of Sunday work in all mills of the Carnegie Steel Company and of the National Tube Company, the United States Steel Corporation has turned its attention to stopping trains on all roads controlled by it. The movement of coal or coke and other material on Sunday on roads controlled by the corporation is to be stopped.

The first move in this direction was put into effect on the Pittsburg, Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad yesterday, when not a wheel carrying material for any of the corporation mills moved. Only two trains, both passenger trains, moved over this line, which is one of the subsidiary corporations of the big steel company.

It is stated here to-night that all of the railroads of the Steel Corporation had Sunday work stopped yesterday. There are about 2,000 miles in the aggregate of these roads, including the Duluth & Iron Range, the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern, the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, the Bessemer & Lake Erie, Youngstown Northern, St. Clair Terminal, and Mercer Valley & Donora Southern.

About 30,000 workmen will be affected by this Sunday order.

NEW TUNNEL ROUTE TO TIMES SQUARE

FIVE-CENT FARE TO QUEENS

Chance for Seventh and Madison Avenue Lines, Too—Transit Committee Considers New Plans.

Mayor Gaynor announced yesterday at the continued subway hearing before the Transit Committee of the Board of Estimate that the operation of the so-called Belmont tunnel under the East River, from Forty-second Street to Long Island City, will be one of the first subway improvements which the new administration will take up. He indicated strongly that he will advocate the running of trains through the tunnel from Long Island City to Times Square, to connect there with both the north and south bound service in the present Subway and its extensions, at a single fare of 5 cents. If this plan is adopted Times Square will become the most important passenger traffic centre in the city.

It has been understood for some time that the principal feature of the new subway plan which the Interborough Rapid Transit Company will present to the Public Service Commission in the near future would be the request for permission to run extensions from its present line south under Seventh Avenue from Times Square and north under Madison Avenue from Forty-second Street.

There have been rumors that the delay in the presentation of the plan was due to dickering over the stipulation made by the City Government and the commission that the Interborough should open the Belmont tunnel and establish a connection through it from the Long Island shore at a five-cent fare in exchange for the concession of the two extensions named. Nothing has been decided upon to date, and the Mayor made it clear yesterday that, while he hopes to have the matter brought to a head in the near future, there are no indications as yet that the Interborough will agree to the stated conditions.

The company which built the tunnel, which was in reality a part of the Interborough system, offered at first to sell the tube to the city for $7,000,000. This was turned down by the Public Service Commission, its experts reporting that it would be necessary to spend some $300,000 in straightening out the loop at the Manhattan end of the tunnel. The Interborough then offered to take it over and give a connection through it with the present subway at an eight-cent fare. This was the last public plan presented. When the application was granted by the commission, however, for the extension of the McAdoo tunnel to the Grand Central Station, they were confined to the southern half of Forty-second Street, the other half being reserved for the possible extension to Times Square of the tunnel.

With the opening of the extensions of the present system south from Times Square under Seventh Avenue and north from Forty-second Street under Madison Avenue, the opening of the tunnel with a single fare connection would be most advantageous to the Interborough even if the Broadway-Lexington Avenue Subway was operated by a different company. The latter would have no access to the tunnel route and the free transfer system would naturally divert all of the Queens traffic to the Interborough.

The Mayor made his statement on the matter while John Adicks, representing the United Civic Associations of Queens, was talking yesterday. The latter protested against the apparent discrimination against Queens in the provision of additional subway facilities.

"You know that we intend to open the Belmont tunnel and extend it to Times Square, I suppose," said the Mayor.

"I did not know it," replied Mr. Adicks.

"Well, I am telling you now confidentially that we have this matter under consideration," continued the Mayor.

Yesterday's hearing was not anywhere near as largely attended as the one held last week, the Aldermanic Chamber being only about half full, the majority of the speakers apparently representing some particular district in the development of which they are interested.

New subways and extensions were advocated which would cost the city several hundred millions of dollars to build. A woman who said she was Mrs. Leander Brown, wife of a former Mayor of Austin, Texas, read a set of resolutions, which she declared were passed at a recent subway mass meeting held in Union Square, protesting against the proposed subway "steal," and urging the letting of the contracts for the proposed new subways for construction alone.

John W. Paris, representing the Real Estate Exchange of Long Island, said he was most gratified to hear that there is probability of the early opening for operation of the Belmont tunnel. He assured the committee that the property owners of the district are willing to pay by assessment for a subway extension from the Long Island terminus of the tunnel through Steinway to North Beach, and urged the establishing of an elevated extension from Manhattan to Queens over the Queensboro Bridge.

Jacob Elfert, representing the Upper Flushing Improvement Association, did not get along at all well with the Mayor.

"There is no use of taking up the question of a subway to Flushing at this time," interrupted the Mayor.

"The people of Queens Borough will take exception to that," replied Mr. Elfert with heat.

"We have an octopus in our midst known as the Long Island Railroad—"

"You will never get anything out of the Long Island by calling it names," reproved the Mayor. "Why don't you say something kind to Mr. Peters?"

"We would get some relief if we had a member on the Public Service Commission."

"Why don't you go to the Governor and get one?"

Then Mr. Elfert gave up.

Ex-Alderman Colgan wanted the proposed new lower subway tunnel under the East River run to Fulton Street, Brooklyn, instead of Pineapple Street, as according to the present plan.

Ernest Gilmore Gardner, representing the civic organizations of the Eastern District, Brooklyn, urged that the Board of Estimate go slow in the approval of subway routes.

"The city is subway crazy," said he. "Every merchant wants a station in front of his store and every man a line to his own doorstep. Haste breeds recklessness and needless waste. This is a business administration and I feel confident that your Honor will pay strict regard to economy in construction. Build slowly and with care.

"Avoid following false leads that mean nothing but benefits for real estate speculators at the expense of the public purse. Build the trunk lines first and the extensions under the pay-as-you-go plan."

W. T. Parks, representing the Ozone Park Board of Trade, was interrupted by the Mayor while he was telling all about how bad the transit facilities in the district are.

"We know all about that," said the latter. "Where do you want a subway?"

Mr. Parks submitted a route, declaring that the property owners are ready to build it by assessment if they cannot get it in any other way.

Reginald P. Bolton, Secretary of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, advocated immediate action for the elimination of the operation of the Eleventh Avenue tracks of the New York Central at grade.

Dr. George A. Dixon, who has been sued by the Barney estate to recover moneys alleged to be due on brokerage transactions, and who has put in counter-claims for services rendered the late Mr. Barney of a professional character, was directed by the court to furnish the plaintiffs with a bill of particulars.

Justice Greenbaum, however, in a decision handed down last night, held that the physician need not give particulars as to his first claim other than those already furnished by him, in which he set forth that it was for professional services, and that he could not be asked to supply information as to his services which was derived by him in his professional capacity as a physician.

Dr. Dixon made another counter-claim for "services of a personal and confidential character," and Justice Greenbaum says this question is of a different character. Dr. Dixon held that his personal friendship for the late Charles T. Barney and the regard in which he holds his memory make him unwilling to give the information desired, and Justice Greenbaum says this is inconsistent with the assertion of a claim for such services, which must necessarily be disclosed on the trial when his claim is contested, if he hopes to establish it. He is, therefore, directed to show what the personal and confidential services were.

HUGHES ASKS FULL INQUIRY

Message to the Legislature Calls for an Investigation of All Graft Scandals.

DEMANDS LIGHT ON BRIBERY

HOTCHKISS REPORT IS OUT

Governor Sends It to the Legislature with His Special Message—Says Lobbyists Used Bribe Funds.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—In a special message sent in to-night, Gov. Hughes called on the Legislature to follow up through a general investigation the trails of legislative corruption laid bare by the Allds bribery trial and the Hotchkiss investigation into the business methods employed by the fire insurance companies.

"They have caused every honest citizen to tingle with shame and indignation, and have made irresistible the demand that every proper means should be employed to purge and to purify," said the Governor in his message.

The message was formulated by the Governor after a report summarizing the results of his investigation had been submitted to him by State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss. This report was appended to the Governor's message. The reading of both at the session of the Senate and Assembly this evening caused a decided stir among the legislative leaders.

This is the Governor's message:

State of New York,
Executive Chamber,
Albany, April 11, 1910.

To the Legislature:

I place before you a report, which has been made to me by the Superintendent of Insurance. While the Superintendent is armed with power to examine witnesses and to compel the production of books and papers in proceedings within the scope of his departmental action, he has come upon certain suggestive facts apparently lying outside his official cognizance, and of a character to be adequately dealt with only through means which your honorable body is competent to authorize.

The revelations in the inquiry recently conducted by the Senate and the facts brought to light by the Superintendent of Insurance make it imperative that there should be a thorough investigation with respect to legislative processes and as to the corrupt practices which have been effectual in advancing or blocking legislation. It is not necessary for me to review these disclosures or to attempt to appraise their cumulative effect. It is sufficient to say that they have caused every honest citizen to tingle with shame and indignation, and have made irresistible the demand that every proper means should be employed to purge and to purify.

It is the high privilege of the Legislature, in the discharge of its obligations to itself and to the people of the State, to follow the salutary action already taken in its upper branch by appropriate steps for the exposure and destruction of combinations and conspiracies against the just use of the lawmaking power and by providing suitable protection against the recurrence of such abuses. This is a promising opportunity to pursue the opening trails of corruption, to reveal illicit methods and agencies, to uncover the perfidious influences which have dishonored the State, and thus to aid in securing the wholesome exercise of its beneficent authority.

Time Ripe to Expose Wrongs.

It is the unquestioned prerogative of the Legislature to inquire into the course of legislation, the integrity of legislative procedure, and the means by which its action has been procured or frustrated. In this there is no usurpation or confusion of function, but the proper safeguarding of the legislative power. The Legislature is entitled to know how, wherein, and by whom it has been deceived and its powers perverted.

Important as will be the wholesome and corrective influence of publicity with respect to these matters, the purpose and result of inquiry extend beyond the bounds of mere disclosure. We are far from perfection in legislative method. Nor have we exhausted available measures of protection against traffic in legislation and chicanery in dealing with bills. No subject deserves more thorough consideration to the end that the opportunities of those who are willing to buy legislative favor or to use representative powers for personal profit should be limited to the utmost degree. It may be impossible wholly to eradicate these evils, but to the extent that the nature of the illicit intercourse is understood, and the methods and instrumentalities which have been successful are exposed, there may be intelligent effort at remedial action through both statutes and legislative rules. The time is ripe, in my judgment, for a full and painstaking inquiry to expose the worst of public wrongs and to prepare the way for needed improvements in our laws and legislative processes.

I therefore recommend an immediate, impartial, thorough, and unsparing investigation into legislative practices and procedure and into the use of corrupt or improper means for the promotion or defeat of legislation, such inquiry not to be limited to but suitably to embrace the matters adduced in the recent proceeding by the Senate and those presented by the report herewith submitted of the Superintendent of Insurance, in order that, so far as evidence may be obtainable, the actual facts may be known, that there may be a full understanding of the methods and agencies employed in connection with legislative proposals and that well-considered recommendations for appropriate remedies may be made. CHARLES E. HUGHES.

Legislature to Take Action.

It is predicted by legislators at the Capitol to-night that some measure carrying out the Governor's recommendations will be reported in the Senate, possibly before the end of the week. The Senate Finance Committee already has pending before it two resolutions providing for a graft investigation, one of these introduced by Senator Wainwright and another put in by Senator Newcomb.

The Newcomb resolution calls in specific terms for an investigating committee composed of legislators known for their independence, whom the resolution names instead of leaving the appointments to the Lieutenant Governor and Speaker.

A third resolution was introduced this evening by Senator Eugene M. Travis, a Brooklyn Republican. This resolution calls for the broadest possible investigation of graft in the Legislature or any other branch of the State Government by a mixed commission of nine members, three of these representing each branch of the Legislature and three citizens not connected with the Legislature to be appointed by the Governor.

The contents of the Governor's message were known to the legislative leaders in advance, but came as a surprise to the majority as it was being read from the rostrum in both houses immediately after prayer this evening. In the Senate it was referred to the Finance Committee, and in the Assembly to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Going Back to the Allds Trail.

Neither Senator Cobb, majority leader of the Upper House, nor Speaker Wadsworth and Majority Leader Merritt of the Assembly would make any comment on the Governor's message. It is realized that if there is to be a fight it will be in the Assembly. Speaker Wadsworth has already gone on record as opposed to any general investigation of legislative corruption.

There have been many signs of late, however, that his grip on the House machine is weakening, and predictions that he will not be able to hold the Assembly against the sort of an investigation the Governor desires are not lacking to-night.

There is no denying that there is uneasiness in many quarters. The scope of the legislative investigation, if the Governor's recommendations are carried out, would embrace the evidence brought out in the Allds trial with reference to the $10,000 demand in 1905 for a corruption fund to defeat bridge legislation, which is supposed to have emanated from some members of the Legislature whose identity is known and who are within easy reach of any legislative committee.

Brokerage Trails to Legislature.

To-night there came in addition to this a statement from a person who ought to know to the effect that when the books of the brokerage firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham, portions of which are in the possession of Supt. Hotchkiss, are examined, no end of trails leading to the Legislature will be uncovered.

The books in Mr. Hotchkiss's possession cover transactions by the firm from 1900 to 1905. G. Tracy Rogers, whose activities at Albany in connection with the traction lobby brought him into the limelight at the time Lemuel E. Quigg was a witness before the Public Service Commission in the Metropolitan Street Railway investigation a couple of years ago, was a partner in the firm.

Mr. Hotchkiss, in his report attached to the Governor's message, points out that at the close of the legislative sessions of 1900 and 1901 in particular the books show cash credits to legislators in considerable amounts and that some of these resulted from a cash or check payment by G. Tracy Rogers.

Recommendations made by Mr. Hotchkiss to the Governor also relate to the testimony given by William H. Buckley and some of the other lobbyists who appeared before him during the investigation concerning funds demanded for distribution among legislators.

HOTCHKISS'S FULL REPORT.

Informs Governor That Fire Insurance Companies Paid Money for Legislation

ALBANY, April 11.—Supt. Hotchkiss's report, on which the Governor based his special message to the Legislature, is as follows:

Insurance Department.

To the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, Governor, Albany, N. Y.

Sir: On March 18, 1910, a public investigation of the expenses of insurance companies from 1900 to 1910, inclusive, particularly in connection with legislation, was begun at the New York offices of this department. The testimony and exhibits therein, together with a formal report, will later be transmitted to you. The character of the facts developed and the nature of the difficulties encountered in conducting the investigation further seem to make it proper that I at this time lay before you the following summary:

An examination of the Phenix Insurance Company of Brooklyn, begun last October, brought to light a mass of correspondence seeming to disclose an intimate relation between the President of that company and legislation affecting fire insurance companies during the last decade. The material thus revealed suggested an examination of the books and records of several other companies, and in January of this year such examination was ordered. This examination showed that very considerable sums of money had been paid by a large number of domestic fire insurance companies and disbursed by or through the President of the Phenix Company in promoting or retarding legislation.

The facts thus developed formed a basis for further inquiry, with the result that on March 18 a public investigation, under authority conferred by Section 39 of the insurance law, was commenced. Inasmuch as the expenses of life insurance companies in connection with legislation had been quite generally developed by the legislative investigation of 1905, it was not thought either expedient or necessary to devote much time to an inquiry into the disbursements of companies of this character. Indeed, with possibly a few exceptions, only such facts as showed disbursements by life companies which were not brought out in 1905 form a part of the record of this investigation.

The result of the investigation thus far warrants the following statements:

1. Legislative expenditures in New York by insurance companoes authorized to do business in this State were particularly conspicuous in the years 1901, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, and 1909, and notably significant in two or three of such years.

2. These disbursements were made (a) by individual companies, in connection with legislation affecting such companies; (b) by syndicates of companies, apparently willing to do the work for all, and (c) by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, a corporation supported by annual assessments on practically all of the companies doing business in New York, such assessments being based on premium income, and whose Committee on Laws and Legislation is, by its by-laws, charged with the responsibility of watching over legislative affairs.

Disbursements Exceed $150,000.

3. The moneys so paid were disbursed for (a) traveling expenses of individuals and delegations; (b) annual and special retainers of regular counsel, (c) so-called retainers of legislative lawyers, (d) contributions to political committees, (e) gifts or payments to men of political prominence and influence, and (f) entertaining legislators and others, at times in a somewhat lavish manner. The aggregate of disbursements of this character, as the record now stands—such disbursements being largely from the treasures of fire insurance companies—approximates and probably exceeds $150,000.

IV. The disbursements for traveling expenses and to counsel for services in the preparation of briefs and the presentation of arguments to legislative committees are, doubtless, legitimate. It has not, however, yet been possible to examine into certain large disbursements of this kind made from 1901 to 1906, inclusive, to regular counsel resident in New York City. The size, frequency, and limited distribution of payments to so-called lawyers and legislative agents resident in Albany are suspicious, and seem to call for further inquiry through an investigation of broader range than is possible under Section 39 of the insurance law. Particularly is this true of a fund of $10,000, raised by four companies in 1903; a fund of $15,000, raised and disbursed in 1904, and funds of $5,000 each, disbursed in 1905 and 1906, respectively. A disbursement of $8,311 by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters in 1901, and an auxiliary fund of $5,000, raised by certain of the companies contributory to that board, in the same year, have been largely accounted for. The facts developed as to these various funds prove that some of the moneys went to the Republican State Committee in recognition of the interest of certain members of such committee at the time various bills were passed, some to prominent politicians, some to past members of the Legislature, supposedly of influence, and a large portion to a legislative agent formerly connected with the Insurance Department of the State of New York, whose disbursements of such funds are sufficiently characterized in his own correspondence, but whose memory seems lapsed, whose books are apparently non-existent, and an inspection of whose bank account has been denied. Numerous items of proof, however, warrant the inference that some of the moneys thus disbursed went further than the persons to whom they were paid by the representative of the insurance interests.

V. Several witnesses offered proof of direct propositions made by so-called lobbyists looking to the payment of money to such persons, that it might be by them distributed among members of past Legislatures.

VI. Instances of the attempted collection of funds for the purpose of contributing to the campaigns of legislative candidates were also developed.

Log Rolling of Strike Bills.

VII. Much was also elicited as to so-called "strike" bills, and the log-rolling of such bills in and out of committees, responsive to the influence of lobbyists and legislative agents, often, apparently, that they might either prove their usefulness or exact larger contributions from their dupes.

VIII. Similarly, numerous instances evidencing the holding up of meritorious bills and the threatened passage of bad bills, until the desired consideration reached the bank accounts of the middle men, were also developed.

In short, while absolute proof showing the transit of money from the bank account of an insurance company into the hands or the bank account of a legislator is lacking, the record of the investigation thus far made up warrants the statement that during the past decade, particularly in the first five years of such decade, a system of bill-killing and law-getting has existed which is a reproach to the people of the State. That such system existed prior to 1900 is also apparent from the facts developed on the investigation.

During the progress of the investigation the chief witness frequently refused to answer questions, thereby making himself liable for contempt under Section 61 of the public officers law. He also served a notice upon his principal bank of deposit, the result of which was that such bank declined to produce a transcript of his account, which it had been subpoenaed to produce. It was not thought essential to the development of the facts that the investigation proper be halted to compel the answering of questions and the production of books. Nor is it doubted that, under existing law, such testimony and production can be compelled.

A difficulty, apparently insuperable, has, however, developed. The books of the Phoenix Insurance Company show that while the chief witness in this investigation was a member of the Insurance Department of this State such company had loaned him $13,000 on the collateral of 100 shares of the International Banking and Trust Company. The latter company was the successor in interest of the American Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, to which a special charter giving extraordinary powers—some of them of an insurance nature—had been voted by the Legislature of 1900. Inquiry into this transaction suggested the importance of a careful investigation of the books of certain financial institutions now out of business, to the end that the circumstances surrounding the acquisition of portions of such stock by this witness and others might be spread upon the record. Again a notice was served which, in effect, prevented an examination of such books, and further progress along this line was thus, for the time, blocked. The testimony of a voluntary witness, however, threw a strong light upon the methods followed by those who sought special charters with wide corporate powers from the Legislatures of several years ago.

The Speculations of Legislators.

Likewise, further inquiry into certain facts—developed as the result of a suggestion made by the counsel of former Senator Conger—seems to be not only effectively blocked, but, also, probably improper. Ellingwood & Cunningham were, from 1900 to about March, 1905, a stock brokerage house, operating in New York. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against them, and a settlement made with their creditors. Their books, papers, and records, however, remained in the possession of James W. Cunningham, one of the members of the firm. For about five years prior to the failure of this firm, one G. Tracy Rogers—who at that time seems to have been the legislative representative at Albany of the traction interests—was a special partner in the firm.

A subpoena served upon Mr. Cunningham resulted in his placing in the possession of the Superintendent of Insurance three large loose-leaf ledgers, covering the transactions of his firm from 1900 to March, 1905, inclusive. He also gave information as to the existence and character of the other books, papers, and records of such firm, and promised to make the same available. An examination of such ledgers developed the existence therein of accounts with several former members of the Legislature, some of whom had been active on the Insurance and Rules Committees. Mr. Cunningham was, therefore, asked to take the stand and give evidence tending to develop whether any of the transactions with such members had to do with moneys disbursed by insurance companies. His examination at once made it very doubtful whether further inquiry could properly be made under Section 39 of the insurance law.

The accounts referred to, however, together with the testimony of the witness Cunningham—both read in connection with the accounts on such books of G. Tracy Rogers and others associated with him—warrant a strong suspicion that such books, to an extent at least, had been a clearing house for financial transactions connected with legislation during the period mentioned.

Thus far thirteen accounts have been examined, nine of which appear to have been with those who were members of the Legislature at that time, and four with persons prominently associated with legislative affairs or in the same coterie of political influence. Several other accounts, particularly those of G. Tracy Rogers and of syndicates or partnerships of which he was a member, have also been found in such books.

Among the significant facts disclosed in the thirteen accounts just mentioned are the following:

1. Several of the accounts either have their origin or become active near the close of the legislative session of 1900 or 1901.

2. Some of such accounts show credits of cash in considerable amount at about the time the Legislatures of those years adjourned.

3. In some instances these credits show that they resulted from a cash or a check payment by G. Tracy Rogers, or through a transfer from his account.

4. In two or three of the accounts, credits of cash, sometimes from or through the account of G. Tracy Rogers, were offset almost immediately by cash withdrawals.

5. Some of the accounts show purchases and short sales, evidencing the possession by the person interested of inside information as to the prospective operations through manipulations in Wall Street.

6. In one account numerous unexplained entries were made, showing withdrawals by one of the persons mentioned, at a time when he was a heavy debtor of the firm.

7. In a considerable number of accounts appear transactions in stock indicated by the word "Trans," which seems to mean the stock of either the New York Transportation Company or the New York Electric Vehicle Transportation Company; two corporations at that time closely allied and ultimately merged under the name of the former. By Chapter 657 of the laws of 1900 it became possible for the first-mentioned company greatly to extend its franchise in the City of New York. Coincident with the passage of this bill several of the persons whose names appear in these books seem to have acquired blocks of this stock. The books do not furnish complete information as to such acquisition, but the significance of some of the dates—they being almost coincident with the final action taken by the Legislature on the bill which ultimately became Chapter 657—is notable. Equally notable is the fact that when several of these blocks were sold by this brokerage house in 1901 the price realized seems to have been more than double the market price of such stocks at that time.

There are also minor peculiarities about these accounts which suggest investigation, as, for instance: (a) In several accounts the absence of cash or margin credits at times of purchases; (b) in one of the accounts the rebating of a considerable sum of interest, and (c) the apparent fact that some of the accounts show large debit balances at the time of the failure of the brokerage house, but seem not to have since been pressed for payment.

Certain of the accounts in these ledgers show a close connection between G. Tracy Rogers and the Metropolitan traction interests in New York City. The character of the securities dealt in frequently recalls legislation urged or retarded at about the same time.

In short, these books—together with the memoranda, check stub books, checks, and correspondence of this firm—seem to call for further investigation and inquiry. When an effort was made so to do, objection thereto was raised by an attorney who had not previously been the counsel of the witness and who declined to be sworn when an attempt was made to ascertain his connection, if any, with interests represented by G. Tracy Rogers.

It is not apparent that the Superintendent of Insurance, as such, has power, under Section 39, to proceed further with this phase of the pending investigation. For that reason the facts thus far developed and the books and papers now in my possession are thus laid before you.

Respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM H. HOTCHKISS, Superintendent of Insurance.

ROGERS HERE TO TESTIFY.

Former Legislative Agent Drops a Hint of What He May Not Tell.

Owing to the pressure of departmental business which kept him at Albany Superintendent of Insurance William H. Hotchkiss sent down word yesterday that he would be unable to continue the hearings in the fire insurance graft inquiry yesterday, and the matter will now go over until next Friday morning. The Superintendent has a mass of department legislation to get into running order if it is to be properly taken up at this session.

G. Tracy Rogers of Binghamton, who was President of the Street Railway Association of this State for many years up to about 1905 and the reputed keeper of the "yellow dog" for the traction interests, appeared at the State Insurance Department with John B. Stanchfield, his counsel, yesterday and announced his readiness to testify. Besides his traction connections Mr. Rogers was a special partner in the Stock Exchange firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham, which suspended in 1905, and the Superintendent of Insurance was anxious all last week to get hold of him in order that he might explain why the speculative accounts of various legislators, including that of Louis E. Bedell, Chairman of the Railroad Committee in several sessions of the Assembly, ran into Rogers's personal account on the books of that firm.

Yellow Canines Convicted.

The Ellingwood & Cunningham phase of the fire insurance graft inquiry was opened up at a session last Wednesday, Mr. Hotchkiss having obtained some of the books of the former brokerage house, and having reason to believe that there was a connection between the traction "yellow dog" and the fire insurance "yellow pup," if, indeed, the canines did not belong to the same litter. At that time James B. Cunningham of the brokerage house appeared with Mr. Stanchfield and refused to answer questions about the books on the ground that Mr. Hotchkiss had no right to ask them. This was on the advice of Mr. Stanchfield, as his personal counsel.

The belief was current at that time that Mr. Stanchfield would eventually turn up as the counsel of G. Tracy Rogers also, and this was confirmed by the developments of yesterday morning. Mr. Rogers filed with the department a letter in which he said, under date of April 9:

"On Wednesday morning I learned from a newspaper correspondent that you desired my attendance as a witness in an investigation which you are conducting and which has been adjourned until Monday next at 11 o'clock. This was the very first intimation I had received from you of any desire to obtain information from me as a witness or otherwise, although I had been openly and regularly attending to my business as President of the Binghamton Railway Company at Binghamton for several days prior to last Monday noon, and as President of the Rutland Railway Light and Power Company at Rutland from Tuesday morning of this week until noon to-day, and a letter or telegram addressed to me at my business office at either place at any time would have received a prompt response. I beg leave to assure you of my intention to appear before you on Monday morning, April 11 at 11 o'clock, where you may serve me with such process as you desire, and I shall then be ready to testify and give evidence before you with reference to any matter over which you may have jurisdiction."

Missed by Subpoena Server.

At the State Insurance Department it was learned that after Mr. Hotchkiss got the Ellingwood & Cunningham books at Binghampton a subpoena server arrived there too late to catch Mr. Rogers. Mr. Rogers was traced to Rutland, and he was scheduled to leave there Wednesday night for this city. He did not, however, although he had a sleeping car berth engaged, and his appearance yesterday was the first information that the Insurance Department has had of his whereabouts, except that he was in Rutland during the latter part of last week. While no statement was forthcoming from the department in the absence of Mr. Hotchkiss, there was a strong impression that the words in the last line of Mr. Rogers's letter: "I shall be ready to testify with reference to any matter over which you may have jurisdiction," meant that Rogers would follow the line of refusals established by Cunningham, also acting on the advice of Mr. Stanchfield.

If that result should be realized it is considered not unlikely by those who have been following the insurance investigation that the whole situation may be passed to the Governor by Mr. Hotchkiss for such recommendation as the Governor sees fit to make to the Legislature. Thus handled it would make strong material for the expected message demanding a general investigation of graft at Albany, for the Ellingwood & Cunningham books, even the few volumes which Mr. Hotchkiss has in his possession, show entries of big dealings by five or six legislators in at least one highly speculative stock.

That was the stock of the New York Transportation Company, and these entries indicate that the legislative group, at just about the time when the Electric Vehicle Company, a Jersey corporation, received from the Legislature a grant of extraordinary powers of extending its routes in this city, the legislators in question in some manner unexplained got big blocks of the transportation stock, which formed the basis of extensive speculations running through several years.

ALDRIDGE WORRIED OVER ELECTION SIGNS

Will Break His Old Custom and Take the Stump in His Own Campaign.

REPUBLICANS FOR HAVENS

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 11.—With the special election in the Thirty-second Congressional District to elect a successor to the late James Breck Perkins but eight days off, the indifference of the first week following the nominations by the Republicans of George W. Aldridge and of James S. Havens by the Democrats, is beginning to give way to keen interest. To-day Republicans are not answering the query, "Well, who is going to win?" with the same confident smile of a week ago.

The best evidence that the machine organization is not any too confident of electing Aldridge hands down is the campaign programme announced by the Republicans for the present week. When the campaign opened it was announced that the Republicans did not consider a speech-making campaign necessary. Now it is announced that three meetings will be held in Rochester this week, the first Tuesday night, and that George W. Aldridge will address the voters at all of them. In his twenty years of political leadership in Monroe County, Aldridge has not made a half-dozen political speeches.

There is no wide-open revolt against Aldridge, but hundreds of Republicans, who regard the issue of bossism as the only issue of the campaign, are declaring their intention of voting for James S. Havens. The so-called split among the Democrats is not regarded as serious, and it is believed that the normal Democratic vote will be polled for the Democratic candidate. Aldridge has a large following who are intrenched in city and county offices, who, with their families and friends, will be loyal to the man to whom they owe their positions. It is conceded, therefore, that the election or defeat of Aldridge depends on the size of the deflection of Republicans who owe nothing to the boss.

Saturday's registration figures show a large increase in the "lodging house vote" in the downtown sections of the city, and this leads the Democratic managers to believe that colonization has been resorted to in an effort to overcome the expected deflection in the residential sections of the city. The Democrats are investigating the figures and will have an army of watchers on hand on election day to prevent illegal voting.

Mr. Havens to-day began his noonday talks to factory workingmen, and it was considered significant that he was accompanied by former Secretary of State John Sibley Whalen, who heretofore has held aloof from Mr. Havens's campaign, lending color to the assertion of the Aldridge press that Mr. Havens would not have Whalen's support and the labor vote which was responsible for Whalen's election in the Hearst Gubernatorial campaign.

Has a Telltale Check.

Dr. Matthews further says that he now has the check, and has offered it unsuccessfully to the District Attorney as a basis for Grand Jury action. His receipt, which he also has, is on the "repairs" form indicating that the stub book would show a clear record and no money due the public Treasury.

One of the delightful experiences of Queens County supporters of President Gresser has been to accept invitations to dine with their borough chief and Tammany leader.

"These dinners were complimentary," recites the statement of grievances, "and those who became guests were not permitted to pay. We now hold that the dinners were actually paid for out of the public funds in this manner: Certain contracts were let, not exceeding $1,000 each, to a well-known contractor, who was the moving spirit in getting up this series of Park dinners.

"One of these contracts went to William Allen, and was for plumbing in the Court House to the extent of $90. Allen still believes that this was the way the contract read, but an examination of it on the files shows that it was for $590 and that a check for this sum was collected from the city.

"Another contract was for repairing city bridges, and although no repairs were ever made, a voucher for such work was duly certified by President Gresser and a check was given for it, there having been a little whitewashing done to the pillars of one bridge in the presence of Inspectors, the man doing it receiving pay some weeks later on a voucher showing that he had been present on a highway with a horse and cart in regular city work."

The committee members hold that Borough President Gresser had information of conditions in his departments, and to indicate this an incident of the campaign is told, which includes the robbery of the house of J. J. O'Brien, a partner of Dr. Matthews, to obtain evidence which he was holding and had threatened to make public.

What Dr. Matthews Knew.

"Dr. Matthews, while interested in the Gresser campaign," it is stated, "found that an amazing amount of graft had been collected in the Sewer Department and on calling this to the attention of President Gresser was specially requested not to make exposures, as they might hurt his chances, but was promised that immediately after election a general house-cleaning would be attempted in all departments."

"A sewer was built on Washington Avenue, Glendale," says the charges, "and no Inspector was ever appointed to the job, but $50 was paid to Nelson, the department's Chief, and we wish to have Lawrence Gresser and Gustave Newman, who was a Sewer Inspector at the time, testify as to what became of this $50.

"There have been several dismissals from office, and the men who have gone are anxious to give testimony. Among them are Michael Haley, who, when asked to resign from the Street Department recently, replied that if he went out of office he would make a general exposure of department practices. He, with John Bowes, foreman, had charge of payrolls during the period complained of, and would be able to tell especially of the wagons and teams carried as belonging to Frank Monteverty, a garbage contractor, in proportion to the number actually furnished and on duty.

"The examination of Frank Monteverty's bank account would throw further light upon this case, and that is one of the things the investigation should cover."

Automobiles for joy rides by public men seem to have been as common in Queens as recently they were in Manhattan, for it is set forth that the borough owned a certain car for the use of President Gresser and that another car, owned by an official of the Highway Department, received repairs in a Brooklyn garage, which repairs were paid for on city vouchers as if they had been made to the publicly owned auto used by Mr. Gresser. A little later the Borough President's car was also repaired, and when the Controller wanted to know why a car needed repairing twice in a single month, he learned of the extra burden of responsibility placed upon the official car.

"Seeing" One Official's Brother.

Then there is the case of Louis Berger, a brother of Carl Berger, Superintendent of Buildings, whom it seems builders had to "see" before their plans and building materials would be officially "O K'd."

J. J. O'Brien had experiences with the brother of the Commissioner. He found him on hand ready to do "drafting" for plans, and gave him a job. The fee was $350, but when the bill was rendered for a duplicate set of plans some time later an item was attached "by private agreement, $180." O'Brien held the item up, and says, in his affidavit, that on investigating he found that such "hold-up" items occurred on the bills rendered to nearly all builders who have recently been operating.

There were also other ways of collecting graft, according to the complaint. It is asserted that a Mr. Reineking of Legget Street, Union Course, was held up by a Building Inspector who stopped a brick house of his in the course of construction, claiming that the brick were too pale and too soft. The puzzled builder did not at first see the point, but after taking samples of his brick to Carl Berger, the Commissioner, to show him that they were hard, and being told to see the Inspector on the job, he returned and was enlightened. For $50 the embargo on the house would be raised, and the Inspector didn't know of any other way. The builder paid, and went right ahead with his work. Afterward when he was among friends he talked, and now he wants to join in the crusade for a clean-up to end the old régime.

George A. Brown, cashier of the Building Department, figures in many accusations. A typical one is that of Jacob Roedler who, it is narrated, was approached while in charge of some new buildings. He did not have the cash and a check was offered and refused. He then decided he would have to go to the bank, and Brown waited for the money around the corner while Roedler obtained $200 in $10 bills, which he delivered to him, minus a single bill which he had extracted in crossing the road.

Next day Roedler received a return visit, with a demand to explain why the sum was $10 short. Roedler offered assurances that it must have been a mistake of the bank, and suggested that Brown go there to have it corrected. This was not done, but Roedler asserts he was finally assured that Brown would be out the money, as it was passed through his hands, merely to others higher up.

Gresser's Part in the Case.

President Gresser, it is charged, learned of these irregularities and many others in the Building Department in a visit made to him by George A. Beyer on Jan. 1, 1910. The visit was to protest against the reappointment of Carl Berger as Building Commissioner, and affidavits were filed covering formal graft charges. They were meant to strike at Berger himself, but in a few days the protesting citizen learned that Berger had been reappointed and that he himself was named as investigator of the charges as filed "against his Inspectors."

Frank Maher, a former Building Inspector, was removed as a result of the investigation, and it is set forth by Dr. Matthews that Maher told him he was carried privately on full pay after his dismissal, the pay being dropped to him by Berger personally on a Long Island Railroad train.

The amount of money misappropriated, it is alleged, is more than $70,000, which total was ascertained by an investigating committee named by President Gresser, which followed its findings with a supplementary report "relieving the various departments of any embarassment."

The relationship between Gresser and ex-Sheriff Harvey, the old line boss, is handled in five pages of the complaint. Harvey is accused of dominating Gresser and allowing his election as leader only on condition that he would do as he was told to by the boss. Paris and McDougal, real estate operators, are named as close affiliates of Harvey.

They promoted the Kesina Park enterprize, whose sale to the city forced Borough President Bermel to quit office, and upon Gresser's election promoted another land deal known as "The Kesina Park North Addition." They seemed to be able to get connections to a main sewer known as the Ingleside sewer, while the towns of Bound Park and Flushing, for whom it was originally built, have never been able to obtain permits to connect, the plant not yet having been completed, although it has been over ten years in the course of construction.

Joseph Nelson, the deposed Sewer Department head, was quoted yesterday as having said he was willing to testify before the Grand Jury, as he thinks his friends have now deserted him.

Conditions in Queens County are known to be under investigation by the Grand Jury. Members who were present at the Wednesday raid upon the Borough President have brought the matter up independently of the District Attorney, and are now said to be waiting "to give him a chance to co-operate with them" before reaching conclusions. It is said that they plan to forward a resolution to Albany indorsing the demand for a Governor's investigation, unless they find that they themselves can obtain results.

FOR WIRE CONTROL.

Bill at Albany to Restrict Telegraph and Telephone Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Assemblyman Merritt to-night introduced a bill which, if enacted, will place the telephone and telegraph lines of the State within the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission of the Second District, in accordance with the report recently made by the special legislative committee which investigated the subject during the last year.

Power is given to the commission upon complaint or upon its own motion to issue orders in relation to rates and service. This authority, the bill stipulates, shall not be construed as giving the commission power to make an order requiring a telegraph or telephone company to perform any act which is unjust or unreasonable or in violation of the requirements of its franchise or of any State or Federal law.

The commission receives the power of investigation and limited control over the forms of accounts and records of the companies, which are required to file annual reports with the commission. The commission is given the veto power over the exercise by the separation of rights and privileges under the franchises, which they have not exercised up to this time.

The measure contains provisions against discriminations in rates. It prohibits any corporation or association other than a telephone or telegraph company to acquire more than 10 per cent. of the stock of any telephone or telegraph company. The bill prohibits the granting of reduced rates or free passes or franks for transmission of any messages except by officers of or employes of the companies.

The bill requires that the permission and approval of the commission shall be given for issues of stocks and bond issues, except that companies may issue notes payable otherwise than on demand for proper corporate purposes without the approval of the commission, and notes to be payable at specified periods of not more than twelve months.

Tea Time Talks
It's always tea time when you are tired or thirsty.
Hill-Grown Tea
Tea growing is a fine art. The quality of tea depends on the elevation of the land and the nature of the soil. In Ceylon, where "Salada" Tea is grown, great care is given to the cultivation of the tea plant as an industry, just as we cultivate apples in Oregon. That is why Ceylon Tea is the finest in the world.
"Salada" Tea is grown at an altitude of over 5000 feet. After the leaves are once picked they never touch human hands, but are packed by machinery in hermetically sealed lead packages which retain the fragrance and flavor.
Bulk tea being open to the air, invariably loses its flavor.

Insomuch as five is a majority of the full bench, that would be as good a decision as if the entire court had participated in it. But to show how thoroughly all this is speculation, one of the distinguished lawyers in the Cabinet (not in the Department of Justice) said this afternoon that the order might easily mean merely that the court had concluded that its decision would have a better effect on the country if the bench were filled before it were rendered and that to-day's action did not necessarily indicate in any way how the court stands on either or both of the trust cases.

Nor does the action of the court give the least clue to what President Taft will do in the matter of filling the vacancy. The President has talked in warm praise of a number of men who have been suggested for the place. He has commended Solicitor General Bowers, Gov. Hughes, Frank B. Kellogg, Special Prosecutor of the Standard Oil Company; Judges Van Devanter, Sanborn, and Hook of the Circuit Court of Appeals which rendered the lower court decision against the Standard Oil Company, and several others. He has praised so many that he has covered up thoroughly any particular preference he may have for one of them.

Meantime the President has let it be known that he does not intend to move hastily in the matter, but will weigh all the circumstances in the case of each man carefully before acting. His intention has been, however, to make the nomination long enough before the adjournment of Congress for the Senate to have ample time in which to confirm it, in order that the new Justice might sit with the court at the opening of the October term next Fall.

The Difficulty of Selection.

Assuming that the order of the court for a rehearing means that the rehearing will not occur until the new Justice is qualified, there enters the complication, so far as the President is concerned, that at least in the general opinion, any man who has had anything to do with the conduct of either of the trust cases heretofore is by that fact barred from appointment to the Supreme Court, where he would be called upon to sit in final judgment upon them.

That rule, if invoked now, would at once eliminate from consideration for this vacancy Judges Sanborn, Van Devanter, and Hook, Solicitor General Bowers, and Frank B. Kellogg. These men, with Gov. Hughes, are the chief names that have been suggested for the place. It is true that a number of others have been recommended to the President. These include Louis Marshall of New York, partner of Samuel Untermyer, whose qualifications were urged upon Mr. Taft last week by Judge Mayer Sulzberger of Philadelphia and Jacob H. Schiff of New York; Judges Hiscock, Tompkins, Andrews, and Crane of the New York Supreme Court; Judge Swayze of the New Jersey Supreme Court, Judge Bradford of the Delaware Supreme Court, and Judge Deemer of the Iowa Supreme Court. Still other names have been suggested, including those of Secretary Nagel and Attorney General Wickersham.

But the five first named, with Gov. Hughes, have constituted the list accepted here as containing the name of the man who would ultimately be the Justice. To invoke the rule cited would at once narrow the field for the choice of the President down to Gov. Hughes.

Consequently there is some question to-night whether the President was entirely in earnest in the declaration this afternoon that the action of the court to-day did not in any way affect his intention regarding the appointment, for it is slyly suggested that he could not say that without giving what might be taken as a strong indication of his intention to name Gov. Hughes. It is true that the case of Solicitor General Bowers is differentiated from those of the Circuit Judges who sat in the Standard Oil case and of Mr. Kellogg. They have been actively identified with the case, but Mr. Bowers had very little to do with the handling of it.

Political Effect of Order.

As to the political effect of the order, opinion was widely divided. Among Senators, both of the regular and insurgent camps, it was declared with emphasis that the order was a good thing. But their reasons differed. One of the prominent old guard Republicans said it was fine, because it would give the country at least a year of peace and quiet in which business conditions, which are rapidly settling down, could reach a solid foundation.

One of the insurgents who is one of the ablest lawyers in the Senate said that it was a good thing because it was of great importance that the decisions, when they do come, should be from a full bench. Even if the seven men, now on duty in the court, should be unanimous in their conclusions, he said, the decision would have a better effect in the country if the whole nine Justices had had opportunity to participate in it and if their influence had been exerted.

But the other view was more largely held, both by members of Congress and of the Administration. It was frankly said by one high Administration official, not at the White House, that the order was a hard blow to the Administration. He had in mind then its purely political effect. There is no doubt that if the court had decided the cases favorably to the Government the Republicans would have been able to make a great deal of capital out of it during the coming campaign. They could have argued that this showed what the Administration was doing in the matter of controlling and prosecuting trusts, what was ever accomplished in the Roosevelt Administration, with all its talk and clamor about predatory wealth and curbing the trusts. This action takes that good argument out of the Republican campaign.

Moreover, the order of to-day leaves the whole matter in the balance, where it will hang for another year at least, with possibilities of almost indefinite delay, and that makes for an unsettled condition of business affairs that is bad for Republican prospects. It must be recalled that two of the Justices now in active service are 77 years old. It will be another year, if nothing more happens to cause delay, before decisions can reasonably be expected. But if another vacancy on the bench should occur, this identical order for a rehearing might have to be repeated, with all its consequent delay.

It is believed here that the evil day for the corporations is only put off by to-day's action. Their ultimate fate is regarded as made more certain, although they gain additional time in which to prepare for it. It is well known that both the President and Attorney General Wickersham were confident that the Government would win in both these cases. That confidence was shared generally by members of the Administration. But if they felt any disappointment over the event of the day, it was well concealed.

Attorney General Wickersham spent a long time at the White House this afternoon, discussing the matter with the President, but no information as to the conference was obtainable from either the White House or the Department of Justice.

Talk of a bill to retire Justice Moody was at once revived by the court's order, but no action is likely at this session of Congress. Senator Lodge called on the President this afternoon with information that Justice Moody is progressing as well as could be expected, but there was no definite indication that he would be able to resume his work on the bench even at the October term. Even with the Brewer vacancy filled, the court will be in such a situation without the services of Justice Moody that it may have to render the unsatisfactory decision of an evenly divided bench. That, of course, would affirm the decrees of the Circuit Courts of Appeals, but from every point of consideration it is regarded as highly desirable that the decisions in such important cases should be by at least a majority of the court.

BEARS CAUGHT NAPPING.

Supreme Court Reargument Announcement Sends Up Prices.

The stock market was thrown into a fever of excitement when the news arrived from Washington shortly after noon yesterday that the Supreme Court had ordered the reargument of both the American Tobacco and the Standard Oil cases. The bears were caught napping in the calm belief that yesterday or some Monday soon a decision, which they expected to be against the companies, would be handed down and would help them cover their short sales at their ease. The actual news made them realize that the decisions would not be handed down for a great many months. This was more than they had bargained for, and many of them rushed excitedly to cover, driving the prices of the most active stocks up 3, 4, or 5 points above the low prices of the morning.

The bulls took heart at this and bought stocks freely, being encouraged not only by the discomfiture of the bears, but by the theory that the order for reargument meant that the court was pretty evenly divided and that this might mean eventually a decision in favor of the companies. At all events, they argued, there would be a period of many months during which they would be free from the week-to-week anxiety regarding the character of the decisions in these two cases.

How prices were affected by the announcement from Washington is shown in the following record of the movement in some of the most conspicuous stocks:

	Morning's Low Price.	Afternoon's High Price.	Net Adv. for Day.
Amalgamated	72¼	76⅛	3⅞
Am. Smelting	79½	83⅞	4⅜
Atchison	111¾	114½	2¾
Ches. & Ohio	83⅝	85¼	1⅝
Chi., Mil. & St. Paul	139¾	142⅜	2⅝
Consolidated Gas	140	142¼	2¼
Great Northern pf.	134	136	2
Louisville & Nashville	148	150½	2½
New York Central	120⅝	122	1⅜
Pennsylvania	134½	136⅛	1⅝
Reading	162	167⅜	5⅜
Rock Island	45⅝	47	1⅜
Southern Pacific	122⅝	125⅜	2¾
Union Pacific	182¾	187½	4¾
United States Steel	81⅞	85½	3⅝

Up to noon the trading was very dull. From 110,000 shares in the first hour the transactions declined to 52,000 shares in the second hour, making a total of only 162,000 shares up to noon. Prices at the start declined as much as a point in some issues, and then recovered, and at noon they stood fractionally higher than at the close on Saturday. The news from Washington came shortly after 12 o'clock, and immediately the market, as if electrified, burst into activity and the bulls were driving the bears to cover in full rout. The sales between noon and 1 o'clock amounted to 284,000 shares, or much more than the trading during the two previous hours. The sales for the day reached 813,243 shares, which was the largest total recorded in a month.

After the first burst of strength and activity, prices reacted a little, but they again advanced later, and in several instances higher figures were touched on this second movement than were reached immediately after the receipt of the news from Washington. This was true particularly of United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper. In point of activity Steel led all the rest of the market. The sales in Steel common amounted to about 240,000 shares, while Reading held second place with about 135,000 shares. Union Pacific contributed about 80,000 shares to the day's total, and Amalgamated Copper about 65,000 shares.

On the Curb American Tobacco common stock on sales of 140 shares sold from a low price of 440 up to 465. Standard Oil, the transactions in which fell short of 100 shares, rose from 640 to 646.

PLAN TO RELIEVE CITY CONGESTION

Cooper Union Mass Meeting Votes for a Commission to Help Find a Way.

TENEMENT RENTS BLAMED

Sweatshop Conditions Exposed—Dr. Adler and Jacob Riis Lead in the Fight—Some Opposition.

In spite of the opposition of a number of men interested in Manhattan real estate, the mass meeing called last night at Cooper Union to consider the prevention of future and the relief of present congestion carried a resolution asking the appointment of an unpaid expert municipal commission to consider the whole problem. The Board of Aldermen has at present before it an ordinance calling for a commission a majority of which should be members of the board. This was condemned by most of the speakers, who urged the necessity of having lawyers, real estate men, and social workers in the majority.

The evils of congestion were brought clearly out. Dr. Felix Adler spoke not only of the lack of light and air and the danger from infectious diseases in tenement house districts, but also of the nervous irritability and the lack of the elements which favor decency caused by the absence of all privacy.

"How is it possible," he asked, "to keep up those reticences which make for morality when a whole family and three or four lodgers are crowded into a few rooms? From such homes it is natural for the young people to try to get away after working hard all day. Why do you allow such homes to exist? What ails you people of New York to suffer such conditions?"

Miss Pauline Goldmark, former Secretary of the National Consumers' League, described the aggravation of congestion caused by the growth in the number of home industries. She vouched for these instances of sweating. In one room not much larger than a hall bedroom dwell five persons, paying $3 a week. The mother and daughter finish trousers at 3 cents a pair, and can finish between them ten pairs a day.

The outburst of flower-crowned hats has filled the east side tenements with artificial flowers, she said. The workers get 4 or 5 cents per gross of violets and 10 cents for tying sixty rosebuds on each of a dozen wreaths.

"It is the high rents that have forced the manufacturers to go in for home industries," she said, "and there are 12,000 tenements which have been licensed for such work. This work is largely seasonal in character, and the result is that as those who live by it have to apply for relief at certain periods of the year, the industries are practically subsidized by the charities. Moreover, they force out of business modern factories in other parts of the country, which, in spite of their low rents, cannot compete with New York sweated industry."

A great point was made by several speakers of the necessity of preventing the repetition of the conditions now existing on the east side in other parts of the city. Dr. Adler declared that subways would not accomplish this, as they would only heap up profits for real estate speculators. Palliative measures, such as an amendment of the law for the provision of improved tenement houses, would only give additional opportunities for still greater congestion. What was needed was a commission to study how other cities had grappled with the problem, in some cases successfully, and to devise a really radical remedy.

Jacob A. Riis pointed out that the reason of the "damnable" congestion of the present day is that rents are so high that no longer can a man, according to the old economic law, obtain shelter for one-fourth of his income. So he is forced to take in lodgers.

"We must not repeat our mistakes," said Mr. Riis. "I have been fighting with Dr. Adler against this for twenty-five years, and now that I am getting old I should like to feel there is some common sense in the people before I lay me down."

Then he paid a tribute to Richard Watson Gilder and Charles Sprague Smith. Of the latter he said amid the applause of the men of the People's Institute:

"He was absolutely killed by his devotion. The last time he spoke to me he was borne down by the burden he had to bear. He gave his life for you and me."

Lucian C. Knapp of Queens had these suggestions to make. Every improved house should be exempted from taxation to the extent of $3,000. Houses should be taxed according to the number of their stories above three, and the State laws of usury should be amended so as to make it easier to borrow money on real estate.

He declared that if the first suggestion was adopted $250,000 would be spent at once in building houses costing $3,000 and upward, and that if the city would spend not the $100,000,000 proposed on general subways, but $10,000,000 in Queens, 500,000 single-family houses would go up at once.

Alfred J. Boulton, a Tax Commissioner from Brooklyn, agreed with the idea of a $3,000 exemption on houses, and also suggested the remission of taxation on tenements built after approved models. In that way it would not pay to erect bad ones.

When the motion in favor of an unpaid expert Commission on Congestion was put to the meeting one man arose and shouted:

"Do you want to drive people from New York to the wilderness?"

"Parts of the city may be crowded," said another speaker, "but not congested in the sense this commission would like to make out. You come down here and mean well, but you look through a magnifying glass. This is no menagerie."

A howl of laughter drowned his voice, and after a few more objections the motion was announced carried by the Chairman, J. Aspinwall Hodge, by six to one.

SAVING CITY HALL PARK.

Historic Preservation Society Issues an Appeal to the Public.

The American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society has issued a pamphlet of forty pages strongly appealing for the protection of City Hall Park against further occupation by public buildings. Most of the pamphlet is devoted to a history of the park and its buildings, past and present, and recalls many almost forgotten facts connected with the old City Common. It claims that this park is as intimately connected with the history of the country as the famous Boston Common, and that it is the cradle in which the Cradle of Liberty itself was rocked.

The frontispiece represents the park at the period before the building of the Post Office. The pamphlet calls attention to the conditions of the deed by which the Post Office site was conveyed to the United States, and urges the restoration of the park to its former condition by the removal of all buildings except the City Hall. A "landmark map" indicates thirty-three sites of historical interest in and around the park.

Copies of the brochure can be had gratuitously upon application to the society, at 154 Nassau Street.

HURT IN TAXICAB WRECK.

Side of the Machine Had to be Chopped Out to Release Passenger.

Ernest E. Ling of Bedford Road, Tarrytown, was seriously injured yesterday when a taxicab in which he was riding hit the railing of a bridge which spans McLean's Brook on the Tarrytown Road, near White Plains.

The auto turned turtle and rolled down a twelve-foot embankment. Mr. Ling was caught in the wreck, and the chauffeur, Harry Glandon of New Rochelle, who jumped in time to escape injury, had to chop out the side of the machine before Mr. Ling could be released. A physician found that Mr. Ling had sustained three broken ribs and many bruises about the body.

COTTON IMPORTS NOT HEAVY.

Baltic Brought Only 7,553 Bales—Little Effect on Market Prices.

When the Baltic, from Liverpool, was unloaded yesterday the cotton aboard, which, it had been announced, was at least 15,000 bales, was found to be only 7,553, making a total of 21,379 bales of American cotton brought back from Liverpool since September. Nearly 2,000 of these were brought in earlier in the season in scattered lots, mostly representing deliveries on short contracts.

Cotton prices weakened somewhat yesterday, they being 10 to 15 points or 50 to 75 cents per bale lower than Saturday's close. The trade attributed this decline, which put the May option at its lowest, to 14.67, July to 14.30, August to 13.90, September to 12.92, October to 12.42, and the further options correspondingly down to 12.27 for December, to the favorable weather reports rather than to the effect of the cotton shipments and the news that 50,000 bales are coming into the market from Gulf and Atlantic points.

While the return shipments from England are the largest in the history of the trade they are not to be confused with the importations of Egyptian, Peruvian, and Indian cotton, which come regularly to this port without relation to the market, and the situation which they reveal has not excited public interest in the market.

The cotton trade sees in the return of the staple to this side an attempt of the spot cotton interests, who have fought the bull campaign engineered by the Patten-Hayne-Scales-Brown clique, to influence the market rather than to supply consumers. In addition to the transportation charges, usually figured at $3.75 a bale, those who imported the cotton did it in the face of lower prices in Liverpool than prevailed in New York, and they have lost, it is estimated, between $4 and $5 a bale, a total of $80,000, for the sake of influencing the Cotton Exchange quotations.

Last week, when the influx of cotton from abroad and from the South in large quantities became a certainty, prices broke sharply, but almost immediately recovered. On the break which put May cotton from 14.76 per pound a week ago to 13.99 on the following day, or a loss of nearly $4 per bale, the leading short interests boasted that they had recovered their commitments.

Whether this is true or not only the culmination of the May options next month will determine. The bull leaders assert that they have ample funds to take care of all the cotton that is tendered for delivery, but the banks have shown a decreasing inclination to give loan accommodations on the commodity.

GRAND JURYMAN ACCUSED.

Ice Company, Under Investigation, Says Foreman Tried to Get Its Lease.

In a bill filed in injunction proceedings by the Union Ice Company of Newark, in the Circuit Court, in Newark, yesterday, it was alleged that John J. Gifford, an ice dealer, while foreman of the Grand Jury, tried to obtain a lease on a pier controlled by the company.

John S. Bell, manager of the company, alleges that Gifford called him on the telephone the night before he was to appear before the Grand Jury, saying that as the ice company's contract would expire on April 1, he desired to lease the pier.

Gifford stated that he took this action after Wesley M. Oler, President of the American Ice Company, had informed him that he would not sell any more ice to the Union Company. Mr. Oler said that the Union Ice Company's contract had expired, but denied he had any conversation with Gifford.

COLUMBIA BOYS EARN $51,261.

1909 Summer's Work an Increase of $23,000 Over 1908—Graduates Lead.

P. C. Holter, Secretary of the Employment Committee of Columbia University, has made public his report of the student earnings during the vacation of 1909. Columbia students earned $51,261, an increase of more than $23,000 over the Summer of 1908. Of this sum $13,000 was earned with the assistance of the committee and $38,000 independent of any assistance.

The greatest money getters continue, as in the past, to be the graduate students, who earned a total of $11,479, as against $10,486. Students in the academic departments earned $9,333.95.

Barnard College girls, it appears from the report, have not been lagging in the pleasant pastime of earning cold cash, for the girls reported that they had earned $1,463 during the Summer.

MISS BEDELL'S HORSE BOLTS.

Saves Herself by a Quick Dismount—Policeman Thrown in Pursuing It.

Miss Dorothy Bedell, an expert equestrienne, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Duggan of the Courtney apartments, 55 Central Park West, narrowly escaped being dragged by the stirrup when her mount bolted in Central Park late yesterday afternoon.

In the pursuit of the runaway Mounted Patrolman Herman Grossberger of the Arsenal Station collided with another rider and was heavily thrown. The policeman's left leg was severely bruised as his horse fell and rolled against him. Mounted Patrolman George Rowlands, after a hot chase, finally caught the runaway at Seventieth Street on the West Drive.

Miss Bedell, who rides astride, was not injured. She was mounting the animal when it plunged, and quickly released her foot when it broke away.

TWO KILLED BY CROTON LOCAL

Michael Cassidy and William Evans Run Down at Morris Heights.

Michael Cassidy of 100 West Ninety-ninth Street, a helper, and William Evans of 101st Street and Broadway, a grocery clerk, were instantly killed by the Croton local on the Hudson Division of the New York Central last night, just north of the Morris Heights station. They were dragged 100 yards before W. Smith, the engineer, could stop the train.

It is believed that they were waiting to catch the Buffalo express, due one minute after the Croton local, and that they did not see the approaching train, while they were picking their way over the third rail in the yards.

Actors Will Play for Newsboys.

Many leading members of the theatrical profession here have volunteered their services for the Newsboys' benefit, to be held at The New Theatre on Sunday night, April 17. Among them Laurence Irving and Mabel Hackney, James K. Hackett, E. M. Holland, Mme. AT JAPAN'S MERCY IN CASE OF WAR

Leslie M. Shaw Paints a Picture of Invasion Due to a Lack of American Ships.

PLEADS FOR SHIP SUBSIDY

Needed, He Tells Merchant Marine Association, if We Don't Want to Lose the Pacific, Too.

What will happen to us in case of war with Japan if the United States does not build up its merchant marine was told last night by Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury, at a dinner given by the Commercial Travelers' National League Merchant Marine Association at the Broadway Central Hotel.

Mr. Shaw's outlook was an extremely gloomy one. Japan, he said, was fast following the example of England, and making efforts to control the Pacific Ocean trade, just as Great Britain had long ago become mistress of the Atlantic. Japan is also, he declared, developing a mighty navy, with plenty of merchant vessels capable of transporting hundreds of thousands of soldiers to the United States who could be slipped into the country under cover of a fog, and thus attack the American forts, which are not protected from the rear, long before the railroads could send enough American troops to repulse them.

To make sure that his hearers wouldn't think he was talking jingoism, he explained that he wasn't predicting war, but just telling what might happen in case war was declared.

It was explained that the Merchant Marine Association had affiliated with the commercial travelers because that was a good way to enhance their cause nationally. The slogan of the association is "We want to restore the Stars and Stripes to the high seas." They hope to obtain the passage of the Humphrey bill, now pending in Congress, providing for a Government subsidy for the building of American ships. George J. Corey, ex-Consul to Amsterdam, presided, and the Rev. John Wesley Hill, H. B. Philbrook, and Louis Moos also spoke.

Mr. Shaw told of the decay of the American merchant marine, until it is now hardly worth speaking about. Through its loss, he said, America had long ago lost its grip on the export and import business of the world, and unless something was done quickly even the building of the Panama Canal would not benefit it very much.

A Nation's Duty to Get Trade.

It was the duty of nations, he said, to go after trade. The United States, he said, manufactures more than England, France, and Germany combined, plus five billions, and consumes 95 per cent. of it. This couldn't continue indefinitely, he said, and when the time came when we consumed less we would find no place to send it, for the other countries would control all the markets.

Some people, he said, opposed the granting of subsidies by the Government, and he went on to prove that the country was granting many subsidies under a different name. It was spending millions each year for the dredging of rivers and harbors so somebody could float ships there; it spends millions each year in encouraging agriculture; it subsidizes the press by carrying magazines at less than half it costs, he said.

"We have paid $50,000,000 for the privilege of digging a ditch, and we are going to spend $500,000,000 to dig it and many more to defend it, so that all the world will have a right to use it the same as ourselves. It is subsidizing the commerce of the world to get somebody to float ships on it. Most people are opposed to the name, but not to the principle of subsidy," said Mr. Shaw.

Some of the benefits of a better merchant marine, Mr. Shaw declared, would be the opening up of the ports in South America, South Africa, and Australia, where our country was unknown commercially. While we are neglecting our commerce, he said, Germany, the greatest protection country on the map, was building up a wonderful trade. Germany, he said, works for all the world, but nobody works for Germany but Germany. With Germany having her hand on the trade in South America, he said, it would be but a question of time before we would have to abandon the Monroe Doctrine or defend it.

Ships Needed for the Canal.

"By digging the Panama Canal," said Mr. Shaw, "we put the Pacific well within our reach, if we want it. There are thousands of millions of dollars' worth of imports there, but we need the ships to get it. England had dominated the Atlantic for years by her matchless marine service. Japan can manufacture ships cheaper than any other country. Her population is greatly congested, and they are wise enough to know that if they follow the example of England they will have a great future in the Pacific.

"Japan has 550 merchant ships and is constructing about 100 more. We have six little old hulls. We have a fighting navy to be proud of and have just appropriated $128,000,000 more for it. It's a good investment, but the navy is perfectly useless without plenty of ships to serve as colliers. We sent sixteen battleships around the world to scare the other nations and hired twenty-six ships flying foreign flags to carry enough coal.

"We are going to send another fleet on another cruise, I hear, and we will have again to hire foreign ships to serve as colliers. Last year the War Department hired forty-one foreign ships to do our work in time of peace. We are going to vote $128,000,000 for more battleships, but not 1 cent for a merchant marine.

"Japan can load 200,000 soldiers on her ships and send over a fleet and land troops any foggy day in the magnificent harbor of Puget Sound, and how long would it take us to get 200,000 troops up there by railroad to contest the landing? None of the forts along the Pacific Coast are protected from the rear.

"I saw that the newspapers recently quoted Jacob Schiff as predicting war. Mr. Schiff has been the financial agent of the Japanese Government for many years, and if he said there is going to be war, I would rather take his judgment than that of any other man in the United States, not excepting the Secretary of War."

DOG ATTACKS A BOY.

Animal Leaped on Him When He Waved His Hand to His Mother.

By waving his hand to his mother in token of his safe arrival at a candy store at 135th Street and Willis Avenue, to which she had sent him, six-year-old David O'Connor of 381 East 135th Street roused the temper of a coach dog, which fastened its teeth in the boy's cheek and dragged him to the ground, where it bit him repeatedly.

The owner of the dog, J. Bower of 188 Lincoln Avenue, dragged the animal off. Dr. Frazier, who took the boy to Lincoln Hospital, said the boy's injuries were serious. He will be taken to the Pasteur Institute for treatment to-day, and the dog will be examined by the Board of Health to find out if it has rabies.

MANY HURT IN HOTEL FIRE.

Men and Women Jumped from Windows or Were Trapped in Falling Staircase.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 11.—Two hundred sleeping people had a narrow escape from death early to-day in a fire which burned the Julian Hotel, one of the most prominent hotels in the State. A number were injured in the rush for safety. The most seriously hurt are:

ENGLER, Mrs. EDWARD, Dubuque; fell through blazing stairway.

EVANS, CHARLES, Philadelphia; internally hurt.

GLASSER, CHARLES, Des Moines; several bones broken by fall from balcony.

LEVY, SAMUEL, Chicago; jumped from third-story window; will die.

Many rescues were made, and despite the confusion most of the guests escaped without harm. Levy stood for several minutes on the window ledge of his room, screaming for aid. Would-be rescuers begged him to hold on a little longer. In the darkness the firemen did not make fast enough progress, and the frightened man leaped just as another ladder was being brought. The one already placed in position was not long enough. Levy struck on the sidewalk, with nothing to break the force of the fall, and was taken to a nearby building, dying.

Mrs. Engler first went to the window of her room, and fearing to leap, decided to try a rush through the fire, which was blazing in the only stairway she could reach. Wrapping a blanket around her shoulders she dashed through the flames. Her clothing was burning, but she almost reached the lower floor when suddenly the stairway sank. Firemen rushed in and dragged her outside. She was burned badly, but may recover.

Nobody seemed to know just when the fire started or what caused it. The blaze had been in progress for some time before it was discovered. One of the lodgers on the second floor smelled smoke and got up to investigate. He sounded the alarm, and soon the halls were filled with half-dressed people, fleeing for their lives. They stumbled down the smoke-filled stairways and fell into the street.

The firemen, after a hard fight, saved part of the building. The damage is estimated at $30,000.

WOMEN STILL BAIT BUTCHERS.

They Waylay Them While Delivering Orders and Pour Kerosene Over Meat.

A series of small demonstrations in the strike of women against the kosher butchers of Harlem, the lower east side, Williamsburg, and Brownsville, with several broken windows, some arrests, and a general closing of shops, ended last night in an indignation meeting at the Harlem Terrace, 210 East 104th Street. Committees of women were appointed to watch the butchers, as well as the landlords, who, it was rumored, were contemplating a raise in rents. The meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Workmen's Circle, the Hebrew Bakers' Union, and the Hebrew Carpenters' Union, was attended by some 400 men and women. One of the speakers was Mrs. Anna Pastor, mother of Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes.

During the day there were several slight disturbances. One butcher in the market at 113th Street and Park Avenue drove off a crowd of threatening women by drenching them with a hose. Charles Gordon, another butcher, of 2 West 112th Street, tried to deliver four chickens in person to customers. He was attacked by a mob of women, who scratched his face and tore away two of the chickens.

Two women were arrested and fined $2 each by Magistrate House in the Harlem Court. Two other butchers were similarly attacked in other neighborhoods, and fines were inflicted.

In Brooklyn, a crowd of women swooped down upon a meat market at 71 Moore Street, driving out the customers, and pouring kerosene oil on the meats. They scattered at the approach of the police. In Brownsville a crowd of 500 women poured kerosene over meats in a butcher's shop at Pitkin Avenue and Ames Street, and beat Jacob Pomerantz. No arrests were made in either case.

THREATENS TO KIDNAP GIRLS.

Pastor's Views on Sunday Dancing Brings Threat Against Two of His Flock.

A threatening letter received by the Rev. Charles J. Allen, pastor of Beecher Memorial Congregational Church, Herkimer Street and Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, has greatly stirred the church members.

Mr. Allen, at a prayer meeting on Friday night, said it threatened that two young women of his congregation would disappear if he did not act in accordance with the writer's wishes regarding a certain dance hall in the neighborhood. It said he must not preach against Sunday-night dancing. Mr. Allen declared he held the writer in contempt, but at the same time he advised the women of the church to be properly escorted when out evenings.

The letter was unsigned. The police had not been consulted by Mr. Allen.

New Cafe Moretti Opens.

The new Café Moretti opened its doors last night. The restaurant now occupies its old place of business and also the building formerly used by the Café Francis, in West Thirty-fifth Street. The new establishment is the largest of its kind in the city. Mr. Bergui has obtained a long lease of the property from Adam Engel, and has made extensive improvements modeled after one of the most popular Italian restaurants in Genoa. It includes a Summer garden.

STATE INVESTIGATES WHISKY POISONINGS

Believed Now That Wood Alcohol in Drug Store Product Caused Nine Deaths.

TIPPLERS TAKE PLEDGE

Attorney General Orders Last Victim's Body Held for Further Inquiry—Bodies May Be Exhumed.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—The State of Rhode Island took a hand to-day in the investigation of the sudden deaths from poisoned whisky at Westerly and vicinity, when Attorney General William B. Greeneough ordered Medical Examiner Edwin J. Knerr of Hopkinton to hold the body of William D. Perrin of Ashaway for further investigation. Perrin died Saturday, and the Attorney General's order probably will be followed by an inquest.

It is believed that the death list, which numbers nine, has reached the maximum number now, since the inhabitants of the several towns concerned have become so stirred up over the matter that even the most confirmed tipplers have taken the pledge. It has been decided that wood alcohol used in the composition of the drug store whisky is the poison which has caused the deaths. Though in several of the cases no examination was made of the contents of the stomach, and, although the physicians in these cases sent in death returns of natural causes, yet the symptoms of each victim were similar, and not only the people of the towns, but the physicians themselves, are inclined to believe they acted hastily in reporting the deaths without more thorough examination.

The peculiar location of Westerly, which lies partly in Connecticut and partly in Rhode Island, has complicated the investigation. Several of the cases have been in villages on the Connecticut side. The drug store at which the whisky was purchased is in Rhode Island.

The action of Attorney General Greeneough is believed to mean that all the bodies which have been buried will be exhumed for examination. Coroner Franklin H. Brown of Norwich investigated the deaths of Charles R. Hood and Henry Larrow, which occurred in Stonington, but no report had been received from the Connecticut State Chemist up to to-night as to the result of the analysis of the liquor which those men drank.

In Westerly nothing is being done as yet in connection with the suspicious sudden deaths that have occurred there within the last few days. Coroner Everett A. Kingsley said that up to to-night he had not received any report from any physician, or the authorities of any suspicious deaths, nor had he been ordered by the Attorney General to take any steps in investigating the cases.

Mr. Greeneough said to-night:

"I do not know whether an autopsy at this late day would prove anything, but if there is something suspicious in those deaths they should be investigated."

Beekman Hunt, a Manhattan lawyer living at 153 Fourth Street, New Brighton, S. I., and his wife were hurt last evening at the Broadway crossing, Bentley Manor, or Tottenville, when their automobile crashed into the gates guarding the tracks of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company.

They were close to the crossing when the gates were dropped. Mr. Hunt tried to stop, but the windshield hit the gate arm and the flying glass cut both Mr. and Mrs. Hunt about heads and hands.

ICE CUT THE BOTTOM OFF SEALER ICELAND

Caught Between Two Great Pans the Steamship Was Sliced Clean at the Water Line.

2,500 SEALS ON BOARD

Helpless Hulk Set on Fire When Abandoned and 125 Men Escape Across Frozen Fields.

The story of the loss of the steamship Iceland in the icefields northeast of Newfoundland on March 30, news of which reached here at the time in fragmentary form, was told yesterday when Frank Perdue, who was a passenger on the Iceland, reached this city.

The Iceland was one of the oldest of the great fleet of sealers which goes out from Newfoundland each Spring to reap the harvest of arctic mammals which come down as far as Newfoundland from Labrador and Greenland to breed.

Her crew had killed 5,000 seals, more than 2,500 being stowed on board, when the great floes of ice closed in on her, and she went down, the twenty-seventh steamer to pay tribute to the seals since 1863. Her crew of 125 men escaped over the ice to the steamship Eagle, and later were transferred to the Red Cross Line steamer Florizel, on which they were brought down to St. John's.

"We sailed from Pool's Island, N. F., on March 12," said Perdue yesterday, "and struck the ice three days later. There were plenty of seals, but the ice was so heavy that the wooden steamers could make but little headway against it. Nevertheless Capt. Edwin Kean sent his men out on the ice to kill each day, and despite their inability to get among the pans they had been fairly successful.

"I have made several trips after the seals, but I have never seen the ice heavier. Some of the pans were ten miles square, and in thickness the ice ranged between eight and fifteen feet. For the first fortnight we repeatedly were jammed. It was Capt. Kean's first year in command of the ship, but he had learned her ways and kept her moving steadily.

"In their search for seals the men were compelled to travel many miles over the ice, and then drag the pelts back again. On Easter Saturday, March 26, the Iceland received her first bad nip. We were between two great pans of ice when the wind sprang up strong from the sea and pressed the field against us. We could hear the timbers groaning and cracking, but she withstood the pressure. We did not sleep a wink that night, and every one was ready to go over the side at a moment's notice. Some of the more timid ones did go over on to the ice, believing it safer.

"On Wednesday after Easter the wind increased again and the ice began to press against us and the ship began to shiver and shake. At midnight the sides were pressed in and threatened to cave in. Then her seams opened and the water began to pour in, as the sternpost, fourteen inches of oak, cracked like a match.

"Chief Engineer Bradbury started five pumps going, but the water gained on them, and the Iceland would have gone down had not the pressure become so great that she rested on the ice. Soon the water extinguished the fires, and with the pumps stopped all hope of saving her was gone. Slowly the ice closed in, finally cutting the ship in half horizontally, the bottom, below the ice, dropping into the sea.

"The men hastily gathered up what they could and went over the side. Before he left the ship Capt. Kean broke a dozen cans of kerosene oil over her and applied the torch. The glare lit up the ice for miles, and she burned for two hours before the heat melted the ice enough for her to drop through.

"After much hardship and suffering the men made their way across the ice to the Eagle, and the next day the shipless sailors were transferred to the Florizel."

The Iceland was built in 1870. She made her first trip to the ice in 1872 and was one of the best of the wooden steamships, having been rebuilt in 1895 at a cost of $20,000. She had been commanded in her time by some of the most celebrated of Newfoundland's Captains, including Windsor Bartlett, a cousin of Capt. Robert A. Bartlett of Commander Peary's ship Roosevelt.

NEIL PRIMROSE AN ORATOR.

Rosebery's Youngest Son Makes His Maiden Speech in Parliament.

LONDON, April 11.—The House of Commons to-night debated Premier Asquith's second veto resolution. The discussion was notable for the capital maiden speech of the Hon. Neil Primrose, the youngest son of the Earl of Rosebery. It was listened to by Queen Alexandra and Lord Rosebery. Mr. Primrose was complimented on all sides for his style of oratory, which was strongly reminiscent of his father's.

Interest in the political situation centres in the dispute between Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George and the O'Brienites regarding the alleged budget concessions to Ireland. John Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary Party, has issued an emphatic denial of Mr. O'Brien's statements made at Cork on Saturday night, but attempts in the House of Commons to-day to draw the Chancellor out on the subject were without result. Nothing further is likely to develop until Mr. O'Brien makes a personal statement before Parliament on Thursday.

GERMAN LAND TAX.

Imperial Government Proposes to Profit by Unearned Increment.

BERLIN, April 11.—When the Reichstag reassembles to-morrow the Government will submit a measure providing for the taxation of the unearned increment of land.

Through this legislation the Government will simply take for imperial uses 6 per cent. of the taxes derived by the municipalities from unearned increment. This, it is expected, will yield $7,500,000, as the municipalities are now collecting about $125,000,000 from the unearned increment annually.

For the present the Government will make no move in the direction of taxing increases in the value of stocks and bonds.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

AMOY, April 11.—The Chinese Government has instructed Prince Ching, adviser to the Chinese Naval Department, to come here and receive the loving cup to be presented to the Chinese Navy by the second squadron of the American Atlantic fleet in commemoration of the visit of the American battleships to Amoy in November, 1908.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Probably as a result of the application of new customs tariff laws the Treasury receipts of Santo Domingo for March showed a decided increase over those for the corresponding month last year, according to a cablegram received at the Insular Bureau to-day. The April receipts are also showing a gratifying increase.

MARSEILLES, April 11.—The twenty-four-hour general strike called to support the naval reservists was a failure, as only a few workmen responded. The shipping strike is practically ended. The steamers which left here to-day were manned without recourse to bluejackets.

OSTEND, April 11.—An unknown steamer to-day ran down and sank a pilot boat off the Westlinder Lightship. Nine men were drowned.

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe, April 11.—One man was killed and many were injured in election riots to-day following the arrest of the candidate opposing M. Gerault-Richard for the French Chamber of Deputies.

WIDOW AND DOCTOR SAYLER'S SLAYERS

Jury, After 36 Hours, Sentences Her to Three Years and Dr. W. R. Miller to Twelve.

HER FATHER ACQUITTED

Crescent City Banker Encountered Physician in His Home and Was Killed in Subsequent Quarrel.

WATSEKA, Ill., April 11.—Dr. W. R. Miller and Mrs. J. B. Sayler to-day were found guilty of manslaughter for the slaying last July of J. Byron Sayler, a banker of Crescent City. John Grunden, father of Mrs. Sayler, was acquitted. Punishment was fixed by the jury at twelve years' imprisonment for Dr. Miller and three years for Mrs. Sayler. The jury deliberated more than thirty-six hours.

Golda Sayler sat beside her mother. When the verdict was read Mrs. Sayler threw herself sobbing into the arms of her daughter, who tried unavailingly to comfort her. Mrs. Miller clung weeping to her husband when the verdict against him was read. Their 14-year-old son, Errington Miller, was not present.

Judge Dibell set April 30 for arguments for a new trial.

For the first time since he was arrested Dr. Miller felt the grip of handcuffs as he was taken from the courtroom to the county jail. Mrs. Sayler walked unshackled to the cell which has been her home for many months.

J. B. Sayler was shot to death in the parlor of his home by Dr. Miller. Friends of Sayler alleged that there was a plot between Mrs. Sayler and Dr. Miller, who were great friends, to get rid of Sayler. The defendants alleged that Mr. Sayler precipitated his death by attacking Dr. Miller with a hatchet without provocation.

Sayler was First Vice President of the First National Bank of Crescent City, Ill. He was murdered on Sunday evening, July 11, 1909. He had been to Kankakee to witness a baseball game in the afternoon, and when he returned to his home he found Dr. W. R. Miller, one of the best-known practitioners of the town, with his wife. A fight followed, and Mrs. Sayler fled.

"It's none of my affair; I let them fight it out," declared Mrs. Sayler to neighbors who ran toward the house attracted by the sound of four shots. They found Sayler on the floor of the parlor, shot once through each arm and twice through the chest, dead in a pool of blood. One of the shots struck his heart.

Dr. Miller was found standing over the body with an automatic revolver in his hand. He had a deep cut on his left forearm, which he said had been inflicted by Sayler. He said Sayler had attacked him with a hatchet. Dr. Miller, Mrs. Sayler, and her father, who was in the house were taken into custody together. Mrs. Sayler testified defiantly at the Coroner's inqust held the next day, and all three were indicted.

Four days before the shooting Mrs. L. Cora Miller, the doctor's wife, had left Crescent City with her son to go to her parents at Blairsville, Penn. She gave out a statement that for two years Mrs. Sayler had pursued her husband, and that she had maintained social relations with her rival to avoid scandal. Mrs. Sayler, she said, had joined her husband on out-of-town trips. Mrs. Miller said that she would support her husband in his trouble and contribute to his defense for the sake of their son. She declared that she had begged Mrs. Sayler on several occasions to let her husband alone, and said that she had left him as a last means of testing his affection. She believed, she said, that he would come to Blairsville after her and promise to keep away from Mrs. Sayler.

HAVANA WELCOMES WOOD.

Ex-Governor Meets Old Friends—Gomez to Entertain Him.

HAVANA, April 11.—The United States armored cruiser Montana having on board Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who is the special United States Envoy to the Argentine Republic's centenary celebration at Buenos Ayres, arrived here this afternoon. Before the cruiser reached her buoy she was surrounded by a welcoming flotilla of yachts, tugs, and launches, bearing national and municipal officials, a delegation of Spanish war veterans, the United States Consular officers, and representatives of various commercial bodies.

Gen. and Mrs. Wood held an informal reception on the quarterdeck, which was thronged with visitors anxious to welcome the ex-Governor. The General said he was delighted to revisit Havana, and was especially pleased to renew acquaintances with so many dear friends and colleagues of his administration. Prominent among these was Dr. Guiteras, chief of the Sanitary Service.

This evening Gen. Wood, Rear Admiral Staunton, commander of the special service squadron on the Montana; Capt. Quinby, commanding the cruiser; Consul General Rodgers, and others were the guests at dinner of American Minister Jackson. Gen. Wood will be entertained to-morrow at breakfast by the Havana Yacht Club, and in the afternoon a reception will be given by President Gomez. There will be an official banquet at the palace in the evening.

The scout cruiser Chester is expected here to-morrow, and on Wednesday afternoon the Montana and Chester will sail for Rio Janeiro.

ALBANIANS GO HOME.

Turkey Will Consider Their Demands if They Remain Good.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 11.—The Albanian insurgents have settled their differences with the Turkish Government and have dispersed to their homes, according to an official dispatch received to-day from Pristina.

The Government has promised to consider the Albanians' grievances and to comply with any reasonable demands if the rebels remain peaceful.

The New American Bishops.

ROME, April 11.—The Pope to-day ratified the nominations of the Consistory as presented to him by Cardinal de Lai, appointing Abbot Vincent Wehrle of the Monastery of St. Mary as Bishop of the new Diocese of Bismarck, N. SHOOTS CHUM'S WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF

Dr. Blackburn Was a College Rival of Dr. Getty for Girl Latter Won.

BOTH PROBABLY WILL DIE

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 11.—Dr. Mark Blackburn of Wilson, Penn., a member of one of the prominent families of Western Pennsylvania, shot down Mrs. Violet Getty, wife of Dr. W. G. Getty of Hyndman, Penn., his chum, at 7:30 o'clock to-night, and then shot himself. Mrs. Getty is at the Allegheny General Hospital, and probably will not recover. Dr. Blackburn is at the Homeopathic Hospital. He is not expected to live until morning.

The shooting occurred at 108 Ninth Street, here, the home of Mrs. Mary Mars, mother of Mrs. Getty, whom she had been visiting. Blackburn had been jealous, it is said, since his graduating day, when him chum and college classmate, Dr. Getty, announced his engagement to Violet Mars. That was seven years ago, but after Getty and the young woman were married Dr. Blackburn visited their home regularly.

This morning Mrs. Getty came from Hyndman to her mother's home, and Dr. Blackburn saw her on the street this afternoon. He walked to her mother's house with her and went into the parlor as an old friend of the family.

"Violet, I'm going to Milwaukee to-night, and I want you to go with me," Mrs. Mars says she heard Dr. Blackburn say to her daughter, and as Mrs. Mars hurried toward the door leading into the front room she met her daughter rushing out.

"The doctor's crazy or he has been drinking," said Mrs. Getty. Then, Mrs. Mars says, she heard Dr. Blackburn shout after Mrs. Getty that he would go up the street, get a revolver, and come back. He slammed the door and went away.

Later Dr. Blackburn returned and rang the bell. Mrs. Getty declined to open the door and telephoned for the police. She then returned to the door and shouted at Dr. Blackburn to go away.

"I won't go without you, dead or alive," shouted Blackburn.

Mrs. Getty refused to open the door, and Blackburn fired through the glass. He then opened the door through the break in the glass and shot Mrs. Getty twice more as she lay on the floor, then shot himself twice. Three minutes later the police arrived.

Blackburn is a son of Mrs. R. M. Blackburn of Wilson, a suburb of Pittsburg, and the family is one of the oldest and wealthiest in that section. His father made a fortune in the grain business there. The physician is about 35 years old and had studied to be a dentist, but although he got his degree he is not known to have practiced. Instead, he was employed recently as a Superintendent of a coal mine at Kaylor, Penn.

Three brothers who visited the hospital to see him to-night would make no comment on the shooting.

BOY FIGHTER BAILED OUT.

Only Manslaughter Indictment Expected—Opponent in School Fight Buried.

Frank Kaiser of Garfield, N. J., charged with having delivered a fatal knockout blow on Gilbert Trehou in a prizefight near their home town on Tuesday of last week, was released from Hackensack Jail yesterday afternoon. Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker fixed the bail at $5,000, which was furnished by Mayor John Karl, John T. Harrop, President of the Board of Education; John Subeck, Dr. George S. Davenport, and Alexander Angessy, all of Garfield.

Kaiser, who is about 5 feet in height and weighs less than 100 pounds, was arrested in Wilmington, Del., and was taken to Hackensack Jail on Saturday midnight. He denied that the fight with Trehou was to settle a grudge, as had been stated. Mayor Karl said the whole town of Garfield was in mourning for both families. He characterized the affair as a most unfortunate one, an unexpected outcome of a boys' fight, thousands of which occur every day. "The sympathy of the borough goes out to both their families," he said.

Gilbert Trehou, the dead High School victim, was buried yesterday afternoon. The Presbyterian Church was crowded. The Rev. James Scott Young, pastor, conducted the service.

Prosecutor Wright of Hackensack said the Bergen County Grand Jury would not consider the case until next week. It is the general opinion that Kaiser will only be indicted for manslaughter.

Blow from Baseball Kills a Boy.

As a result of being struck on the head by a baseball while playing on the street Rudolph Ruhling, 15 years old, died at his home, 183 Avenue A, yesterday morning. The boy did not feel the injury at first, but later in the day he complained of pains, and a surgeon's services was found unavailing.

Some Mistaken Ideas About that Marvelous Instrument The PIANOLA

Some people, considering the purchase of a piano player, purposely avoid hearing the Pianola. Often because of an impression of too high a price. Many times because competitive arguments have prevailed against investigation.

In some cases, because the name "Pianola" has been taken to mean any piano player—an impression rarely corrected by other makers. In every instance because the facts were not known about the Pianola.

Not Prohibitive in Price

Pre-eminently the world's greatest piano concern is the Aeolian Company—sole manufacturers and owners of Pianolas and Pianola Pianos.

At Aeolian Hall—a twelve story structure at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street—you will find quality pianos in every grade, with the pianola attachment.

From the "Steinway" and "Weber" to the famous "Steck," the high-grade "Wheelock" and the modest-priced but reliable "Stuyvesant" is the range of choice offered.

Better values than these are not possible the world over. And such terms of payment may be arranged as are possible for any other reputable manufacturer to offer.

Nowhere can a piano be purchased to greater advantage than of the Aeolian Company.

Pianola—The Greatest Player

Always has the Pianola marked the furthest advance in the field of piano players.

Each detail represents the highest present day attainment in that particular detail—no matter what may be its function.

In construction, no instrument was ever made more substantially, or with finer care. Simplicity and strength are the basic principles on which the Pianola is built. Every separate part has withstood a test for durability more severe than many years of wear.

Pianolas and Pianola Pianos

The Pianola is attachable to any piano. When hand playing is desired, it is only necessary to remove it from the keyboard.

The Pianola Piano is a specially constructed upright piano with the Pianola built into it. The advantage of this is greater convenience, and economy of space.

No other piano player so readily lends itself to the individuality of the operator. None even approximates the effects secured through those rare mechanical achievements, the Metrostyle and the Themodist.

What the METROSTYLE Is

The Metrostyle is a device, exclusive with the Pianola, which permits the correct playing of any composition, by anyone.

It does more. It assures an artistic performance—often the composer's own interpretation. And its operation is simple.

All that is necessary is to follow with a pointer the tracing of a red line on the music roll. A slight wrist motion is sufficient to furnish accurate guidance.

Thus with the Metrostyle true expression is the simplest thing imaginable. After the true expression is heard, individual interpretation may be given if it pleases most.

About the THEMODIST

It is the Themodist that eliminates all possibilities of the Pianola being adjudged "mechanical."

Its work is to bring out the melody and subdue the accompaniment. The performer can regulate the degree of accent on any single note or group of notes—another opportunity for expression of individuality.

In a word, the Themodist provides governable touch. Thus it overcomes a defect that has always kept the ordinary piano player in the rank of mechanical instruments.

A Visit to Aeolian Hall

If you are at all interested in piano players, it will pay you to visit Aeolian Hall.

Here demonstrations of the Pianola are gladly given, and without entailing the slightest obligation.

From a library of some 15,000 selections, you may have your favorites played. Or, if you choose, you may play them yourself.

Expert playing is not necessary to show the merits of the Pianola—something to remember when investigating other piano players.

ROOSEVELT GETS PINCHOT'S STORY

All-Day Conference at Porto Maurizio Yesterday, to be Continued To-day.

MAY CALL ROOT AND LODGE

Belief That the ex-President Will Seek Further Advice—Taft Speaks of Him as "President."

By JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.
Former Assistant Secretary of State.
Correspondent of The New York Times and Chicago Tribune.

Copyright, 1910, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PORTO MAURIZIO, April 11. — No event in Col. Roosevelt's trip has been of greater importance or interest to the American people than the conference between Mr. Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot, the deposed Chief Forester of the United States Department of Agriculture, held here to-day.

It was a lovely day, with brilliant sunshine and a breeze softly whispering through the palm and olive leaves. It seemed to be a setting for a peaceful idyll rather than for the Homeric tale of human conflict that Mr. Pinchot told. But, full as Mr. Pinchot was with the subject, and with Mr. Roosevelt, militant as of old, strengthened by battles with the beasts of the jungle and desirous of learning from a tried friend who had been a member of his "Tennis Cabinet" his views of what had transpired in the United States during his long absence, the beautiful scene was forgotten and the two wrestled mentally with the same forces and discussed the same great evils with which they had dealt while one was the Chief Executive of the United States and the other the head of the Forestry Bureau.

When Mr. Pinchot returned to the Riviera Palace Hotel after an all-day conference, his face wore a smile outshining that on President Taft's face the day of Mr. Taft's election to the Presidency. It is, of course, impossible to state in detail what Mr. Pinchot said to Mr. Roosevelt or what Mr. Roosevelt said to Mr. Pinchot. It is only known that Mr. Pinchot observed his usual policy in makin no attack on President Taft.

No Time Lost.

Mr. Pinchot had an early breakfast, and by 9 o'clock was at Miss Carow's villa, where he was greeted by Miss Carow, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, and Kermit Roosevelt, and, accompanied by them, walked to the Villa Raphis, a short distance away. Mrs. Roosevelt was in the garden enjoying the fragrance of the flowers, and when she caught sight of Mr. Pinchot she greeted him in the usually pleasant manner with which she receives an old friend. While she was chatting with Mr. Pinchot, Col. Roosevelt emerged from the house.

"Hello, Gifford!" he shouted. Mr. Pinchot immediately hastened to him, and the two men shook hands. Col. Roosevelt asked the ex-Forester to excuse him for "a moment," and then turned to a stenographer and began dictating from a pile of letters and cablegrams lying on his table. The "moment" he asked for turned out to be an hour, Mr. Pinchot passing the time talking with the Roosevelts and picking out varieties of trees not known in America. Then Mr. Pinchot and the ex-President began the discussion to which both had looked forward, Mr. Pinchot speaking with all the earnestness of an enthusiast and Mr. Roosevelt listening with the deep interest of a man who had inaugurated policies which had promised to be of such inestimable value to the people of America.

The conference continued during luncheon at Miss Carow's home and during a long walk and ride over the mountains in the afternoon. Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Carow, and Mr. Abbott accompanied Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Pinchot, but they had no share in the discussion, contenting themselves with enjoying the beauties of nature and leaving their companions to ramble alone and converse on matters of such vital interest, not only to themselves, but to all Americans.

The conference did not end to-day, but will be resumed to-morrow, the indications being that there are certain further facts which Mr. Roosevelt desires to ascertain and which were suggested by Mr. Pinchot's conversation.

Both Decline to Talk.

I asked Mr. Roosevelt this evening if he had anything to say with reference to the revelations of his former subordinate. He answered:

"I personally an very much attached to Mr. Pinchot. I was very glad to see him and listened to everything he had to say, as I shall listen to any friend of mine on any side of any public question. We came to no conclusion and shall come to no conclusion. I shall make no statement after any other conference I may have."

Beaming as Mr. Pinchot appeared to be, his feelings were expressed in no other words than these: "I have nothing to say."

The refusal of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Pinchot to talk does not, nevertheless, prevent me from saying that the ex-President is as deeply interested in all questions relating to the conservation of American resources as when he was in the White House. He feels that it is vital, for the present as well as for future generations, that the policies he inaugurated in this connection shall be carried to fruition. He thought when he retired from the Presidency that such a splendid impetus had been given to these policies that they could be regarded as fixed principles, and as such loyally observed and carried out. He firmly believes that the people now realize the importance of the things he advocated and will insist upon their accomplishment in every respect.

The Same Old Roosevelt.

In a word, the Roosevelt of to-day is the Roosevelt of yesterday and the same practical idealist that he has always been. No one can say when he will deliver his arguments on the events that have transpired since he left America.

I am satisfied that Mr. Roosevelt, before making his position definitely known, will want to see others—such men as Senator Root and Senator Lodge, so that when he speaks it will be as a result of calm, deliberate conclusions reached after full consideration of the facts and the views of both sides.

While Mr. Pinchot was conferring with Mr. Roosevelt in Porto Maurizio the Mayor of the town received President Taft's cabled reply to yesterday's telegram. It assured the Italian people of the gratitude of all Americans for the reception accorded to "our most distinguished citizen." It was an extremely tactful thing for President Taft to do, not only in connection with Mr. Roosevelt, but because of the gratifying effect it has produced throughout Italy.

The Taft message announced the receipt of the telegram with reference to "President Roosevelt," which may have been a mistake in transmission, but which those who know say is the way President Taft has always referred to his predecessor. However this may be, the Americans and Italians here are speculating whether or not it was President Taft's intention in cabling as he did to show America and Europe that he has not any other feeling than that of affection for Mr. Roosevelt and desires to give world-wide evidence to this effect.

Mr. Roosevelt did not learn of President Taft's telegram until after his talk with Mr. Pinchot. He refused to make any comment on it beyond expressing his appreciation both of the municipality and of the President in exchanging such courteous messages about himself.

Kansas Invitation Accepted.

Col. Roosevelt has accepted the invitation of Gov. Stubbs of Kansas to attend the dedication of the new park on the site of John Brown's battlefield in the latter part of August. His programme in England between May 18 and June 10 is practically complete. It includes dinners with King Edward and Ambassador Reid, luncheons with Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, luncheons with John Redmond, T. P. O'Connor, and other Irish members of Parliament, week-end visits at the Reids' country place, the acceptance of the freedom of the city of London, visits to Arthur Lee, M. P., and F. C. Selous, the well-known hunter, the reception of a degree from Cambridge University, the delivery of a Romanes lecture, &c.

Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt will not go to Venice, Vienna, or Budapest. They will remain here a few days, and then visit in Southern France, and will rejoin Mr. Roosevelt and Kermit Roosevelt in Paris.

Mr. Pinchot will depart on Wednesday for a visit to a friend in Zurich who is interested in forestry.

A suspicious-appearing person who gave the name of Magagna was arrested to-day by a Secret Service agent near Miss Carow's villa. He said he wanted to present to Mr. Roosevelt a letter written by himself, asking for employment. He first represented himself as a gardener, and then as a detective. No weapon was found on him. The police, who are investigating his record, believe he is partially insane.

SETH BULLOCK INVITED.

South Dakota Marshal Is to Meet Mr. Roosevelt in England.

DEADWOOD, S. D., April 11.—United States Marshal Seth Bullock of this city, for many years an intimate friend of Col. Roosevelt, has received by mail an invitation to join the ex-President in England.

Mr. Bullock is reticent as to the contents of the letter, but admits that he will meet Col. Roosevelt in London about May 2.

FLOWER-DELUGED CARRIAGE.

Italian Villagers Enthusiastic—Text of Mr. Taft's Telegram.

PORTO MAURIZIO, April 11.—While both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Pinchot decline to say anything regarding their conference, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary to-night gave to the anxious newspapermen a long and graphic account of how the party drove through the olive orchards of the picturesque Caramagna Valley and then climbed six miles up the winding road to the famous little chapel, once visited by Charlemagne on his way to be crowned at Rome, which contains interesting relics of the old Mediterranean galley slaves and votive offerings of sailors. He also told how enthusiastic the villagers were as the party was returning, crowding about the carriage and fairly deluging it with wild flowers.

When pressed about the subject of the long conversation between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Pinchot, the secretary announced, without a smile, that it consisted largely of reminiscences and hunting stories, gravely confiding the information that Mr. Pinchot was almost as good a shot as his former chief.

Mr. Pinchot will see the ex-President again to-morrow, and expects to leave here in the evening for Zurich, where he is to meet an old forester friend. From there he will go to England to visit Sir Horace Plunkett of the Department of Agriculture in Ireland. He will sail for New York on the Baltic on April 30.

When Mr. Roosevelt got back to the villa this evening he found two Franciscan friars in long brown cowls, who had come to present their respects.

Ex-Mayor Phelan of San Francisco telegraphed from Monte Carlo this afternoon that he would call on Mr. Roosevelt to-morrow.

The text of the telegram from President Taft to the Mayor of Porto Maurizio is as follows:

> I have received your courteous telegram announcing that President Roosevelt arrived last night, and was received with enthusiasm by the whole population and that your city was proud to welcome him. In reply I assure you and your countrymen that the American people are very grateful for and greatly appreciative of the reception which Italians, from the Sovereign to the humblest subject, have accorded to our most distinguished citizen.

Mr. Roosevelt's mail continues to be very heavy. To-day's included a letter from H. D. W. English, President of the Pittsburg Civil Commission, transmitting the first Grand Jury presentment resulting from the two years' fight against municipal graft. The writer attributes the ultimate exposures to Mr. Roosevelt's action in sending Bank Examiner Nesbit to examine Pittsburg banks suspected of handling funds that were used to influence legislation.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—While the cablegram from the Mayor of Porto Maurizio to President Taft was received at the White House yesterday and the President's reply was immediately forwarded by cable, the text of the two cablegrams was not made public here until shortly before noon to-day.

In answer to the Mayor's cablegram President Taft paid Col. Roosevelt a delicate compliment by referring to him as "President Roosevelt," and not as "former President Roosevelt." He further paid to the ex-President the honor of being "our most distinguished citizen"—a title heretofore popularly credited only to the President of the United States in office.

In cabling to President Taft the Italian Mayor said:

"Col. Roosevelt arrived last night at Porto Maurizio and was received enthusiastically by the whole population. Porto Maurizio is proud to welcome the great American citizen, and sends to the President of the United States its heartiest greetings."

LEGISLATURE TO TAKE PART.

Resolution in Senate at Albany Regarding Welcome to Roosevelt.

ALBANY, April 11.—That the Legislature intends to participate in the welcome home to Col. Roosevelt was indicated to-night by the adoption by the Senate of a resolution offered by Senator Davis of Buffalo providing for the appointment of a committee of seven Senators and ten members of the Assembly "to assist in the ceremonies and to represent the Legislature in the greeting to be extended to Mr. Roosvelt."

Two thousand dollars is appropriated for expenses.

WANT HIM TO HONOR AMERIGO.

People of Saint-Die Send an Invitation to Col. Roosevelt.

SAINT DIE, France, April 11.—A pressing invitation has been sent to Mr. Roosevelt to attend the ceremony of placing a tablet on the old house (formerly a little college) in which the "Cosmographiae Introductio," the book in which it was first proposed to call the new world America, was printed in 1507.

This work, which is now extremely rare, says: "And the fourth part of the world having been discovered by Americus, [Amerigo Vespucci,] it may be called Amerige, that is, the land of Americus, or America."

Surety Companies Pay the State.

ALBANY, April 11.—Attorney General O'Malley announced to-night that the State had received from the surety companies which were on the bonds of the failed Union Bank of rBooklyn and the Borough Bank of Brooklyn the sums of $24,000 and $50,000, State moneys held by the respective banks when they closed last week. In return the surety companies accepted an assignment of the accounts of the State against the banks.

GOV. FORT ANGRY; TELLS MAN HE 'LIED'

Loses His Temper at Hearing on a Bill to Regulate Practice of Osteopathy.

DEFENDS THE NEW SCHOOL

Dr. Halsey, Attacked by the Governor, Attempts to Explain, but Does Not Get a Chance.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—Gov. Fort lost his temper twice to-day during a hearing he gave on the Remsay bill, regulating the practice of osteopathy. Old-line doctors favor the bill, the osteopaths oppose it.

Mr. Lewis, counsel for the New Jersey Medical Society, was urging the Governor to sign the bill and declared the Governor had said in a public speech that he would do anything in his power as Governor to maintain the high standards of the medical profession in New Jersey.

"I never made any such remark as that. Who told you this?" demanded the Governor.

"I have it on very good authority," was the evasive answer.

"Who is your authority?" insisted the Governor.

"Dr. Halsey," was the reply. Dr. Halsey is Dr. Luther Halsey of Williamstown, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the State Medical Society.

"Oh!" exclaimed the Governor. "I thought I was getting pretty close to the spot. You have been lying about me," continued the Governor, shaking his index finger at Dr. Halsey.

"This is not the first time," the Governor went on. "You lied about me before I was a candidate for Governor and have continued doing so ever since I have been Governor. You are the only man who has tried to bulldoze me into signing this bill."

Dr. Halsey, his face bloodless, attempted to explain, but there was such a hubbub in the room that the Governor declared the hearing adjourned.

Dr. William J. Schauffler of Lakewood had previously drawn the Governor's fire. In speaking in favor of the bill the doctor narrated an incident which he said demonstrated the fallibility of osteopathic practitioners.

"What's the use talking like that to me," the Governor broke in. "We are all liable to make mistakes, and the medical fraternity is not exempt. I have known many instances in which the diagnosis of physicians have been at fault. The gentleman who has just spoken has himself told me that he has had patients whom he sent to osteopaths for treatment. His own wife is one of them. I am another. When I had a broken rib last year Dr. Schauffler himself advised me to consult a osteopath. It is pretty generally believed the bill will be vetoed."

McCURDY PROPERTY SOLD.

New York Man Reported to Have Paid $50,000 for the Estate.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 11.—A local real estate broker has sold the Robert H. McCurdy property at Morris Plains. The place consists of twenty acres, laid out like a park, with a finely appointed dwelling house, greenhouses, garage, stables, and gardener's cottage. The purchase price is reported as being $50,000. Mr. McCurdy spent upward of $100,000 on it.

The broker refused to divulge the name of the purchaser, but said it was a wealthy New York City man.

Shakespeare! 20 Volumes

Incomparably the best Shakespeare in the world. The first printing from new plates. Complete in 20 volumes. Size of volumes, 5½x8½ inches. Published by the well-known New York subscription publishers, Bigelow, Smith & Co., who were engaged in its preparation for nearly three years, expending over $20,000 before the work was ready for the press. During recent years in America probably the three most extensively advertised and most widely sold editions of Shakespeare have been the Booklovers, the Morris and the Temple, in all of which the notes are at the end of each play, with no references to notes in the text. In the Booklovers and the Morris Editions there are two sets of notes at the back, which force the reader to turn to the back of the volume to hunt until the desired note is found, if it ever is found. Comment is unnecessary upon this vexatious, impractical arrangement of notes. In Bigelow, Smith & Co.'s new edition, through enormous expense of typesetting, the notes appear properly at the bottom of each page, where they belong for the obvious convenience of the reader, and, moreover, every one of the thousands of notes bear the initials of the commentator, so that one may know the exact authority for each explanatory statement. General readers as well as students will appreciate this commonsense aid in reading Shakespeare.

Most Completely Annotated Edition Ever Issued

The notes and critical comments accompanying each play are by Dowden, Brandes, Lloyd, Hazlitt, Ulrici, Dyce, Coleridge, White, Mrs. Jamieson and all the world's great Shakespearean scholars. A brief synopsis, written expressly for this edition, precedes each play. At the end of each play are study questions modeled upon a University Shakespearean course, affording the fullest help to the student or casual reader searching for information.

The illustrations of this 20-volume Edition de Luxe include 170 full-page reproductions in photogravure and mezzogravure of celebrated Shakespearean paintings by great artists. These brilliant pictures are unrivaled for beauty and artistic merit. The type is a beautiful new Scotch face, large Pica or 12 point size.

New and exquisitely illustrated Edition de Luxe of Prose and Poetical Works, including his translation of Dante's Divine Comedy. In 10 beautiful volumes, nearly 5,000 pages.

The type: It is the only large type edition of Longfellow, and is carefully printed from new plates. The paper is a pure white wove of extra quality. The illustrations include 83 beautiful full-page reproductions in photogravure and duotone (two colors) from original paintings of distinguished modern artists.

The notes: In addition to the author's own notes there are numerous notes by the well-known critic and author, Mr. Charles Welsh. It should be stated here that there is no absolutely complete set of Longfellow. The most important poem omitted from the present edition, because of certain copyright restrictions, is "The Hanging of the Crane," which, however, is sold in various cheap editions. On the other hand, this new edition contains, besides the original editorial matter referred to, a great deal of Longfellow's prose and poetical writings not obtainable in any other edition. For example, we have here for the first time in book form "The Bald Eagle" and "The Indian Summer," two brilliant stories written in the author's best style. Therefore it may be safely stated that this is by far the most satisfactory set of Longfellow ever published.

Dumas!

Alexandre Dumas is declared by countless enthusiastic admirers to be the prince of romancers. He carries along the reader, breathless with interest, through plots and counterplots, ingenious intrigues, humorous situations, and never-ending adventures, all told with inimitable wit and dialogue. Booklovers should not confound this new Edition de Luxe with the numerous very incomplete sets of Dumas, which omit many of his most brilliant novels. Probably the world will never see an absolutely complete set of Dumas, for it is impossible to discern positively all of Dumas's own writings from those to which he allowed his name to be placed, although written by others in the "Dumas Syndicate of Authors." The present new edition, however, contains all of the recognized masterpieces of Dumas, about 13,000 pages, and therefore may be called practically complete—the most satisfactory set ever issued in English—the best translations.

Illustrated with numerous duotones in two colors; the type, paper and presswork are excellent.

Three-quarter leather binding, marbled sides, full gold backs, gold tops. 18 volumes.
Sub. Price, $80.00. Sale Price, $19.50

Oscar Wilde!

A great Poet, Playwright, Novelist and Essayist. Literature presents few more remarkable careers than that of Oscar Wilde. While yet a student at Oxford his poems were compared with those of Tennyson. In 1882, when only twenty-six years old, his lecture tour of America netted him over $50,000. He was undoubtedly the greatest playwright of his time. This only complete authorized edition de luxe is now for the first time made accessible for American readers by special arrangement with Wilde's literary executor, Mr. Robert Ross, and with the London publishers, Methuen & Co. The plates of this edition, which were imported from England, are the same as those of the rare English edition issued by Methuen & Co., of which only a few sets found their way to America, to be quickly bought up by bibliophiles at $75 and upward per set. Space here permits mention of only a few more important titles, such as the Duchess of Padua (first complete edition), Intentions and other Essays, complete; Poems, Ravenna, The Sphinx, Ballad of Reading Gaol, the Harlot's House, and all poems complete, including many never before published; Lady Windermere's Fan, A Woman of No Importance, Florentine Tragedies, Vera, The Nihilists, Salome, and all other plays complete; The Picture of Dorian Grey, A House of Pomegranates, The Happy Prince, Lord Arthur Saville's Crime, and all other tales and novels complete; Reviews and Miscellanies, newly collected and published for the first time. 10 volumes.

The type of these English plates is extra large and handsome, printed on superfine white wove paper, with the Aldus de luxe water-mark. The illustrations in photogravure and half-tone are from original drawings. Cloth binding, vellum labels, gold tops, uncut edges.

Pepys' Diary!

New Edition de Luxe. Printed from new large type, with 100 full-page reproductions in half-tone and photogravure. This entirely new edition should not be confounded with sets sold at a similar or higher price, but which are printed from old, wornout, broken type plates. For the first time a limited number of booklovers may enjoy at a trifling outlay the same pleasure as the wealthy bibliophile who has spent years and perhaps thousands of dollars in collecting engravings for his beloved Pepys.

The type is new, large and clear and the text is that of the famous Lord Braybrooke edition. The paper is a soft white, antique white wove stock, with title pages printed on Japanese vellum in two colors. The illustrations are mounted on plate paper, with protecting tissues, on which the titles and sources of the illustrations are given. The binding is a luxurious three-quarter Persian leather of a rich dark color, with gold tops, and gold backs, with marbled sides and linings. This set is complete in four volumes.
Sub. Price, $25.00. Sale Price, $6.25

SAYS CAPITAL MUST RECOGNIZE UNIONS

Seth Low in Philadelphia Declares Refusal to Confer Causes Many Strikes.

AGAINST SYMPATHY STRIKES

Asserts Also That So-Called Open Shop Is Too Often Merely a Shop Closed to Union Men.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Before the Contemporary Club here to-day Seth Low of New York, after declaring that to discuss such a subject in Philadelphia at this time was "like handling a live wire," offered some suggestions on how to prevent strikes.

"You often hear," said Mr. Low, "that labor combines because capital combines, as if the object of labor in combining were to antagonize capital and to fight it. The fact is, I believe, that labor combines for the same reason that capital does—not primarily to antagonize anybody, but because most men in our day appreciate the advantage of working with others. It is a mere accident of the situation that labor and capital at times conflict because at a given moment their interests appear to be opposed. Neither capital nor labor organizes for the purpose of antagonizing the other.

"I have used the expressions 'capital' and 'labor,' but I ask you to consider the question of a strike from the point of view of the stockholders and of the laborers. The stockholders, when they form a corporation, act upon the legal right to be represented by officers of their own choice in everything that they do as stockholders. The laborers, when they organize, claim the same right to be represented, as sellers of labor, by officials of their own choice in collective bargaining for their labor. When the stockholders, through their elected officials, decline to confer with a labor union through its elected officials, the stockholders are put in the position of virtually saying to the laborers: 'We insist upon all the privileges of combination for ourselves, but we claim the right to deal with our laborers as individuals.' And thus they deny to organized laborers the benefits of collective bargaining which they demand for themselves.

"It is entirely clear that stockholders, when they do this through their elected officials, are acting within their legal rights, but it is equally clear that they are acting very inconsistently. A certain percentage of strikes are caused by precisely this attitude on the part of corporations. This attitude is so illogical that I do not believe it can be permanently maintained, and I think that the disinterested public is becoming more and more impatient with the attitude of corporations that permit strikes to take place simply by declining o confer with a union. Strikes no doubt wil ltake place because of disagreement on the merits, even after such conferences are held; but a strike upon the merits of a dispute settles something. So does an arbitration upon the merits; but a refusal to confer settles nothing."

Mr. Low went on to say that an "open shop" should mean a shop in which union labor and non-union labor is employed indiscriminately, and in which the union labor so employed is granted all the privileges of collective bargaining that it enjoys anywhere.

"This," he said, "is the case on most of the railroads and in the anthracite coal fields. But there are some employers who claim to maintain an open shop, who will employ union men only upon the condition that they will forego their privilege of collective bargaining, and their right to be represented in all matters relating to their employment by the officers of their union. Such a shop, though called an open shop, is just as distinctly closed to union labor as a union shop generally is closed to non-union labor.

"As long as union labor insists that a union shop shall be closed to non-union labor, it cannot wonder that shops employing non-union labor are often virtually closed to it; for this fact often makes it difficult for the two elements to work side by side. To me, as a friend of union labor, it seems as if the wiser policy for organized labor would be to encourage the true open shop; for this policy would tend to unite all labor; whereas the present policy of shutting out non-union labor wherever possible divides the ranks of labor."

Mr. Low went on to condemn the sympathetic strike.

"I speak with reserve," he said, "as to the situation in Philadelphia during the early days of the car strike; but the impression which I obtained at a distance distinctly is that the striking car men lost their opportunity to secure arbitration when they threatened the city wih a sympahetic strike. No American community is likely to yield to threats. The sympathetic strike, like the secondary boycott, is so cruel in its effects upon innocent people, and so unphilosouhic as between fellow-citizens, that neither can hope to command the support of public opinion, that intangible force that now controls in all civilized communities.

"While this local car strike has been involving the business of Philadelphia in chaos, and putting numberless citizens to inconvenience and loss, situations quite as serious, and perhaps more so, were threatened upon the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and upon all steam roads lying west of Chicago. Both of these controversies were settled under the Erdman act—an act of Congress passed in 1898. It is significant that there have been many successful instances of mediation and conciliation under the Erdman act. So far as I can recall, there has not been one case of arbitration. So far as experience under this act goes, therefore, mediation and conciliation in advance, to prevent a breach, are much more effective than arbitration after the breach has come.

I think every State should have a law relating to public service corporations, at least as effective as the Erdman act.

"The employers, in my judgment, cannot hope for industrial peace as long as they demand for themselves privileges of combination which they will not grant to their employes. The employes, on the other hand, cannot expect a relationship between themselves and their employers which is satisfactory, so long as they strive to bring about this relationship, not on their merits, but by coercing the community to take their part. They ought to encourage all legislation which will make public opinion a direct factor in the settlement of industrial disputes; because, so far as their claim is just, public opinion is certain to be on their side so long as their rights are denied. Beyond this, they must strive to make the regulations of their unions so reasonable, that employers, instead of being afraid of them, will turn to them, because through unions they can get better service than in any other way.

"If that day comes, when employers use union labor by preference, it will not be long before all the devices of stock ownershop, pension funds, and the like, which are now sometimes offered to workmen in order to win them from their unions, will be made available to them because they are members of unions."

ETNA'S DUST IN ANTILLES.

The Avon Found an Ashy Haze Over West Indian Waters.

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Avon, returning yesterday from her 4,000-mile cruise to the West Indies, landed 272 bronzed tourists laden with parrots, monkeys, sugar cane, and all kinds of tropical products. The liner was delayed three hours owing to a strong northwest gale, which blew hard all day Sunday.

Cpat. Dickinson said that since the Avon left New York on March 25 there had been frequent thunderstorms at night, with vivid lightning, but no rain. There was every sign of volcanic and seismic disturbance in the atmosphere.

Chief Officer Adam said: "For nine days after leaving New York the sun appeared very small and of a blood red color until 11 A. M. There was a fine haze on the water, which subsequently appeared to be fine volcanic dust. At first it was thought that there had been another explosion of Mont Pelée, Martinique, but we had no doubt afterward that it came from Mount Etna.

"When we left Santiago de Cuba on April 2 the whole coast was obscured with this haze, and the Kingston pilot, when he came on board at Yallah's Point, said he had never experienced anything like it except the two days previous to the Kingston earthquake. Last Wednesday black rain fell heavily in Bermuda, and the sultry stillness of the air seemed to portend subterranean disturbance."

The Avon will sail to-day at 2 P. M. for Southampton direct to take her place on the regular South American station, sailing for Buenos Ayres on April 29.

Among the tourists who returned yesterday were Prof. and Mrs. H. H. Britan and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Fisher, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. C. W. Moffatt, New York; Capt. A. Piddington, Ottawa; Col. E. H. Taylor, Chicago; Col. Simon Seward, Judge J. D. Teller, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Sanderson, New York; Sir Hugo Fitzherbert, Miss Fitzherbert, Major Gen. Hugh Barton, and Alfred S. Williams, Deputy Chairman of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company.

An area of discolored water, indicating a disturbance of the sea bottom, was reported by the British steamer Pola, which arrived yesterday from Huelva, Spain. Capt. Bennett says the strange patch of water was sighted on March 28. The area was glassy and the surface indicated that mud or earthy substance had been thrown up from the sea floor. The patch was 400 feet long and 100 feet broad.

TWO HELD AS SWINDLERS.

Prisoners Collected Money for "City Athletic Club," Police Say.

Two men, who said they were Frank Stewart of 211 East Eleventh Street and Joseph Cassidy of 50 King Street, were arraigned before Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Court yesterday, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

The prisoners were arrested by Detectives Ticho and Wilber of the Central Office in front of 113 Wooster Street, and in Stewart's pocket was found a list of names of many merchants and business houses, with sums of money opposite each, some as high as $350.

The list was headed "The Municipal Athletic Building Fund, Hon. R. J. Wilson, President," which the paper stated was "under the auspices of the State Legislature, Committee on Finance." This was followed by the names of S. Wise, Edward Aldrich, T. Dougherty, N. R. Bradley, and T. N. McCormick. Heading the list was a statement, which read: "The bearer, Senator N. F. Bradley, is authorized to receive subscriptions for the new athletic building, which will open on July 4, 1910." It was signed, "R. J. Wilson, President," and bore a large red seal bearing the words, "United Democratic Club." Then followed a list of subscribers and the amounts given.

In the Tombs Court Magistrate Barlow held them for examination on Wednesday.

HARD TO TRAIN MEN TO BUILD AEROPLANES

Special Attention Required to Break in Each Worker in the Wrights' Dayton Factory.

FLIERS SOON FOR THE PUBLIC

But No Exhibitions Without Tribute to the Makers—Machine's Future as Wilbur Wright Sees It.

Wilbur Wright left for Dayton last night, where he will spend the next four weeks in superintending the manufacture of a number of aeroplanes for exhibition purposes. He stated yesterday that somewhere between twenty-five and fifty machines would be delivered this year on orders already booked, but the first lot of biplanes to come through will be turned over to Orville Wright, Roy Knabenshue, and other aviators employed by the exhibition company. Once the Wrights get their factory staff established and trained they will be ready to take orders for public delivery.

"The great difficulty at present," said Mr. Wright before leaving the city, "is to get the right kind of hands in our factory. We have got to teach each man his particular duty, and that takes a whole lot of time. As we break each man in we have also to train some employes for the duties of foremen for the various departments and shifts. All that requires much effort and considerable delay, so far as putting out finished aeroplanes is concerned.

"We propose to train enough men in aviation to make us independent of the foreign contestants in case they do not respond to the invitation to participate in our meets," continued Mr. Wright. "In addition to establishing a training camp for aviators in connection with our Dayton factory, we have a camp in Alabama, where we are getting results."

Mr. Wright expressed himself as thoroughly satisfied with the agreement that had been arrived at between the Wright Company and the Aero Club of America, whose terms were agreed upon Saturday, and signed yesterday by both parties. Mr. Wright said that hereafter no contests or meets would be sanctioned by the Aero Club unless their promoters had first obtained a license under the Wright patents.

Further than that, the Dayton inventor said, he and his brother would continue to proceed against any aviator who attempted to give mere exhibition flights without first getting permission from the Wrights, provided, of course, his machine were an infringing one. Inasmuch as the Aero Club cannot sanction any meets except those which permit open competition, any aviator who attempts to fly merely for the gate receipts will be confronted with a hard legal battle.

It may be stated on authority that the fee which the Ohio inventors will demand is 10 per cent. of the gross receipts of any meet they are asked to license. They will deal only with the promoters of the meet and not at all with the aviators engaged or entered to fly.

Mr. Wright said that the payment of this license fee by the managers of the meet would act as an acknowledgment of the validity of the Wright Company's patents on the part of all those who participated.

It is not, however, the idea of the Wrights at this time to permit an aviator to fly first at a licensed meet and then give exhibitions under that one license. A sweeping prohibition of mere exhibitions is, according to Mr. Wright, to continue if the Federal courts will grant the injunctions in the future as they have in the past.

"What I have said about the field of usefulness of an aeroplane being limited has been misunderstood," said Wilbur Wright yesterday. "I do not think that the heavier-than-air machine is going to compete with railroads and steamship lines as long-haul common carriers. Nor do I believe that it will fight for business that it is now the sphere of other implements to supply.

"But there are plenty of lanes of utility open to the aeroplane besides these. As a means for sport the aeroplane is already a well-recognized factor. Before very long, not more than a year or two, I think the biplane will compete with the automobile in favor of some as a sport-yielding device.

"Going further afield than this, however, the aeroplane will be used for military purposes—reconnoissance, inspections, dispatch bearing, and work of that kind—and may find its way into use as a mail carrier in remote districts. It will find use, too, as a means of opening up territory and lands that are now almost uninvadable. Perhaps the South African and South American forests will first be thoroughly surveyed and charted from the deck of an aeroplane. It may even be used for polar work.

"With the flight of time will come an advance in the stability of the machines and greater reliability of gasoline motors. Given an engine which can always be depended upon, and the solving of a few aerodynamical theories, which even yet bother us, and the aeroplane is bound to come into its own. As to just what that own will be I am not now prepared to say, but the ramified uses to which the heavier-than-air machine will some time be put will be a great surprise to many who now doubt its efficacy.

"One thing is certain. Through our invention far greater strides have been made in human flight than were made in automobile construction in three times the number of years since our patent was given to the world. We have already accomplished in five years more than the automobile industry did in the first fifteen years of its existence."

FIANCE WON'T CHANGE NAME.

Not a Condition to His Sharing in Bride's Fortune, Says Griffith.

Claude Maitland Griffith, a music teacher, denied yesterday that if he is to share in the wealth of Miss Lucy Fay of Worcester, Mass., to whom he is engaged, he will have to change his name to Fay.

"The engagement is a fact," said Mr. Griffith last night, "but there is no provision in Mr. Fay's will requiring that the man who marries his daughter must change his name to Fay. Miss Fay has been in New York for the last week, and left yesterday morning for her home in Worcester. When I called her attention to the statements in the newspapers this morning she said that her father's will contained no such provision."

Mr. Griffith and Miss Fay are to be married on June 8 and will make their home in New York City.

KILLED BY THIRD AVE. TRAIN.

Workman Did Not Hear the Express Until It Was Too Late.

Through his failure to hear a southbound Third Avenue express train Thomas F. Sheehan, a driller of 1,032 Kelly Street, the Bronx, was struck at Fifty-ninth Street yesterday morning and instantly killed. He was dragged about twenty yards and then hurled to the local tracks.

Sheehan was repairing the structure. Standing in the drip pan, over the street crossing, was Michael Duggan of 466 West Thirty-third Street. As the train approached all of the men got off the track, but Sheehan was too slow.

Special Officer Kellerman was on the station and carried the man to the platform. Dr. Ayres of Flower Hospital said Sheehan had been instantly killed. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

JOYOUS CIRCUS DAY FOR THE ORPHANS

Six Thousand of Them and Joey Pascucci Saw the Clowns and Elephants.

ALL THE WONDERS FREE

Little Ones from All the Children's Homes Invited There by Barnum & Bailey.

Six thousand seats were reserved yesterday afternoon by the management of the Barnum & Bailey circus for the special benefit of children from twenty-five different institutions and orphan asylums in and around this city.

In other words, it was Orphans' Day at the circus and it was bigger, more successful and more largely attended by little ones than any Orphans' Day in previous years. Incidentally, it was a day of mixed adventure—tragedy, comedy, laughter, and tears—for little Joey Pascucci.

Joey Pascucci, nine years old, lives at 210 East 111th Street. He goes to school every day, but between school and bedtime he spends his time at the club of the Church of St. Ambrose. The club, Joey explained, when his adventures had ended happily, is run "by Inglese ladies."

Well, the "Inglese ladies" had arranged to take the children of the club to the circus in response to Barnum & Bailey's general invitation to all the rulers and heads of child societies. Joey had heard of the approaching treat. He had dreamed of nothing else for days. He had never seen a real circus—and the big yellow and blue and red posters did not in the least diminish his inclination to see one.

Days ago he approached the teacher of his school with his hat in his hands and his feet uneasy and asked her if he could be excused from school on the afternoon of Monday, April 11. He had some idea that it would be necessary to kill off his grandmother or develop grip himself to get off. When the teacher noticed his trembling anxiety she asked him "what for." Before Joey thought of what might happen he blurted out something about "orphans" and a "circus." The teacher smiled and said:

"All right, Joey Pascucci, you are excused."

Joey was so happy that he couldn't sleep Sunday night, with the usual result. He overslept yesterday morning and was late for school on the one day of the year when he meant to be exemplary in his conduct. A teacher, you see, is apt to change her mind. She didn't, but Joey Pascucci had to be disciplined. He was kept in half an hour at recess.

Now, Joev Pascucci knew something he hadn't told the teacher. The children of the St. Ambrose Club were to meet promptly at 1 o'clock, when the "Inglese ladies" were to take them in the elevated train to Twenty-third Street, whence the "little children meek" were to march in double column to the circus doors.

When it got near the time that Joey should have been in line, his howls of grief attracted the teacher, who, learning what the complication was, patted Joey on the head and told him to "run." Joey went through the door of that public school like Comet A1.

When he got to the St. Ambrose Club he found that the "Inglese ladies" and the children had departed. Then Joey Pascucci sat down on the church steps and his voice rose to the heavens in a wail of anguish.

He sat there in profound misery for half an hour. Then some kind-hearted Samaritan—"a man," Joey said—stooped over the huddled little figure on the church steps and made inquiries as to the whyness of his great grief. Joey explained in a kind of serial to-be-continued-after-our-next-sob fashion. The "man" solved the immediate problem by producing a nickel and advising him to "hop on to the elevated and get off at Twenty-third." Joey needed no instructions.

He arrived at the circus doors forty-five minutes late. But he had arrived, and that was the main thing. His troubles, however, were not over. The policemen posted in front of the Garden, on account of the proximity of 6,000 children, thought Joey Pascucci was a "butt-in." That was the last straw. Joey's wail ascended even unto the gilded Diana. A sympathetic policeman thought the wail had a genuine ring to it and relented. He took Joey into the gates of the circus.

More trouble! The circus gateman was afraid to admit any child without some means of knowing to which "lot" he belonged, so he could be turned over to his proper guardians when the show was over. Which of 6,000 youngsters, all duly ticketed and numbered, was little Joey Pascucci?

More howls from Joey, for he could hear the laughter of the happy children inside swelling in crescendo like the roar of a juvenile Niagara.

One of the managers happened to pass about this time and heard Joey's tale of woe as related by the sympathetic policeman. The manager decided to look after Joey. After all his troubles the little Italian boy was planted in a box with a number of favored grown-ups, much to the amazement of a group of children on the other side of the Garden. The St. Ambrose Club, which had given up Joey Pascucci for lost, suddenly hailed his arrival with a shrill:

"Oh, look at Joey Pascucci!"

And Joey was happy at last, although there were traces of recent tears as he laughed at the clowns.

The circus was particularly bright and "gingery" yesterday afternoon on account of the child audience, which is always very responsive and uncritical. The clowns put on dozens of new tricks—that is, old tricks brought out of cold storage for the children, the idea being to give them quantity.

The little folks, who don't get such a treat every day, were fairly hilarious, and the clowns caught the fever and threw themselves into their work as if they were "just kids" themselves. The children ranged from very little ones, some of whom fell asleep or "hollered" because they were hungry, up to fifteen-year-olds who could appreciate the finer subtleties of humor and devil-daring.

Two of the institutions—the Catholic Protectory and the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin—brought their brass bands along, and they played sweet music while the big circus band took a rest.

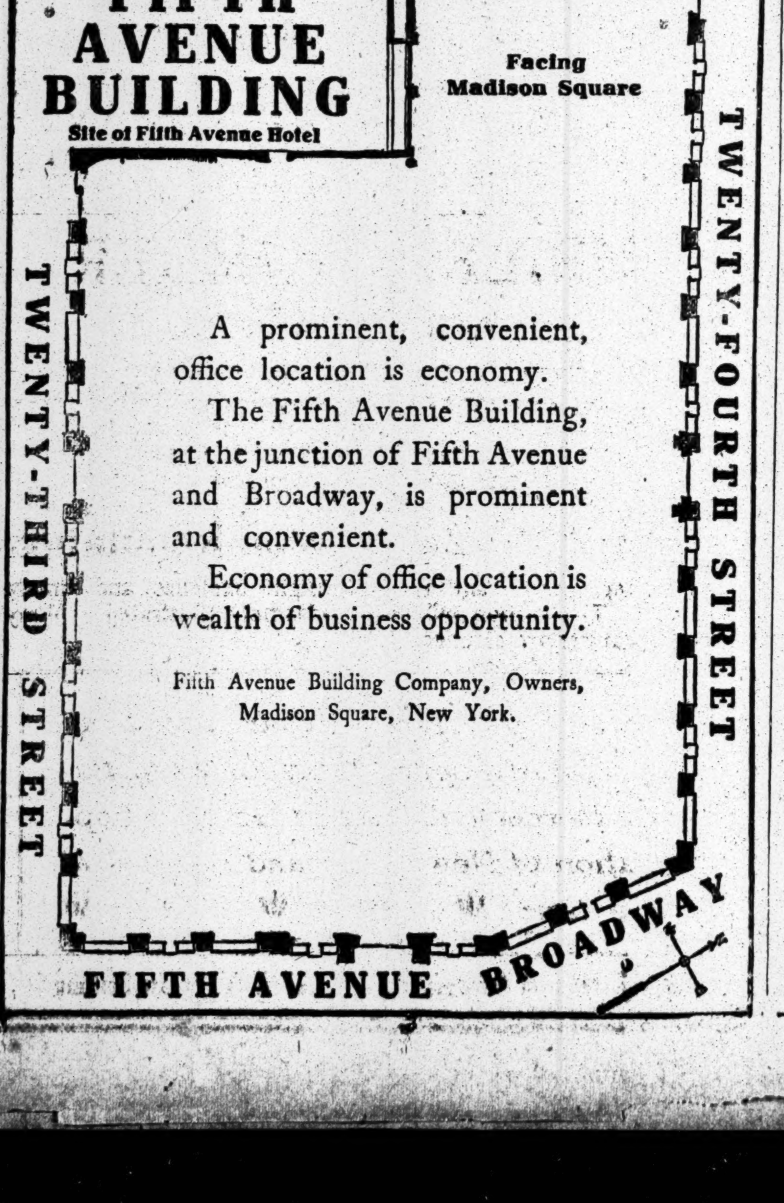
Y. M. C. A. BOYCOTT CONTINUES

But the Officials of Mrs. Sage's Institution Will Stand Pat, They Say.

The boycott against the new Young Men's Christian Association building in Long Island City, which was presented to the Long Island Railroad men by Mrs. Russell Sage, was continued yesterday. The men declared that many recruits had been added to their ranks, causing a further diminution of patronage of the dining room. A committee of boycotters continued their efforts to persuade railroad men and others not to patronize the place.

While the boycotters declare there will be no let-up in the fight until the night manager, John Holzinger, is dismissed, the Governing Board of the association say they will stand pat.

The boycotters also demand the reinstatement of Daniel Thompson, who had charge of the dining room at night, and of William Gustafson, night chef.



A prominent, convenient, office location is economy.
The Fifth Avenue Building, at the junction of Fifth Avenue and Broadway, is prominent and convenient.
Economy of office location is wealth of business opportunity.

ASSAULT ON WITNESS DELAYS PERSCH TRIAL

Clark, Who Turned State's Evidence, Blackjacked in Front of His Own Door.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ANGRY

Assistant Nott Reports Overhearing a Threat by Katz, Co-defendant, Accused of Theft of Heinze Copper Stock.

The first trial in the Windsor Trust cases, in which Donald Persch must answer the charge that he shared in the theft of more than $100,000 worth of Heinze copper stock, was halted yesterday when Assistant District Attorney Nott told the court that despite all precautions Walter L. Clark, who had turned State's evidence to become the first and most important witness for the prosecution, had been viciously assaulted Saturday evening and left unconscious on the pavement in front of his home.

District Attorney Whitman has required that Charles Katz, one of the three men indicted with Persch, must surrender himself to-day, in the Tombs Court before Magistrate Barlow to answer a charge which Mr. Whitman will prefer against him in relation to this particular experience of Clark.

The first week in August, 1909, Matthew M. Joyce, as broker for F. Augustus Heinze, left the copper stock with the Windsor Trust Company as collateral for a $50,000 loan, and immediately he found that the securities were being sold upon the market. An investigation by the District Attorney's office led to the indictment of four men—Persch, Clark, Katz, and Sherwood—charged with planning the transaction and sharing the $50,000 realized from it. The Windsor Trust Company promptly disclaimed all responsibility.

Katz's Conversation Overheard.

The trial of Persch began in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court before Justice Marcus on Wednesday, with John F. McIntyre as counsel for the defense. It was learned then for the first time that some one had turned State's evidence and would testify to a plot in which he "steered" Joyce toward the Windsor Trust Company. Three days were spent in drawing a jury, and Mr. Nott was to have opened the case for the People yesterday morning, with Clark as his first witness. Instead, he consented that the jury be excused, told the story of the assault, and asked that the battered broker be placed under the protection of Detective Fitzsimmons. The case was adjourned until this morning.

Mr. Nott told Justice Marcus that on Friday afternoon he stepped for a few moments into the washroom of Pontin's restaurant, where he overheard the conversation of two men whom he could not see for an intervening partition.

"One of the men said, 'We will put something over the plate on Clark before Monday. He's drinking some now.' I plainly recognized the voice of Katz, but I do not know to whom he was speaking. On Saturday I answered a note from Max D. Steuer, Katz's lawyer, asking for my official confirmation of the report that it was Clark who had turned State's evidence."

For the first time since the beginning of the trial Katz was not a spectator yesterday. Flood and Fitzsimmons found him later in the day in the office of his lawyer, who promised to produce him before Magistrate Barlow this morning.

Mr. Nott told Clark what he had heard, and warned him to drink nothing in the interval. Clark was in the District Attorney's office until late Saturday afternoon, when he took a taxicab, reaching his apartment house at 217 West 110th Street at 7 o'clock. As he stepped back from the curb, having paid the driver, something struck him in the back of the head and he fell unconscious to the pavement. The elevator boy, who came to open the door, says that he saw two men running west on 110th Street. He carried Mr. Clark into the house. The back of his head was laid open with some blunt weapon and the left eye was gouged. The taxicab had disappeared. It was one that Mr. Clark had hailed downtown, and he does not think he would know the driver if he saw him.

Mr. Whitman gave out this statement last evening:

"There is information in the District Attorney's office to the effect that powerful interests and influences are at work to save the defendants, Donald Persch, Walter L. Clark, Charles Katz, and John F. Sherwood, from conviction by any means and at any hazard. The assault upon Clark was evidently one of the means determined upon to defeat justice, and was a bold and audacious defiance of the law. I propose to submit the evidence of the assault upon Clark to the Grand Jury for such action as the evidence and the law may justify.

"I propose also to ask the Grand Jury immediately to begin an investigation to determine just what efforts, if any, have been made, or are being made, to destroy evidence, corrupt witnesses, or otherwise obstruct the due administration of the law in this case.

"This case is going to be fairly tried in this county, and we shall prosecute to the limit of the law any person who may attempt by criminal means to obstruct the course of Justice. The State's witnesses are going to have the protection which the laws of the State guarantee to them."

Katz is the son of Bernard Katz, who owns the Eastern Brewing Company. He is out on $22,500 bail. The court required a fifty-thousand-dollar bond from Persch, who languished through one hot August week in the Tombs before it was furnished.

The Windsor Trust Company discharged Stirling Birmingham, the clerk, through whose department the transaction which is the basis of the prosecution passed. Not long ago, it was learned yesterday, George W. Young, a Director of the company and brother of the President, called on Mr. Whitman in company with Steuer and John B. Stanchfield, to urge the dismissal of the indictment against Katz, in whose innocence they believed strongly. The indictment was not dismissed.

NEW YORK PRESBYTERY MEETS

Adopts Resolution Protesting Against Senator Schulz's Sunday Law Bill.

The regular monthly meeting of the New York Presbytery, which comprises the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, and Richmond, was held in the Assembly Rooms of the Old First Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, yesterday. There was a large attendance of ministers and laymen. The Rev. George Alexander of the University Place Presbyterian Church was re-elected Moderator for the year.

Among the graduates recommended for licenses as preachers of the Gospel was Arthur H. Limouzo, a former deacon of the Methodist Church, who will become minister of the Northminster Church at 141 West 115th Street.

The Rev. Dr. William S. Hubbell, Secretary of the New York Sabbath Observance Committee, presented a resolution on behalf of the 185 ministers, 58 churches, and 32,000 communicants represented in the Presbytery, protesting against the bill introduced by Senator Schulz, which provides for the appointment of a commission to investigate the enforcement and effect of all laws of a sumptuary character, including Sunday laws, and to report on the expediency of revising and codifying them.

Dr. Hubbell said it would give the friends of an open Sunday the power to open liquor saloons on the Sabbath, besides giving the right to play baseball and other games, as well as the opening of theatres and moving picture shows on Sundays. The resolution was unanimously adopted. Dr. Hubbell said he would present the resolution to both branches of the Legislature at Albany at an early date.

JEWISH CRITICISM OF KNOX.

The Warheit Says State Department Is Ignorant of Jewish Passport Situation.

The attitude of the Washington authorities on the Jewish passport question has aroused a good deal of indignation among the east side Jews. The Warheit published yesterday certain letters which had passed between Herman Bernstein, the author, and the Administration, which, it asserts, show that the State Department is ignorant of the situation. In a recent letter from Secretary Knox to President Taft a reference was made to various measures now being undertaken for the amelioration of the Jews in Russia by the Czar's Government, and particularly to "an Imperial Commission to revise passport regulations."

Mr. Bernstein on March 21 wrote to the President saying that he knew from his recent visit to Russia and his discussion of the passport matter with such men as Count Witte, Prof. Paul Milyukow, and Prof. Maxime Kovalevsky that Mr. Knox was mistaken about these announced measures of amelioration, and that the position of the Jews in Russia had never been worse than it is to-day.

To this President Taft replied on March 26: "I have transmitted the letter to the Secretary of State for his information; but, with deference to your opinion, I venture to think that the Secretary of State knows what he is talking about." Huntington Wilson, Assistant Secretary of State, also wrote on April 2, saying that the passport commission referred to in a recently published letter from Secretary Knox to the President was the Durnovo Commission created several years ago.

On this correspondence the Warheit's comment is that it shows the Administration is all at sea. Durnovo is, it is asserted, the last man to do anything to aid the Jews, as he is known as a bitter anti-Semite and reactionary. Moreover the Durnovo Commission long ago passed out of existence.

OLD CHINA HOUSE FAILS.

Competition Too Strong for Edward Rorke & Co.—Established in 1858.

Edward Rorke & Co., a corporation, importers of china, crockery, and glassware of 40 Barclay Street, one of the oldest houses in the trade, having been established fifty-two years ago, went into the hands of a receiver yesterday in proceedings for the voluntary dissolution of the corporation, brought by the Directors, James A. Rorke, William H. Rorke, and Joseph P. Rorke. Judge Blanchard appointed Gilbert H. Montague receiver, with a bond of $30,000.

It was stated that business had fallen off considerably of late, competition has been severe, and several suits have been begun against the corporation. The liabilities are $19,326 and the nominal assets $32,370. The business was incorporated on Feb. 23, 1906, with a capital stock of $50,000. The officers were James A. Rorke, President; W. H. Rorke, Treasurer, and Joseph P. Rorke, Secretary.

ACTOR DIES FROM POISON.

Charles J. Bell Left Note Saying Lambs Would Bury Him.

Charles J. Bell, an actor who came to this country with the Rosina Vokes company, died in Flower Hospital last night from the effects of poison and from a possible fracture of the skull. Early in the night J. C. Cameron, the proprietor of a boarding house at 122 West Forty-fourth Street, at whose place Bell was a lodger, heard groans in his room. He called Dr. Jesse W. Amey of 104 West Forty-fifth Street, and also sent in a call for an ambulance. Dr. Amey said that Bell was evidently suffering from the effects of some poison, but could not determine the nature. The man was taken to Flower Hospital, where he died shortly after 11 o'clock.

According to Cameron, a note was found in his room asking that the Lambs Club be notified and that it would bury him, from which the conclusion was drawn that he had committed suicide.

Bell had been an actor in this country for fifteen years, and was for a long time with Rosina Vokes. He was a member of an American répertoire company that visited South America Summer before last. Recently he was a member of "The Whirlwind" company at Daly's Theatre.

FOR A "DEATH AV. SUNDAY."

All Denominations to be Asked to Take Up the Fight.

A "Death Avenue Sunday" is being planned, when the combined clergy of the city will be asked to speak against the Eleventh Avenue tracks of the New York Central Railroad.

At a meeting of clergymen yesterday afternoon at Reisenweber's Hotel, under the auspices of the League to End Death Avenue, a committee was selected to organize the clergymen of the city, irrespective of denomination, into an auxiliary committee to the league. Clergymen will also be asked to address meetings whenever opportunity presents.

The suggestion that the clergymen unite on a "Death Avenue Sunday" was made by President Herman W. Beyer of the league, and May 8 was chosen as the day. A letter will be sent out to all priests, ministers, and rabbis, asking them to lend their influence, in the cause of humanity.

Next week the matter will be laid before the West Side Non-Sectarian Association of Clergymen, embracing every west side church below Forty-second Street, and it is expected definite action will be taken.

THIRD AVENUE TO PAY TAXES.

The City Will Receive $1,665,000 with Interest from 1902.

A complete settlement of the franchise taxes owing to the city by the Third Avenue Railroad and its subsidiary companies will shortly be made.

The adjudication of this account was turned over to Corporation Counsel Watson by the Mayor a short time ago, and he has reported that at a conference between Attorney General O'Malley, Receiver Whitridge, and himself, $1,665,000 has been agreed upon, with interest from 1902, to which year the arrears extend.

The receiver had paid $1,000,000 on account to Controller Metz, but the balance was left unsettled, the two being unable to adjudicate their counter contentions as to whether it should be $250,000 or $800,000.

Bank Enjoined from Selling Stock.

Charles Courter Dickinson, a banker and former President of the Carnegie Trust Company, yesterday obtained an injunction from Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum restraining the Northern Bank of New York from disposing of 620 shares of the stock of the Carnegie Trust Company, deposited by him as security for a loan of $66,980.

Phipps's Hunters Here from England.

The Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska, in yesterday from London, brought four hunters belonging to J. S. Phipps of Westbury, L. I. Mr. Phipps and his family arrived on Friday on the Mauretania after some months spent in England. On the vessel came also sixty head of fine Guernsey cattle, consigned to H. W. Wigman of Lansing, Mich.

HARRY THAW TELLS OF HIS FIRST TRIAL

Slayer of White a Witness in Hartridge's Suit Against His Mother.

ACTIONS ATTRACT NOTICE

Denies Authorizing the Lawyer to Gamble or Spend Money to Keep Women Quiet.

Harry K. Thaw once more went on the witness stand yesterday. His appearance was in the United States Circuit Court, before Judge Holt, where a jury is hearing the suit brought by Clifford W. Hartridge against his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, to recover $93,000 which Hartridge says is still due him for his services in connection with the first trial of her son for the murder of Stanford White.

The testimony of Thaw was brief. It was admitted, although he is an adjudged lunatic, on the same theory that the evidence of young children is sometimes received—to be taken by the jury for what it is worth.

Thaw was asked by L. L. Kellogg, counsel for Mrs. Thaw, to tell about the retention of Hartridge and his subsequent experiences with him. He tried to do a great deal of talking and often sought to interrupt Mr. Kellogg, but the lawyer held him to his story. His appearance attracted much attention, for he alternately knitted his face into expressions of the deepest concern, and then smiled vacantly at the jury or out of the window. He had been taking voluminous notes all during the trial, but these he left behind him when he went on the stand to testify.

The story that he told Mr. Kellogg was that he had asked Mr. Hartridge soon after the shooting, whom he thought the better man to take charge of the case, William Rand, Jr., or ex-Gov. Frank S. Black. Hartridge recommended the latter, Thaw said. Thaw denied that he ever had authorized Hartridge to run down stories about his doings in the Tenderloin or to spend money to silence women who might be involved in these narrations. He added that up to December, 1906, he had paid Hartridge $57,000. After that date, he said, John B. Gleason took charge of the expenditures in connection with the case.

On cross-examination by William R. Wilder, counsel for Mr. Hartridge, Thaw was questioned about letters he had written to Hartridge during the progress of the case. Mr. Wilder attempted to go into the manner of Thaw's life in New York, but he was not allowed to do so by Judge Holt, nor would the court allow the introduction of letters written to Thaw by various women after his arrest and sent by Thaw to Hartridge.

The cross-examination served to bring out the statement from Thaw that in November, 1906, after hearing that Hartridge had lost $11,000 in gambling houses, Thaw said he took the case out of Hartridge's hands, but allowed Hartridge to remain nominally among his counsel, because of the dislike his mother had taken to the other lawyers in the case. After the trial, Thaw said, he terminated Hartridge's direct connection with the case altogether.

In addition to Thaw, the witnesses yesterday included Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy and John F. McIntyre, who were called by the defense to place their estimate upon the value of the services rendered by Hartridge. Both men, in response to a hypothetical question put by Mr. Kellogg, estimated that Hartridge's services were worth about $25,000, and Mr. McIntyre stated incidentally that he got less than $30,000 for defending Capt. Peter Hains and his brother, Thornton Hains, on their trials for the murder of William E. Annis.

The witnesses for Hartridge, who included James W. Osborne and William Rand, Jr., set valuations of from $125,000 to $158,000 on Hartridge's services, on the assumption, according to the hypothetical question asked by Mr. Wilder, that Hartridge devised the entire theory of the Thaw defense in the first trial, and was primarily responsible for holding the case and the Thaw family together during the months intervening and the trial itself, which resulted in a disagreement.

The legal witnesses for Mrs. Thaw were asked to estimate the services of Hartridge on the basis of a hypothetical question which gave Hartridge none of the credit for the theory of the defense and contained various references to his inexperience in criminal cases and his doings in the Tenderloin in quest of evidence.

The case, which has now dragged along for three weeks, will probably go to the jury to-day.

Andrews Estate Worth $322,056.

The appraisal of the estate of Blanche Landgroff Andrews, wife of Constant A. Andrews, was filed yesterday in the Transfer Tax Office. The estate consists entirely of personal property, valued at $322,056. Mrs. Andrews, who was a sister of Mrs. John E. Roosevelt, died last year in the Bloomingdale State Hospital for the Insane.

FINDS HIS WIFE BY WIRELESS.

Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow, Separated in Europe, Are "Reunited" at Sea.

Wireless aided H. E. Bigelow, a merchant of St. Paul, to locate his wife from whom he had become separated in their rush for home from abroad when they learned that their home in St. Paul had been destroyed by fire. As Bigelow came ashore yesterday from the Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska his wife, on the Holland-America liner Rotterdam, was landing in Hoboken.

Three weeks ago Mr. Bigelow left his wife in Rome to go to Berlin on business. During his absence his wife got word of the fire and left at once via Holland, sailing on the first vessel for home.

Learning that his wife had started for home and not knowing what line she had taken, Bigelow started post haste to London, arriving just in time to catch the Minnewaska for New York.

The Minnewaska was some days at sea when she got into wireless communication with the North German Lloyd liner George Washington. On the Washington was Mrs. Ethan Allen of St. Paul, a sister of Mrs. Bigelow. Mrs. Allen was surprised when she received a wireless message from her brother-in-law and shortly after one from her sister and from another steamship. Bigelow told of the separate sailings. Mrs. Allen then notified him that his wife was on the Rotterdam, and Mrs. Bigelow was informed that her husband was on the Minnewaska. Both were surprised to find that they were so near together and at once got into wireless communication.

The Rotterdam was the first to leave Quarantine yesterday morning. The Minnewaska followed her up the bay, and because of the tide the latter was first to land her passengers, and Bigelow rushed over to Hoboken and joined his wife.

MALLORY MOVES TO NEW PIER.

Ships Will Dock on the Hudson Hereafter—Rotterdam at Her New Berth.

For the first time since the original Mallory established a line of steamships out of this port to the south, the vessels of that service now have a North River pier. The change went into effect yesterday, the piers being changed from the foot of Wall Street, East River, to Piers 45 and 38 North River.

The Mallory Line steamships on the Key West-Galveston and Key West-Tampa and Mobile services will leave from Pier 45 and the landing of passengers and freight will be made at Pier 38.

The combination with the Clyde Line and the obtaining of Piers 37 and 38, North River, in addition to the two piers already held by the Clyde Line, made the change possible.

The Holland-America liner Rotterdam, which arrived yesterday, had the honor to be the first of the company's steamships to land at the new pier in Hoboken. The new structure, which is where the vessels formerly berthed, is a fine, roomy, and fireproof structure.

ROBBERY NEAR THE POLICE.

Burglars Loot Stores at Rear of Brooklyn Station and Are Caught.

In the arrest yesterday of two men found in a furnished room at 317 Jay Street, Brooklyn, the police of the Adams Street Station believe they have members of a gang of burglars which has caused much annoyance to storekeepers in Washington Street.

These stores are separated in the rear by a narrow alley from the police station. Several complaints of burglaries in the shadow of the station house have been reported to the precinct officers, and the last one, committed Saturday night in the clothing store of Fisher & Sons, on the second floor of 217 Washington Street, spurred the police to greater activity.

Mr. Fisher visited his place on Sunday and discovered that thieves had forced an entrance through the rear window and had stolen about $300 worth of clothing. Detectives found two pairs of trousers, identified as part of the booty, in the furnished room occupied by the prisoners. They gave their names as Albert Gorman, 20 years old, of 235 Hamilton Avenue, and Thomas Conroy, 20 years old, of 197 Butler Street. Magistrate Dooley of the Adams Street Court held them on a charge of burglary.

TRYING TO STOP TONG WAR.

Judge Foster, Who Once Established Peace, Intervenes Once More.

Judge Foster, once notably successful in his efforts to spread peace among the warring tongs in Chinatown, will make a renewed effort to-day. He will hold conference with United States Assistant District Attorney Lloyd, counsel for the On Leong Tong; Terrence J. McManus, counsel for the Four Brothers, and several Chinatown merchants. He hopes that a pledge of peace will be signed, a step to which the On Leong Tong has so far refused to commit itself.

Ing Chung of the On Leong Tong was committed to the House of Detention yesterday by Coroner Feinberg as a witness to the killing of Ing Mon, the Four Brothers man, on Sunday.

Detectives and uniformed police found Chinatown perfectly serene yesterday, with no suggestion of the murders that had taken place there the day before.

NO BIDS OFFERED FOR YERKES HOUSE

$31,931 FOR SMALL ANTIQUES

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt the Chief Purchaser—Robert E. Dowling Buys the Stable for $29,600.

The Yerkes house and art gallery on the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street were not sold yesterday, as a bid to cover the upset price of $1,400,000 put on the property did not materialize.

Joseph P. Day was the auctioneer, and when caled for bids he was faced by a small assemblage, including several well-known speculative buyers, in the art gallery. For the art gallery, adjoining the house on the south, 40 by 100, one bid of $200,000 was received. The property, including the house, was then offered as a whole, but elicited no bid. Mr. Day announced that the sale, subject to direction of the court, would be adjourned until April 20.

The house with the art gallery has a frontage on Fifth Avenue of 100.5 feet and 158 feet on Sixty-eighth Street. It was offered in proceedings brought by the Electric Railways Company of London, England, Limited, against Louis S. Owsley, as executor under the will of Charles T. Yerkes. Unless sold in the meantime at private sale it is possible that the property will be sold without reserve at the next attempt.

The Yerkes stable at 139 East Sixty-ninth Street was also offered on the premises by Mr. Day and was purchased by Robert E. Dowling for $29,600.

The sale of the furnishings, articles of bric-à-brac, and various collections began inside the house yesterday afternoon in the art gallery, under the auspices of the American Art Association, which disposed of the Yerkes rugs and pictures at record-breaking prices last week at Mendelssohn Hall. Prices were fair yesterday, but there were no such prices as were brought at the Stanford White sale, where the household belongings were sold in the house, and there was a chance for some real bargains.

A French reproduction of the big Persian rug from the Mosque of Ardebil, which sold last week in the collection of antique Oriental carpets, was the most interesting of the articles sold yesterday. In itself it was a beautiful rug, and it brought $410, going to Capt. J. R. De Lamar, who bought the original mosque rug at the earlier sale for $27,000.

This was a silk carpet, 23.11 by 13.5, one of a pair of rugs discarded at the mosque, the best of the two going to the South Kensington Museum. Later the second rug was also obtained by the museum, and parts of it used to repair the first. The ruins of the second rug were in their turn repaired and found their way into Mr. Yerkes's hands. Capt. De Lamar now has the genuine antique and its beautiful imitation.

Ivory carvings, bronzes, some antique wax medallions, pieces of silver and Sheffield plate, with furniture and the several rugs which had not been included in the finer collection, a few tapestries, and other textiles were sold yesterday, the returns for the afternoon being $31,931. The highest price of the sale was given by Joseph Graham for a couple of Renaissance bronze centaur groups, Hercules and Theseus. For these he gave $1,425 each.

The largest purchaser of the wax medallions was Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. The best of the lot, an antique German wax portrait of a man with earrings, signed "Sigfried Pfintz, 1568," went to Mrs. Vanderbilt for $100. She paid $25 for a French red wax medallion, seventeenth century; $50 for another of Italian make, the bust of a Senator; $50 for a colored wax portrait of Clavia Medicis, $60 each for four Italian Renaissance portraits, $60 for a red wax miniature of a Roman orator, and as much more for a couple of Italian wax panels.

An ivory and silver equestrian group, German, of the eighteenth century, brought one of the high prices of the day, $975; an ivory equestrian figure of Louis XVI., eighteenth century, brought $295; a bronze and ivory figure of Joan of Arc, as a prisoner, $600; a seventeenth century German carved ivory ewer and plaque, with silver mounting, $625, and a beautifully carved ivory memorial plaque, 27 by 37 inches, started at $200 and sold for $750. Some of the painted and leaded glass panels brought good prices. One, dated "Anno 1583," sold for $625. It represented crests of the Vogels of Freiburg. A pair of old Flemish tapestries, representing a park scene, brought $1,500.

There will be an afternoon and evening sale to-day. The afternoon sale will begin with the offering of a number of sculptures in marble and bronze, which will take place in the art gallery, and the sale of furniture of the different rooms will be held in the rooms. In the evening the sale will be in the art gallery, and a small lot of prints and etchings, paintings and water colors, with fine art and miscellaneous books, will be disposed of.

SWOPE MURDER TRIAL BEGINS.

Dr. Hyde Watches the Selection of 13 Temporary Jurymen with Interest.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11.—Thirteen of the forty-seven temporary jurymen from whom twelve men finally will be chosen to try Dr. B. C. Hyde on a charge of having murdered Col. Thomas H. Swope, were selected in the opening session of the trial in the Criminal Court to-day. Presiding Judge Ralph S. Latshaw to-night remanded more than fifty veniremen who have not been examined, to the custody of the County Marshal and instructed them not to discuss the case or to read newspaper articles relating to it.

Mrs. Logan O. Swope, who is responsible for the prosecution of Dr. Hyde, met her daughter, Dr. Hyde's wife, in the court room to-day, but they did not speak to each other. This was the first time they had seen each other since Dec. 18, when Mrs. Swope ordered Dr. Hyde from her house, and Mrs. Hyde, spurning her mother's charges against the physician, left the house with him. On March 7, while Dr. Hyde was in jail, Mrs. Swope called at her daughter's home, but was not admitted.

Dr. Hyde displayed keen interest in the selection of jurors to-day, but took no active part in the sifting out of the veniremen. He seemed to be in the best of spirits, and when humorous situations arose he joined in the laughter.

$15,000 PEARLS RETURNED.

Mrs. Wineburgh Gets the Strand She Lost at a Theatre.

When Mrs. Michael Wineburgh of 25 West Seventy-sixth Street arrived at her home last Saturday night after the theatre and supper at Sherry's she discovered that one of the strings from her pearl necklace was missing. The strand was valued at $15,000, and Mrs. Wineburgh lost no time in advertising for its recovery and offering a liberal reward.

Last night the pearls were returned to her intact by T. F. Donovan, cashier at the Hotel Imperial, who said that he had picked them up from the sidewalk in front of the Hackett Theatre on Saturday night. When he returned the pearls Mr. Donovan said that he had watched for an advertisement telling of the loss of the pearls and giving the owner's name. Mrs. Wineburgh rewarded him liberally.

SUIT FOR CHILD BALKED.

Adopted Parents Vanish with Girl Before Court Gives Her Back to Father.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLBOROUGH, Conn., April 11.—The attempts of David Grant of Clinton, N. J., to get possession of Mamie, his 12-year-old daughter, have led to the disappearance of the child and of Dr. and Mrs. H. V. Pike and Miss Hattie Stein, the nurse, who had charge of the child. Grant is a mechanic who lives just outside Paterson, N. J. Dr. Pike came here from Paterson three years ago somewhat broken in health, and was appointed Postmaster, but resigned last year.

He brought the Grant child here and was known to have adopted her. Grant last week petitioned the Probate Court for possession of the child, or her committal to the County Home on the ground that Dr. Pike was not a proper person to have charge of her. He came here from Paterson and circulated a petition, which received forty signatures of residents of this village. The hearing on the case was set for Saturday.

The child and nurse disappeared Friday night. The Pikes had previously quietly departed. A three days' search failed to discover them here, but Grant now states the Paterson police report that Dr. and Mrs. Pike have been seen there. The court to-day formally gave Grant guardianship over his missing daughter in the State of Connecticut. Grant left town to-day for Paterson, where the search for the child and the attempt to annul the adoption by the Pikes will be continued.

SAVE THREE IN THE SOUND.

Rescuers Get Men Whose Boat Upset—11 Fishermen Have Narrow Escapes.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., April 11.—Three men, clinging, exhausted and nearly frozen, to their overturned dory, were rescued from Long Island Sound yesterday off this port by parties which put out from Wilson's Point and Hickory Bluff. The men were named Luffram, Kasso, and Lindstrom of Northport, L. I. They said they had been trying to make the mouth of the Connecticut River, when in the middle of the Sound their craft was capsized by the heavy wind.

A fishing party of eleven narrowly escaped drowning yesterday in the Sound off New Haven. They were half a mile outside the breakwater when the engine of their power boat broke, and they were driven by the heavy sea upon the breakwater. The boat was smashed, and the occupants escaped only by jumping as the craft struck. They reached the top of the sea barrier, and two hours later were rescued.

DETECTIVE SHOT OLD FRIEND.

Moore Recognized Him After Shooting Him as a Thief—He'll Die.

BEAVER, Penn., April 11.—John Hander, who is said to have tried to rob the Cleveland & Pittsburg Railroad station here early to-day, was shot and wounded mortally by Joseph Moore, a railroad detective. Moore had lain in wait for twenty-one nights for a reappearance of a robber who for the last year has looted the railway station every month or so. At midnight a man tried to open the station door. Then he smashed a window and entered the station waiting room. Breaking open the ticket rack with an axe, the marauder was about to ransack the cash till, Moore says, when the latter opened fire in the dark.

The robber was struck twice and fell to the floor. Flashing a lamp into the face of the wounded man, Moore recognized him as a former comrade and fellow-workman in the tin mills near Wellsville, Ohio. The wounded man will die.

AGED WOMAN DEAD IN TENEMENT BLAZE

"Aunt Bridget" Neylan, Beloved by Children, Burned While Cooking Dinner.

POLICEMEN TRY TO SAVE HER

Butler and Egan Badly Singed as They Break in the Door and Drag Her Out.

Mrs. Bridget Neylan, an old woman known and beloved by nearly everybody in that section of the city that is known as the "piano district," which is one of the few distinctly Irish settlements still existing in New York, was burned to death in the kitchen of her little flat, on the top floor of the tenement at 545 and 547 West Forty-ninth Street, yesterday afternoon while cooking dinner. Mrs. Neylan, who was "Aunt Bridget" to all the little Irish boys and girls in the neighborhood, was 70 years old, and had for years been a sufferer from rheumatism, and it was undoubtedly due to that ailment that she lost her life.

With Mrs. Neylan lived her son John and her nephew, John O'Neil. The son had not returned from his work and the nephew had just gone out to buy some steak for dinner when Policeman Butler of the West Forty-seventh Street Station saw smoke coming out of the Neylan kitchen, on the fifth floor of the house. Butler saw Policeman Egan half a block away, and shouted to him to send in the alarm and then hurry to his aid.

Egan and Butler ran to the top floor and threw their bodies against the door. Flames shot out into the corridor, burning the face of Egan and the eyebrows of both policemen. The policemen saw the figure of an old woman lying on the floor, her hands outstretched in the directiton of the door that opened into the hallway.

Butler and Egan dived through the flame and smoke to the place where the woman was. They caught hold of her body and quickly pulled her out into the hallway and tore off her burning clothing.

In a few minutes an ambulance from the Flower Hospital arrived. Dr. Brewster, the surgeon, hurried up the winding stairs. He looked at the body.

$100,000 FIRE IN YONKERS.

Four Residences Destroyed and Many Damaged by Flames.

Four residences in North Yonkers were destroyed and others were damaged in a fire yesterday that caused $100,000 damage.

The houses destroyed were those of Ulysses L. Lemhauser, George W. Fowler, G. Stanton Rose, and Mrs. J. F. McCarthy, on Lincoln Terrace. Fowler and Lemhauser are New York business men with offices, respectively, at 20 Broad Street and 165 Broadway.

The home of Albert C. Crehore, who has offices at 116 Nassau Street, was damaged, and the homes of Marvin W. Wynne, a lawyer of 52 William Street, and William C. Hastings, a retired dry goods merchant, were saved from destruction only by extraordinary efforts on the part of the firemen.

The entire Fire Department of Yonkers was called out to prevent the fire from wiping out the most exclusive residential section in the city. The fire is said to have been caused by the children of Mr. Lemhauser playing with matches under a piazza.

TWO CHILDREN IN FLAMES.

One of Them Dies as a Result of Playing with Matches.

Suffering from dangerous burns, due to one of them playing with matches, Ida Bialovsky, 3 years old, and her sister, Rachel, 6 years old, were taken to the Gouverneur Hospital yesterday morning. Later in the day the elder child died from her injuries.

The children, who lived with their parents on the fourth floor of the tenement house at 17 Ludlow Street, were left alone for awhile by their mother, who went out to make purchases for breakfast. In her absence the younger child got out of bed and obtained a box of matches from a shelf. These she started to light, and one of the lighted tips fell on her dress, which blazed up quickly. Her screams brought her sister Rachel to her, and she tried to put out the flames, and in doing so her dress also caught fire.

Running into the hall, Rachel shouted for help. She fell on the second floor, and neighbors threw feather pillows over her. Other tenants ran upstairs and found Ida a mass of flames.

HIS BAG STOLEN IN STATION.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 11.—A small grip containing papers which the owner, Sylvanus M. Pearman of New York, senior member of the brokerage firm of S. M. Pearman & Co., 60 State Street, valued at more than $20,000, but which, he declared, were of no value to any one but himself, was stolen at 7:20 o'clock this morning at South Terminal. The loss was reported immediately to the police, but no trace of the bag has been found.

Mr. Pearman came over from New York on the midnight train and went directly to the telephone booth to notify Mr. Levy, his local manager, of his arrival in this city. There were four public telephones in commission, and they were being used. Mr. Pearman was obliged to stand in line and wait, and when his turn came he left his suitcase and the grip containing the papers on a bench alongside the booth.

The broker said that he was engaged at the telephone less than a minute. When he emerged from the booth the suitcase was where he had placed it, but the grip was not to be found. He observed, too, that the crowd that had been waiting, presumably to telephone, had dwindled, and he suspected that there had been a sneak thief in the group.

He is certain that one of the persons who was loitering around the booths stole his grip, and believes that the thief was a woman who was dressed in black. He was unable to give a complete description of her.

SHOT DEAD AT HIS DOOR.

Young Street Car Conductor's Murder Mystifies Chicago Police.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The slaying of Henry S. Meyer, Jr., at the door of his home early to-day, at first attributed to burglars, developed unexpected elements as the police investigation progressed.

Meyer, a street car conductor, living at 2,951 Quinn Street with his wife, whom he married two years ago; their baby, and Meyer's father, returned home at 1 A. M. He was shot at the door of his home. Three shots were fired, one of them penetrating his heart. The elder Meyer and the slain man's wife were aroused by the shots, but did not observe any one leaving the premises. A black cambric mask was found in the yard later. Meyer's watch and cash were untouched.

The police examined Cornelius Sullivan, an expressman, said to have been a suitor of Miss Ella Gaygan, 17 years old, who is alleged to have looked with favor on Meyer, and the young woman herself. Meyer's father told the police that his son had been rather attentive to Miss Gaygan, and that the latter and Sullivan had quarreled as a result.

Miss Gaygan became hysterical at the police station, but said she knew nothing of the killing of Meyer.

HOUSE WON'T GIVE SPEAKER AN AUTO

CANNON TAUNTS THE ALLIES

Hints Insurgents Lack Courage to Join Minority and Depose Him, and Predicts Defeat for Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—The House to-day again refused to approve any appropriation for the maintenance of automobiles for Speaker Cannon and Vice President Sherman, sending back to conference the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial bill containing these items. The Democrats, with the aid of twenty-two insurgents, succeeded in turning down the conference report by a vote of 132 to 111.

While the debate was at its height Speaker Cannon left the Chair, and from the floor of the House delivered himself of a few observations concerning automobiles, insurgency, and the chances for Republican success in the approaching Congressional campaign. Not too indirectly he defied the insurgents to join the Democrats and oust him from the Speakership.

"This whole controversy touching an automobile in connection with the offices of the Speaker and the Vice President," said Mr. Cannon, "has not been inspired from beginning to end, or encouraged or approved by the present occupant of the Speaker's chair. The amendment, so far as I recollect, originated in the co-ordinate branch of Congress, the Senate. I refer to the original provision of a year ago. Individually or otherwise, it did not meet my approval."

The Speaker then referred to the fact that it had been customary for forty years to provide transportation for the heads of departments. Touching on the difference in salary between presiding officers of the House and Senate and the membership proper, the Speaker continued:

Playful with Champ Clark.

"One may say, 'Why make a distinction in salary?' I never even advocated that so far as I remember, and yet, perchance, something could be said in favor of it. The gentleman from Missouri, Mr. Clark, has notified the Republican side of the House that we are soon to go out of power, and while he did not say it, reading between the lines, he is to be the legitimate successor to the present occupant of the chair. I would then, if I am of the minority of the House, insist that the salary of the Speaker remain at $12,500, not on account of the honorable gentleman from Missouri, but because the man who occupies that great office with its great responsibilities should receive that salary.

"If Mr. Clark is correct about the minority becoming the majority, or if the Republicans should be in the majority in the coming Congress and should in caucus select some other than myself for the Speakership, I believe that the Speaker of the House of Representatives, whoever he may be, should in all matters be of the same dignity as the Vice President, who presides over the co-ordinate branch. And that is quite without regard to the personality of the present Vice President.

"I am entirely content, whatever action the House may take in this matter, but I want to notify you that unless certain Republicans on this side who do not approve of the personality of the Speaker have the courage to join with the solid minority, I shall remain Speaker until the 4th of March next.

"While I do not ask and have not asked for any appropriation for the transportation of the Speaker, if you vote it I will use it as I now use it. If you see proper not to do so, whether from the standpoint of broad economy or personal dislike of the present occupant of the chair, I care not."

Touches on Critical Press.

In connection with the cutting down of the contingent fund of the House and Senate, Mr. Cannon branched off into the tariff and the revenue the recent act had brought the country. He expressed disbelief that the Democrats with the aid of a "critical press with its misleading dispatches under headlines that often gave the lie to the dispatch," could carry the next election.

"While the press is powerful," he added, "it has been my observation that with the press on the one hand and the anxious economy of our friends in the minority on the other, with the proclamations that they thunder from time to time in the index, our friends are always ready to vote for expenditures when their respective districts are receiving appropriations for improvements."

Then, turning to Minority Leader Champ Clark, Mr. Cannon said:

"It is some months before November, and looking you in the eye, with the changed and changing conditions, proved by universal employment and advancing wages, I want to say to you, Sir, that there is more than an even chance when November comes that you will wake up the day after election and find that the intelligent citizenship of a great Republic has proved you a false prophet again, as it has so proved you every two years for the past decade."

Mr. Cannon sat down amid thunderous Republican applause.

Prior to the Speaker's talk the House had voted to send the bill back to conference. Representative Mann of Illinois, a stanch regular, had verbally chastised the Democrats and insurgents, calling their fight on the increase of the contingent fund of the two houses and the amounts of $2,500 for maintenance of the Speaker's and Vice President's automobiles, respectively, "child's play." This caused Mr. Clark to defend the Democratic slogan of economy, whether it had to do with large or small items.

The Senate amendments in the conference report which were disagreed to by the House were those increasing the contingent fund of the Senate from $35,000 to $50,000, the contingent fund of the House from $50,000 to $75,000 and $5,000 for automobile maintenance.

The insurgents voting with the Democrats to deprive the presiding officers of both houses of the services of a chauffeur and the care of their machines were: Cooper, Wisconsin; Davis, Minnesota; Fish, New York; Gronne, North Dakota; Haughen, Iowa; Hubbard and Kendall, Iowa; Kinkaid, Nebraska; Kopp and Lenroot, Wisconsin; Lindbergh, Minnesota; McLaughlin, Michigan; Madison and Murdock, Kansas; Miller, Minnesota; Morse and Nelson, Wisconsin; Norris, Nebraska; Steenerson, Minnesota; Townsend, Michigan; Volstead, Minnesota, and Woods, Iowa.

Representative Pujo, Democrat, of Louisiana, voted with the Republican regulars.

Not a little Democratic oratory preceded the vote, Representatives Sims of Tennessee, Foster of Illinois, and Hitchcock of Nebraska declaring that they wanted to overthrow the entire system of furnishing automobiles or carriages to Cabinet officers and other Government officials, excepting the President. Mr. Hitchcock wanted to know if the Speaker and Vice President carried the machines home with them during the Summer. On this point Representative Gillett, in charge of the bill, was unable to enlighten him.

MORE MONEY FOR PORT NEEDS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel asked Congress to-day for increased funds for the immigration service at New York. The Secretary asks for $15,000 to avoid the necessity of requiring Inspectors to remain on duty from fourteen to fifteen hours per day, New York now having become a day and night port, folowing the custom of the some of the large liners in docking at night.

Estimates are also submitted asking for $29,500 for the construction of garbage cremators and other necessary repairs at the Ellis Island station.

TOO COOL FOR CUCUMBERS.

Only Way in Alaska Is to Plant Beside a Steam Exhaust.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A cucumber does not stand much show on the Seward Peninsula, Alaska, according to Henry M. Hoyt, 2d, ex-District Attorney at Nome, who amused the House Committee on Territories to-day by describing the agricultural possibilities of the Far Northwest. Mr. Hoyt gave the committee his views on a bill providing for a legislative council for Alaska, but branched off upon the subject of vegetables.

"You can grow cucumbers and lettuce upon the Seward Peninsula," he said, "by planting close to the steam exhaust of an electric light house. When a cucumber vine shows signs of fructifying, a fellow may take a visiting card, tie it to the vine, and thus stake a claim upon the cucumber. When the cucumber grows up, it is the property of the claim holder."

"How about fruit; you can grow that, can't you?" asked Chairman Hamilton.

"It will have to be hardy fruit, with the thermometer eighty below sometimes," responded Mr. Hoyt.

The witness said he knew nothing about agricultural conditions in the interior, which were painted in glowing colors by Delegate Wickersham of Alaska.

Mr. Hoyt, who is now Attorney General for Porto Rico, told the committee that the character of the floating population of Alaska made inadvisable an elective Legislature. He recommended the appointment of its members by the President, saying that the people of Alaska were too widely separated to get together on local needs and elections. A Legislature in part elected and in part appointed, he said, also would bring trouble, as petty jealousies would crop out constantly.

ACTION ON CUSTOMS FRAUDS.

Members of House Think They Have Delayed Inquiry Long Enough.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Representative Hill of Connecticut, Chairman of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department, said to-day that he would immediately take up with President Taft the question of a Congressional investigation of the recent customs frauds at the Port of New York.

Representative Fitzgerald of New York introduced a resolution some time ago calling upon the President to advise Congress if any reason existed why such an investigation should not be put under way. Since that time the Fitzgerald resolution had remained in Mr. Hill's committee without being acted upon. The President had previously intimated that if Congress began to probe the Sugar Trust frauds it might interfere with the plans of the Department of Justice.

This hint from the White House came soon after the frauds were discovered. Mr. Fitzgerald, after waiting several months, introduced a resolution which takes it for granted that sufficient time has elapsed for the department to ascertain all the facts and to start additional prosecutions. It requests the President to advise if there is any reason now why Congress should not proceed on its own account to look into the matter.

Chairman Hill said to-day that he would lay the matter before Mr. Taft, and should no definite objection be made, his committee will probably report out the Fitzgerald resolution.

HOFFSTOT WILL FIGHT.

Sends Word to Pittsburg Investigators That He Will Oppose Extradition.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 11.—Frank N. Hoffstot, the banker and steel car maker, indicted for bribery and conspiracy, has refused to come to Pittsburg to appear before the Grand Jury. District Attorney Blakely this evening took the first steps toward extraditing Hoffstot from New York State. Papers are being prepared, and to-morrow an officer will be sent to Gov. Stuart of Pennsylvania with the papers asking that Gov. Hughes of New York give up Mr. Hoffstot to the officers from Pennsylvania.

The fight is likely to be made at Albany when the Pennsylvania officers reach the State Executive there. Hoffstot sends word to the Pittsburg District Attorney that he will demand the right to appear wih the Pennsylvania officers at Albany and argue his case with his attorneys then and there. Col. W. B. Rodgers of Pittsburg, counsel for Mr. Hoffstot, this afternoon sent a formal letter of refusal to Mr. Blakely. In part it reads:

> Since you directed my attention to the presentment of the Grand Jury of April 6 which called on Mr. Hoffstot to appear before that body and testify, otherwise that proceedings would be taken for his extradition, and also recommended that indictments be prepared and found against him, I have considered carefully the question of his appearance, and have conferred with his New York counsel, Adrian H. Larkin, and we have arrived at the conclusion that he should not appear before the Grand Jury and have so advised Mr. Hoffstot. It is manifest on the face of the presentment that the object of the indictments recommended therein is to endeavor to compel Mr. Hoffstot to appear before the Grand Jury and submit to an examination by them as to the very transactions concerning which they found the indictments. We think that in advance of trial such a proceeding is improper and that our client should not be exposed to such inquisition.

The United States authorities were called into consultation to-day by District Attorney Blakely, and while neither United States District Attorney Jordan nor Mr. Blakely will discuss what was done, it is thought here that Hoffstot will not be permitted to sail for Europe, as his Pittsburg friends say he has planned to do.

Registers from the Hotel Imperial, in New York, were brought to Pittsburg today, and will be shown to the Grand Jury in the hope that the name of the man who there paid over a big sum of money to Councilman Charles Stewart may be revealed.

C. D. Tilbury, a former member of Select Councils, who has been indicted for having accepted money for his vote, came from St. Paul, where he now resides, to appear before court to-day and plead. Mr. Tilbury was the reform leader under the late Mayor Guthrie. He admitted receiving $200 once from Councilman Klein, but said he did not know what it was for—that he had always considered it as a loan.

"Did you pay it back?" asked Judge Fraser, and Tilbury shook his head. The Court then postponed sentence, but did not suspend sentence altogether.

TAFT RAILROAD BILL TO PASS THE SENATE

WICKERSHAM CRITICISED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The first day's voting in the Senate on the proposed amendments offered to the Administration's Railroad bill made it plain that the insurgents have not votes sufficient materially to modify the measure. The bill, it now seems assured, will go through the upper body unamended except for such concessions as Mr. Elkins, for the President, already has yielded in the form of amendments he himself introduced for the sake of smoothing the road for the bill through the Senate.

Before adjournment four rollcalls and several viva-voce votes were taken, and all ended the same way. Each of the rollcalls revealed the fact that the organization, supporting the Administration, had at its disposal a safe majority of from eight to fifteen Senators, while the viva-voce votes, which came mostly on the adoption of the Elkins amendments after proposed changes to them had been voted down, unmistakably were of the same complexion.

There was little debate throughout the day, and the one incident that caused any excitement was the criticism by some of the insurgents of the severe castigation administered to them Saturday evening by Attorney General Wickersham in Chicago. Senator Nelson, one of the stanchest of the insurgents, raised the subject in a brief explanation he made of his amendment.

"I go into this subject," said the rugged old insurgent warmly, "because of a speech recently delivered in the West. The man who brings his case to a successful conclusion before the Inter-State Commerce Commission should have the unquestioned right to appear in his own behalf before the Court of Commerce. But this right is limited in the bill."

The debate hinged then for a time around the discretion left to the Department of Justice to defend or not, as it pleased, orders issued by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The insurgents thought the bill should be mandatory on this point, but Senator Sutherland, for the organization, said that he thought no Attorney General would refuse to defend in court any order passed on by so reputable a tribunal as the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

An interesting point brought out by the votes to-day was the difference in personal interest to the Senators in this railroad legislation and in the tariff schedules voted on last Summer. When the tariff fight was on, though it was in the broiling weather of Washington's hottest Summer, nearly the full strength of the Senate was recorded on every rollcall. To-day, however, the average votes showed only twenty Democrats and about forty Republicans, one-third of the strength of both parties being absent.

The Republicans favoring the amendment to limit the jurisdiction of the Inter-State Commerce Court are Senators Borah, Beveridge, Bristow, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Dolliver, and Nelson, a list familiar since the days of the tariff fight. On another attempt at the same end, made by Senator Cummins, Mr. Nelson did not vote and Mr. Bourne of Oregon joined the insurgents. This attempt failed by a vote of 28 to 36.

SUES FOR BALDWIN FORTUNE.

Brookline Girl Says She's Daughter of Turfman by Common-Law Marriage.

BOSTON, April 11.—Beatrice A. Baldwin, a 16-year-old Brookline girl, has begun suit in Los Angeles, Cal., for one-third of the estate of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, the well-known turfman. Miss Baldwin is the daughter of Mrs. W. B. Turnbull of Brookline, and is now at a girls' boarding school near New York City.

Mrs. Turnbull, the mother of the claimant, was formerly Miss Lillian A. Ashley of Winchester. She alleges that she and Baldwin contracted a common-law marriage, which is binding under the California code, and that the claimant was born of that marriage. Fourteen years ago the mother brought suit against Baldwin, which, though decided against her, was of a sensational nature. Mrs. Turnbull's sister attempted to shoot Baldwin toward the close of the trial. This action, it is asserted, prejudiced the jury against her.

Mrs. Turnbull's present husband, Dr. William B. Turnbull, is a well-known physician in Brookline. Mrs. Turnbull says that she left Baldwin after discovering that he had a wife living at the time of her marriage to him. The estate to a part of which the young Brookline girl lays claim is said to be valued at $20,000,000.

MURDER SUSPECT CAUGHT.

Healey, Charged with Stabbing Miller to Death, Caught in Trenton.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—James Healey, aged 50 years, of New York, was arrested here to-day on the charge of murder. He is charged with being one of the participants in a fight at Scammel and Water Streets on Friday night, in which Alexander Miller was stabbed to death. He was turned over to New York Central Office men at the Desbrosses Street Ferry last night.

According to the New York police, Healey and Miller met Friday night to settle an old grudge.

OPPOSED PULLMAN REPORT.

Chairman Knapp and Mr. Harlan Disagreed with the Other Commissioners.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—It was learned to-day that Chairman Knapp and Commissioner Harlan did not agree with the Inter-State Commerce Commission's decision, given yesterday, reducing Pullman rates and ordering differential charges between upper and lower berths. It is said that the dissention of the Chairman and one of the Commissioners from the majority report is one of the prime hopes on which the company will fight the decision in the courts.

Chairman Knapp agrees with the principle of differential rates between upper and lower berths, but is of opinion that the difference fixed by the majority report was in some cases too great. In the main the Chairman disagrees with a reduction in rates, on the ground that the present charges are not excessive for the service rendered, in comparison with the charges for transportation in ordinary coaches run by the railroads.

"On the broad grounds of social welfare I have long believed in low passenger fares for everybody," said the Chairman, "and I shall welcome a material reduction from present rates as soon as it can be made without injustice to the railroads. But I would bring this about, if I could, before reducing the extra cost of sleeping car accommodation for the benefit of a comparatively few persons, who, in my estimation, are now distinctly favored."

Commissioner Harlan concurred with some of the views of Chairman Knapp, but dissented on the general ground that the order was not justified by the record.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A stubborn and protracted contest through the courts regarding the question of the Inter-State Commerce Commission's jurisdiction over the afairs of the Pullman Company is likely to result from the order of the commission reducing the charges for berths in the Northwest. President Robert T. Lincoln was in conference with the other officers of the company this morning, but he declined to discuss the commission's decision.

The company's attitude was explained later in the day by J. J. Mitchell, a Director, and J. S. Runnells, Vice President and General Counsel.

"It is a grave question whether the commission has any jurisdiction over the Pullman Company," said Mr. Mitchell. "It is a manufacturing company, which rents its cars to the railroads. The commission has jurisdiction over transportation companies exclusively."

"We have not decided yet just what we shall do," said Mr. Runnells, "but we probably will know in the morning. We never have admitted the jurisdiction of the commission, and there has been no decision on the question. I should not care to commit myself, but I think there is a good chance of a contest in the courts.

"We probably shall not quarrel with the commission as to the reasonableness of some reduction in the rate for upper berths, but I think the resudction made is too great, and this does not mean that we may not contest the order as a whole. I have fel for years that there ought to be differential rates between the upper and lower berths. The upper berth cost us more, but it is of less value to the public, and the value of the service, not the cost, should be the measure of the rate.

"The sole argument advanced for the reduction of our rates is that the company is, or rather was, earning too much money. That is certainly not true today. A new company starting to-day could not give the service we give at our present rates and return a reasonable profit on the investment. The much talked-of stock dividend was simuply a capitalization of earnings and the accumulation of years ago which, it was felt, belonged to the stockholders."

NO HAMMERSTEIN GUARANTEE.

Two Philadelphia Opera Performances a Week—Box Prices Raised.

Returning to New York after a day spent in Philadelphia, Oscar Hammerstein announced last night that he had given up the idea of demanding a guarantee from Philadelphia operagoers. Instead, however, of giving four performances a week at the Philadelphia Opera House he will limit his performances there next season to Tuesdays and Thursdays, making forty in all during the season. To insure himself against a deficit in Philadelphia he announces an increase in the price of the boxes from $2,000 to $3,000.

"Philadelphia operagoers not only will not suffer by this arrangement but will profit by it," said Mr. Hammerstein last night, "as all the performances in Philadelphia will be given with the complete New York ensemble, including singers, chorus, and orchestra. The opening of the Pennsylvania tunnel and the proximity of the new railroad station to the Manhattan Opera House will greatly facilitate the transportation of the New York company.

"Under the new system, of course, I shall abandon the Philadelphia Opera House as a separate and distinct operatic institution. I shall devote myself entirely to the one company, which will make two trips a week to Philadelphia, that is all."

INSURANCE SUITS SETTLED.

People's Mutual Affairs Wound Up by the State.

ALBANY, April 11.—The litigation over the affairs of the People's Mutual Life Insurance Association and League of Syracuse, in which Lieut. Gov. White was involved, has been amicably settled, according to an announcement made to-night by the State Insurance Department. The $150,000 which was in controversy has been paid over to the Insurance Department for the association, together with interest, and the suits against the Directors have been discontinued.

All other actions involved in this dispute have been withdrawn and the affairs of the association will now be liquidated. The settlement was formally approved by the Supreme Court and will make possible an early distribution of the association's assets.

POSTAL DEFICIT LESS BY $10,000,000

TALKS OF 1-CENT LETTERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—Basing his conclusions on the auditor's returns of postal receipts and expenditures for the first half of the current fiscal year and on preliminary returns for the third quarter of the year, which closed on March 31, Postmaster General Hitchcock predicts that the first year of the present Administration will show a decrease of over $10,000,000 in the deficit of $17,480,000 handed down from the preceding year. The deficit for the first half of the current year is only $4,072,000 as against $10,285,000 for the first half of last year, a reduction of over $6,000,000 in six months.

The recent publication of the Auditor's returns for the quarter ended Dec. 31 disclosed the fact that the service had been conducted during that period at an actual profit of $2,115,000, the largest surplus recorded for any quarter in the history of the department. It is expected that the final figures for the quarter ended March 31 will also show a surplus of close to $2,000,000. The final quarter of the year, that ending June 30 next, in which certain heavy expenses of the service will fall, is likely to show a deficit, but as expenditures are now running it will be exceptionally small. The Postmaster General will not be surprised if the excess of expenditures over receipts for the entire year falls as low as $5,000,000, which would mean the wiping out of over $12,000,000 of deficit in the period of twelve months.

The officers of the department attribute the extraordinary reduction that has been made in the rate of expenditure to certain radical reforms that were introduced at the opening of the year in the methods of handling the postal business.

In the first months of the Administration, the Postmaster General assembled at Washington the most experienced officers in the registry service, the money order service, and in General Post Office management. Each set of officers remained in conference for several weeks, and before adjourning submitted definite recommendations for the betterment of their respective services. These recommendations were immediately put into effect by the department, resulting in some surprising economies without loss of efficiency.

The work of reorganization is still in progress, and the Postmaster General believes that with certain changes he has recommended to Congress in some of the postal laws that now hamper the department, it will be possible in another year to place the Postal Service on a self-sustaining basis, notwithstanding the low rate of postage on second-class matter. During the first half of the present fiscal year, for which the Auditors' returns are now available, second-class matter constituted in weight fully two-thirds of all mail handled, but the receipts from it were only about $4,000,000, or less than 4 per cent. of the total receipts for the half year.

The Postmaster General is now firmly of the opinion that a proportionate postage charge on periodical matter would not only wipe out the postal deficit, but would cause a sufficient surplus of receipts to warrant one-cent letter postage.

TREAT FOR LITTLE CRIPPLES.

545 from City's Institutions Enjoy an Afternoon at Hippodrome.

At the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon, just before the performance began, there was a pattering of tiny feet, punctuated by the tapping of little crutches or the harder sound of steel braces supporting useless limbs. It was the first of the matinees for the crippled children in the institutions of the city. Once a year a series of afternoons is set apart for the entertainment of these children, and by the time the season has closed Lee Shubert has been the host of 5,000 or 6,000 maimed little ones.

Yesterday's audience was drawn from the public schools, the Rhinelander Children's Aid, the Davis Free School, the Forty-second Street Hospital School, and the Erlanger School for Destitute Children, and numbered 545. A group of surgeons and nurses accompanied each party that came in carriages and in stages, and sat with their charges through the long performance.

In the dim light of the auditorium, while the show was in progress, there was a constant murmuring of children's voices, with an occasional outburst of handclapping. Their restless little bodies squirmed as they tried to look between heads of those in front of them. At one point, when the band on the stage played "Yankee Doodle," the treble voices took up the air and hummed it.

It was a big afternoon for the children, and almost as big for the grown-ups who accompanied them, or who were in the audience as ordinary visitors to the show.

He hopes to arrange his itinerary so that he may return to Washington in time for the ceremonies attending the dedication of monuments to the Polish patriots, Pulaski and Kosciusko, on May 11.

OFFERS WAINWRIGHT PORT SURVEYORSHIP

Westchester Senator and Hughes Supporter Selected by Taft for Much-Disputed Post Here.

HE HAS NOT YET ACCEPTED

Reluctant to Leave Fight at Albany—Taft Almost Gave the Place to Bugher, a Democrat.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—The post of Surveyor of the Port of New York, in succession to Gen. James S. Clarkson, whose term expires next week, was offered to-day to State Senator J. Mayhew Wainwright of Westchester County. Senator Wainwright came over from New York last night, and saw Secretary MacVeagh at the Treasury Department this morning, the call being on the request of the Secretary.

After a talk with Mr. MacVeagh, during which Mr. Wainwright was asked how he would regard the offer of the Surveyorship, he and Secretary MacVeagh went over to the White House, where Mr. Wainwright saw President Taft. There he Surveyorship was definitely offered to him. Mr. Wainwright was not able to give a definite reply to the offer at once. He went back to New York on a late afternoon train, and will go over the matter with some of his friends there—including, probably, Gov. Hughes—before giving his answer.

Mr. Wainwright has been one of Gov. Hughes's stanchest supporters, and he felt that he was under obligation to stay in the Senate at least until this session is ended and the question of whether or not there shall be action on the reform recommendations of the Governor, and especially upon the question of a full and thorough investigation of all graft charges, has been settled. It is expected that his answer will be forthcoming in a few days. Secretary MacVeagh is hopeful that he can accept the place.

Senator Wainwright is Secretary MacVeagh's selection for the Surveyorship.

NO SURPRISE AT CHOICE.

Since Elimination of Bugher, Wainwright Seemed Sure of Surveyorship.

The announcemenet of the selection of State Senator Wainwright by the President to succeed Gen. Clarkson did not surprise the members of the local organization last night. He has been the most prominent possibility for the position since the elimination of the name of Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher some time ago.

It was generally understood that the naming of Bugher was practically decided upon by the President until pressure was brought to bear upon him by Senator Root, State Chairman Woodruff, County Chairman Griscom, and other leaders of the local organization. Bugher is a Democrat, and his candidacy was accounted for by the personal friendship between the President and John R. McLean, the proprietor of The Cincinnati Enquirer and The Washington Post, who is an uncle of the young man.

Mr. Wainwright represents the Fourteenth Senate District, Westchester County, and lives at Rye. He has law offices at 40 Wall Street, this city. This is his first session as a Senator, but he represented his district in the Assembly from 1902 to 1908.

The Surveyor is practically the police officer of the part. The position pays a salary of $7,000 a year.

THIEF, SHOT, KEPT AT WORK.

Police Find Negro They'd Wounded Emerging from Another House.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A negro burglar who was captured yesterday in the Woodlawn Police District entered six houses inside of an hour, was shot by a policeman, and continued at his work after he had been wounded. The police followed a trail of blood which led to two houses entered by the thief after he had been shot.

Thomas Johnson is the man's name. He got away with clothing, money, and jewelry valued at $500, but was pursued so closely by the police that he was compelled to drop his loot. All that he saved from the plunder was three nickels and a Lincoln penny.

While waiting for the patrol wagon the prisoner escaped. Two detectives fired at him, and one of the bullets struck him in the hand. The negro immediately resumed the work of burglarizing residences in the vicinity, but the trail of blood led to his arrest just as he was emerging from a house with an armful of plunder.

THE COUNTRY'S OPINION.

It is not customary to be critical regarding the toast "to our noble selves," and were the issue anything less than the country's welfare, it would be agreeable to be complaisant concerning Attorney General WICKERSHAM'S Chicago speech. But the Administration is entitled to know why its friends are as little pleased with its excuses as with its acts.

The trouble with Mr. WICKERSHAM'S apology is that it is in the same condition of disagreement with itself as the Republican Party. The party's troubles arise from internal dissensions. Many who used to be Republicans, who want to be Republicans, and who expect to be Republicans when reason resumes its sway, are repelled because the Republican Party has stolen the opposition's thunder and is being praised and supported instead of criticised by the opposition. Mr. WICKERSHAM takes praise for performances which were not in the Republican platform, were in the Democratic platform, and could not have been enacted without the support of the opposition. And he invites Republicans to rally to a standard which he has no popular mandate to raise, and which there are superabundant signs is not in accord with present popular feeling.

Mr. WICKERSHAM supplies the explanation of the unpopularity of the policy which he defends. Those who had demanded regulation and publicity for other people's corporations are dissatisfied at discovering that the same laws are to be applied to their own corporations. The merit of this explanation is that it explains. The entire motive behind the "infuriated crusade against the forms of business" is that it should be applied to other people's business. Each and every corporation has its option to adopt such reforms for itself, and some of them have done so. But there is no general demand for a law of universal application. It loses its attractiveness when it is compulsory and universal, and is the basis of dissatisfaction with an Administration weak enough to comply with a demand not in keeping with the personal records of its members. This is especially true of the President. Indirection has never been characteristic of him as a man or Judge, and indirection is the worst defect of the measures for which the country has no choice but to hold him responsible.

Mr. WICKERSHAM is in equal disagreement with himself regarding the tariff. The McKinley tariff was perfect, the Dingley act was better, and the Payne tariff was best of all. Surely the country has nothing to do but enjoy this best of all perfect tariffs, and be thankful to those to whom it owes its happiness. But no, this perfect tariff is so imperfect that the President is asking for $250,000 for the expenses of a commission to gather information for its amendment. If this is necessary after the Republican Party's latest attempt at tariff making, how much more necessary was it before this revision, and why was not that method adopted, instead of the method followed, and for which the Administration is now on the defensive?

Mr. WICKERSHAM will not carry the country with him when he says that if the country is dissatisfied it should hold the Congress responsible, because the President has recommended for enactment all that the party platform requires. The dissatisfaction of the country is for the variance between the platform and the proposals following it. If more of the same sort had been done the dissatisfaction would have been greater rather than less. The platform did not call at all for a corporation tax which has made "highly indignant" all those who had been clamoring for corporate reform. The platform called for a tariff which should satisfy the country, not one which should cause Republican dissensions, and require an Administration recommendation for amendment before it was signed. The country wants rest, and gets increase of turmoil. Mr. TAFT could have made himself master of the situation when he received from Congress a tariff inconsistent with every word he ever uttered before he signed it. When he accepted the tariff he submitted himself to events, and has ever since been servant where the people would have been glad to see him master. The insurgents to whom he now appeals have better access to the country's ear than himself. They claim to be better Republicans than he. And he has made no greater mistake than setting Mr. WICKERSHAM to repeat his mistake in opposing that popular opinion which is necessary to him, and which is not to be conciliated by defiance. The people have come to know a thing or two about tariffs, and know without being told by anybody whether they want the tariff raised or lowered, and whether in fact it is raised or lowered.

The country is agreed with Mr. WICKERSHAM upon only one thing, that it is premature to give final judgment yet regarding the Administration. He is right in thinking that the country is well disposed toward Mr. TAFT and disposed to approve his well-meant efforts to give satisfaction. But the country cannot make bricks without straw. It cannot be asked to be pleased when in fact it is displeased. The country is thinking about itself, not about the Republican dissensions, nor even primarily about Mr. TAFT or Mr. WICKERSHAM. Singular as it may seem, the country is capable of being pleased if it could get what it wants from the Democrats. It has got so far toward that frame of mind that it knows that it has not received what it wants from the Republicans.

THE TRUST CASES.

Whatever refinements of reasoning lawyers may employ to explain the order for a rehearing of the Tobacco Trust and Standard Oil cases, the natural inference of laymen will be that the Justices of the Supreme Court had not voted upon either case.

If Justice BREWER, after hearing the arguments, had by his vote recorded his opinion, it would seem that his function was completely discharged, unless he had been assigned to write the opinion of the court. Even in that case it would seem that the death of Justice BREWER would hardly be considered a valid reason for ordering a reargument, since the duty of writing the opinion might, without prejudice to any interest, be committed to some other Justice.

But in this matter inference and theorizing are vain things. The one plain fact is, that the decision of these two great cases, upon which business has been waiting, is now put off for many months. However inconvenient this postponement may be to gentlemen who are preparing to organize new trusts and combinations, it seems to us that it would be absurd for general business to stand shivering and hesitant all Summer, waiting for the court to give its decision upon matters as to which nobody can have any knowledge of what the court will say. If it could be known now that the court would decide against the Government, we suppose business would "pick up." Why should it not "pick up" anyway? A year is a long time for American industry and enterprise and capital to withhold themselves from commitments and to stand even partly idle because of apprehensions of this nature.

A NEW LOCAL OPTION PLAN.

There is one recommendation of State Excise Commissioner CLEMENT that is deserving of careful and respectful attention. It is that the license of no place for the selling of liquors be renewed or granted unless the consent be obtained of the owners of two-thirds of the dwellings within a radius of 300 feet. The present radius is 200 feet.

This recommendation has several merits. It would decrease the number of liquor-selling places, which are already far too numerous. They average at present in the entire State one to every 291 inhabitants, and even in thickly populated neighborhoods this is an absurd ratio. It would subject the continuance or establishment of a saloon to the criticism and judgment of those who live in its neighborhood and know from personal information the character of the place and of the surrounding population, and the power of veto would be in the hands of one-third of the property owners, which is not an unfair proportion. And it would tend to keep the place under the restraint of local public opinion, which usually would be wholesome. The evil influence of the saloons—and there is no question that their influence is often and even generally evil—would be diminished. The working of such a system would be simple and easy and the work of the police would be lessened rather than increased.

The plan of local option by defined districts, even if the district were so small as the election district, requires a good deal of machinery and is dependent on a good many circumstances not directly connected with the merits of the question submitted. In this plan each property owner in the neighborhood would have a vote on a specific proposition and each one who voted for the saloon would do so specifically, with an opportunity to understand exactly what the effect of his vote would be. Failure to vote would be in effect a vote of the property owner against the saloon, and that would be much better than the opposite. On the whole the plan is a practical and sensible one.

THE BERLIN DEMONSTRATION.

Nothing in recent German history is more significant than the democratic demonstration on Sunday in the streets of Berlin. Its meaning is twofold, first that the authorities deliberately withdrew extra police supervision and all police interference, on the pledge of the leaders to maintain order, and, second, that the leaders, with the uniform cooperation of their vast following, kept the pledge in letter and spirit.

The first-noted change is the more important. It is very marked. Only a month ago the Government were treating all manifestations of opposition to the suffrage plan of the Ministers with great harshness. They acted on the assumption that suppression was their only safety, and this was logical enough, since the restriction of the suffrage had precisely the same basis. It is not quite clear what has produced the change of attitude. Possibly the Government has been seriously apprehensive as to the results of severe suppression. Possibly it has thought that mildness would be more effective in influencing popular sentiment. In any case the concession is a pretty grave one, for it is not easy to sustain the proposition that a class that can muster 100,000 men and women to so perfectly ordered a demonstration as that of Sunday is incapable of rational use of votes. And a feature of the situation that is worthy of special note is that the radicals, who have strictly withheld themselves from all connection with the Socialists, united in this demonstration. Certainly the incident cannot be without its effect on the advance of democratic principles in Prussia.

LAKE COW BACON.

Lake cow bacon, made from the delicious hyacinth-fed hippopotamus of Louisiana's lily-fringed streams, should soon be obtainable from the Southern packing houses. Properly seeded, Southern streams and marshes will grow thirty to fifty tons of hyacinth to the acre, and on 6,400,000 now useless acres in the Gulf States 1,000,000 tons of the most delicious of flesh foods, worth $100,000,000, may be grown yearly. This is the statement of Dr. W. N. IRWIN of the Federal Bureau of Plant Industry, supported by the testimony of other good authorities, and favoring Congressman BROUSSARD'S bill to introduce for domestication and food purposes in our various climates and unused habitats some 100 species of mammals from all parts of the earth. That would relieve the meat famine, and in the best way.

The great 400-pound porkers of Northern Manchuria; the yak from Tibet, a saddle and draught animal, good for its flesh and milk; the llama from South America; the African buffalo, the hides of which produce better leather than is found in our finest shoes; the gentle white rhinoceros, of excellent flavor, and adapted to our Southwestern deserts; delicious small antelopes of Africa and Manchuria, "to be used as an adjunct to the farmer's poultry yard" in our Central, Southern, and Pacific Coast States; the little blue and red duykers, weighing twenty-five to thirty pounds, and the tiny pah, or dik-dik, weighing six to ten and a half pounds, fit for a Christmas feast; the giraffe, with the purest flesh, free of uric acid, that would live on the scrub of our deserts; the elephant, the camel, and the zebra are just a few of the many foreign animals that can be domesticated here for useful labor and for food.

We have enriched our native stocks of flowers, fruits, and vegetables with contributions from all over the world. But we have strangely overlooked the possibility of drawing upon the earth's stocks of useful, edible, and ornamental mammals. We hope the Louisiana Legislature will look into this matter, as requested by its Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner, and that Congress will pass Mr. BROUSSARD'S bill.

THE COMET AND THE SLEEPY-HEADS.

Many charges have already been made against HALLEY'S comet, though as yet it is only dimly discernible in the heavens by the aid of a telescope. The catalogue of accusations to be preferred against it after it becomes visible to the naked eye is likely to be long. In Indiana people are complaining that the comet causes sleepiness. Sleep, according to contemporary science, is caused by a poison in the blood. The comet is thus accused of increasing that poison. Reputable Indianians have slept from fifteen to twenty hours and yearn for more sleep. This is all the stranger because of the impression lately spread abroad that Indiana was waking up.

The complaints come by telegraph from Evansville, which is not materially nearer the comet than any other city on the map; but Evansville folks know how they feel, and have as much right to discover causes for their afflictions as the rest of us. Tired feelings have not hitherto been blamed to comets, but the comet is comparatively close at hand, and nobody can really prove that its influence does not make one sleepy. Still, there are many other explanations of sleepiness, even in Indiana.

There are places from which such news would be received with gratitude. A disposition to sleep keeps people out of mischief. But Evansville is not the abode of mischiefmakers. Its good people should take to strong coffee and exercise in the open air, and shake off their unwonted drowsiness. As for the comet, it is too early yet to attribute anything that happens on earth to its influence. Give it time. If it produces any effects not produced in its former visits to this part of the universe, they will not be of the sort to induce sleep. But it is a harmless, gaseous thing which does not even know that there is such an insignificant planet as the earth in existence.

IMPRESARIO AND SINGER.

In the case of Mr. HAMMERSTEIN versus Mme. MARGUERITE SYLVA, the impresario seems to have carried his point, though the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court is in favor of the singer. Mme. SYLVA was engaged to sing in opera by Mr. HAMMERSTEIN. Her understanding was that she was to have leading parts only. We do not learn that the court attempted to define the meaning of the term "leading part." That would be more difficult than to decide that rice pudding is pastry and prunes are not. In spoken drama both Othello and Iago, Benedick and Dogberry, Julia and Sylvia, Jaffier and Pierre are assuredly "leading parts," in spite of all perplexing theatrical technicalities. So, also, in opera, MOZART'S Zerlina, Donna Anna, and Elvira are rôles of equal importance.

Mr. HAMMERSTEIN assigned to Mme. SYLVA the part of the Devil's wife in MASSENET'S "Griselidis," in which her personal charm and vocal and dramatic powers might have been well displayed. She refused to sing it, and he kept her, so to speak, "on the shelf." She tried to obtain an engagement elsewhere, and the impresario secured an injunction in Special Term of the Supreme Court. He thus, it seems, gained practically all he could have hoped to gain, as he prevented the singer from appearing in another opera house while the season lasted. He could not reasonably hope to suppress Mme. SYLVA'S artistic activities for the remainder of her life or his.

The injunction, however, has just been dissolved by the Appellate Court in a decision which puzzles many lawyers familiar with the problems associated with those most bewildering of all documents, theatrical contracts. The ground taken by the Judges is that "the services of the defendant are not shown to be of that unique and extraordinary quality which alone justifies an injunction pendente lite." There are seemingly very few theatrical or musical stars to whom this reasoning could not be applied. No wonder the theatrical lawyers are worried. The only safeguard for a manager having a contract with a star has been the possibility of enjoining his or her performance elsewhere while the contract holds. If the singer or actor may obtain an easy release by asserting that his talent is not unique or extraordinary, which can generally be done without stretching the truth, the contract is not worth the ink and paper. The "law's delays," however, have served Mr. HAMMERSTEIN well enough. But the decision will have its effect in preventing the enjoining of singers in the future.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Revolvers Out in Chinatown.

Again the war between the Chinese "tongs" or societies, so full of mystery for the white neighbors of these inscrutable aliens, has broken out, this time synchronously here and in Philadelphia. As usual, it is a war of assassination, not of open battle, but the shooting is done with a deadly coolness which shows how confident the murderers are that they will escape any punishment except that which may be inflicted in the further conduct of the feuds. Indeed, they act much as if they considered themselves executioners rathers than murderers, and such, presumably, they are, since such little information as is available indicates that the killing is done by men brought from afar, with no personal animosity against the victims selected for removal.

The police rarely fail to arrest somebody after one of these affairs, but it is not often that convicting evidence can be secured. This is partly due to the difficulty which the Caucasian eye has in distinguishing one Chinaman from another of the same class, but it is still more the result of the reluctance of the Chinese to have their quarrels settled by other people. As a matter of fact, it is not true that all Chinese look alike, but their individual peculiarities are hidden for us by those of race and we quickly forget or fail to observe the distinguishing marks.

That they are "slant-eyed" is not true, for their eyes are as level as those of any other race. The impression comes from the eyebrows, and even these are not really slanting; they only do not extend as far as ours toward the side of the face. Even in complexion the Chinese are not alike, except for a general yellowness of tinge, but this runs all the way from almost black to almost white. Suave and quiet as these strangers are, they probably look down upon us much more than we look down on them, and they insist on attending to their own business in their own way with an obstinacy that is simply a keen sense of superiority. That they lack neither intelligence nor courage is plain enough, but the intelligence is not our intelligence or the courage our courage. They are all philosophers in that they never struggle with or contend against the inevitable, and they know extremely well what they can and what they can not do. The result is that there is very little "lost motion" in a Chinaman, and he rarely fails to attain his predetermined end, since he determines upon few ends which are beyond his capacity.

An Octoroon Held to be White.

Louisiana is waiting with anxiety for a decision from its Supreme Court as to the relative efficiency of white and black blood in determining the racial status of a person who possesses a share of both strains. Local opinion, custom and law have hitherto agreed in holding that the black, and not the white, blood settled the question, and the octoroon, no less than the quadroon and the mulatto, has been considered a negro. But Judge CHRETIEN of the Louisiana District Court recently took the novel ground that one JOSEPHINE LIGHTELL, an octoroon, had so little negro blood that in the eyes of the law she was a white woman.

If this decision stands it will open many doors now closed to the "colored" people, and will break down not a few of the barriers that have been laboriously erected between the two races—barriers that are to the advantage of both in the estimation of many who have given careful study to the subject. Not only would such a holding tend to promote miscegenation, with all its disastrous consequences, but it will open the white schools to many children now excluded from them, and it will render difficult or impossible the enforcement of what are called "Jim Crow" laws in public conveyances.

It can hardly be questioned that, however it may be in countries where there are few negroes, in the South, where they are many, it is the black rather than the white blood that is the practically determining factor. The mulatto is regarded as just as much a negro in everything except color as if he were pure African, and it seems to be the general impression that, with exceptions, of course, the mixture of the two bloods emphasizes the lower, not the higher, qualities of each. This may, however, be only a way of stating that the white Southerner particularly dislikes in a man whom he considers a negro the qualities and ambitions which any fraction of white blood is likely to give him.

Whatever the decision of the Supreme Court, it is certain that the white people of Louisiana will continue to hold any recognizable trace of black blood as determinative of race. Their whole social system as developed before and since the war depends upon the maintenance of this contention, and the feeling that it ought to be maintained is stronger all through the South now than ever before. It is based on the instinct of self-preservation, and against that argument is vain.

A Problem Beyond Solution.

We are evidently in for another hot discussion of "euthanasia"—a question which has been settled a thousand times, only to come up again and again, apparently as fresh and interesting as ever. That hints at something wrong in all the settlements, and an element of fallacy in the arguments by which they were reached.

The venerable President Emeritus of Harvard, who has long been known as advocating, or at least consenting to, the deliberate cutting off of human life when it has become intolerable, has entered the controversy anew with the inquiry—"What does it matter, in a hopeless case, if the patient's life is shortened by a few hours or more, if he is thereby relieved of excruciating pain?"

What indeed? But, other considerations apart, who is to decide when a given case is hopeless? Absolute certainty on that point is possible, if ever, only in instances so extremely rare that they are obviously inadequate for the establishment of any general rule of principle. The patient himself is the worst of judges of his own condition, and every doctor of more than brief experience has been amazed by recoveries from illnesses to which a fatal termination seemed inevitable.

For the vast majority of us the end will be "euthanasia," anyway, since it is nature's habit to take away both the pains and the fears of the dying. There is room for some suspicion that much of the talk about "euthanasia" comes from those who speak rather for the well than for the sick—whose pity is more for the nurses than the patients. The medical profession is agreed that the duty of its members is to prolong life, not to shorten it. To do anything else is to take a dreadful responsibility, never to be confessed or acknowledged.

"The Pigott Forgeries."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The amazing assertion in the editorial article which appeared in THE TIMES of April 8 under the heading of "The Pigott Forgeries" that The London Times articles entitled "Parnellism and Crime" "were the beginning of the sad downfall of Charles Stewart Parnell," can only be construed as an attempt to minimize the utter collapse of the charges contained in the articles mentioned and the consequent discredit of The London Times as a reckless and unscrupulous party organ. English Liberals, headed by Mr. Gladstone, never had more confidence in Mr. Parnell than during the months that followed the Pigott exposure. When The London Times failed to brand him as a murderous revolutionist, his enemies tried to ruin him through the agency of the divorce court. The disclosures of the O'Shea suit clouded the last year of his life, as they caused the division among his adherents which put back the clock for home rule for many years. But his life work was not destroyed, as the measures of justice he won for the Irish people have been consolidated and added to, and the party of which he was the leader is more powerful to-day than ever.

And to any one understanding the attitude of "Irishmen" of a certain type toward Parnell and what he stood for, it is not at all strange they "have been satisfied that he was justly treated." If Irishmen of that type could have translated their idea of justice to Parnell and his party into action it would have been "short shrift and shorter rope." M. J. STANTON.

Psyche in Greenwood Cemetery.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot forbear to voice my astonishment at what seems to me to be the extraordinary point of view of the Trustees of Greenwood Cemetery which enables them to arrive at the conclusion that a symbol, one of the oldest in the history of the world, of the immortality of the soul, would be "out of place in a city of the dead." The story of Psyche, purified by suffering and misfortune, winning heaven and immortal love by the singleness of her devotion and patience in the fulfillment of her trials, typifies nothing but the journey of the soul (it ought to be superfluous to say that the meaning of the Greek word "Psyche" is "soul") through life. Like all other Greek myths, it stands for something very profound in human experience, and in this instance, as narrated in Saturday's TIMES, the myth of Cupid and Psyche finds, to my mind, a very touching parallel.

Without entering into the question of the endurance of human love after death, certainly the idea is one of the most persistent and wholesome, as well as the most tender, that the heart has ever cherished. This seems to have escaped the Trustees, but it is a pity that they should not have had a broader mind to permit the mother to carry out the dead girl's wish. LEE WOODWARD ZEIGLER.

Tips to Head Waiters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the recent failure of a prominent restaurant, a word to the owners of Broadway restaurants may not be untimely. Whatever the differences of opinion concerning the propriety of tipping, it must be conceded that a tip, after all, pays, even if it sometimes overpays, for services actually performed, and many a waiter catering to the peculiarities of an exacting patron earns his fee.

On the other hand, do we get the equivalent for the graft imposed upon us by head waiters, whom we must pay in advance for the blessed privilege of having a table assigned to us or else be told that they are all engaged? Do managers of restaurants intentionally close their eyes to this much discussed abuse, or, perhaps, connive at it, in the hope of securing the services of these "autocrats of the dining tables" at low wages? Middlemen and Apples.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While on my vacation near Roscoe, Sullivan County, I asked my landlord, a thrifty old farmer, why he did not send his apples to market. He said it did not pay him, for all the commission men gave him was $1 a barrel, and he had to furnish the barrel. This recalled stories I had heard of thousands of barrels of apples and tons of grapes being allowed to rot on the ground every year as it did not pay to send them to market. My groceryman told me he paid $6 and $7 a barrel for apples he charged me 15 cents and 20 cents a quart for. It looks as though the middlemen get all the money. THOMAS F. MIDDLETON.

The Plight of Vesuvius.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Encouraged by "Query's" interrogative respecting T. R. "In Italy's Boot," I would remark my theory that Vesuvius drew a long, deep breath when T. R. "put his foot in it," and has not yet summoned courage to exhale the same.

I shouldn't wonder if poor Vesuvius never recovered and forthwith became extinct. Thus would be proved for the Italians the axiom that "it is an ill wind," &c. ANSWER.

The Village Blacksmith Only Seven?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

So the "Village Blacksmith" was born in 1834. But the poem was published in "Ballads and Other Poems" in 1841, when the blacksmith, with a grown-up daughter singing in the village choir, had attained the mature age of 7 years! What precocity! S.

STRADDLING THE ISSUE.

Administration Fosters the Tariff and Pursues Its Resultant Evils.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reflecting on your leading editorial topic, "Two Leaders, One People," with particular respect to your comment on what Mr. Wickersham had to say on "the details of legislation," I am impressed with the pitiful inconsistency of the Administration's continued policy—in its law department—toward its own party's creatures, the trusts. How can Mr. Taft and his Attorney General continue straddling the issue on two such conflicting bases as a fostering tariff and a persistent pursuit of its resultant evils? The Republican wet nurse must be dismissed if this child of luxury—well nigh spoiled—is to be redeemed with fair credit to the head of the household. The support of a policy like the present, by an authority of less apparent rationalism than that possessed by our honored Chief Executive, might well be called "fat-witted." In him, however, I suppose we must admit party fealty as a reason—such a faithfulness as prompts the soul of honesty in confidence against the inevitable.

But as you say, it is the difference between the moldering past and the quickening future, and the people will respond in a way that should convince Mr. Taft of the hopelessness of a reconcilement.

Please do not, meanwhile, allow Gov. Hughes to be blanketed with a Supreme Court appointment. The people need a more active influence by him than that at this juncture. E.

Deciding What Is Good in Art.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, "C. E.," falls foul of "W. J. L.'s" suggestion for a general open painters' exhibition, and appears, with some heat, to take the ground that the public is an ass, with "W. J. L." looming up as an especially fine specimen. He talks like an art critic, in short.

If the high and sacred function of deciding upon what is good in art is one solely to be claimed by art critics, why don't they get on the job? Why is it that every painter (almost) whose name is now famous had but scant recognition from the critics of his day, if not open and scornful opposition?

If "C. E." and other self-appointed cognoscenti are to decide whether a man's pictures are real art, why don't they do it before the man dies? It is my opinion that the public have had a lot to do with determining values. Furthermore, I think "W. J. L.'s" possibly half humorous suggestion has some merits, from the practical side of painting pictures for a living. W. T.

Life in Art Circles.

Patterson and Mrs. Vivian Not at Odds

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention is called to the report in this morning's TIMES of the decision of the Appellate Division upon the accounting of the trustees of the estate of the late Marshall O. Roberts, in which you repeatedly refer to Mr. Patterson, the resident trustee, as taking a position hostile to that of Mrs. Vivian, his co-trustee. Such has not been the fact.

The suit instituted by Mr. Patterson was the regular application for leave to account, which has been made every few years, in which application Mrs. Vivian in fact joined, although, as in previous years, because of her separate individual interests in addition to her position as trustee, she appeared in the formal papers as a defendant in the case.

Mr. Patterson throughout the proceeding has maintained strict impartiality, leaving the difficult questions of law which arose upon the accounting to be settled by the court, as between the various legatees.

May I ask that your report of a conflict between the two trustees, which has had no existence, be corrected?

SELDEN BACON,
Counsel for Mrs. Vivian.

River Watersheds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Whitehouse's very full account of the watersheds which regulate the running of our rivers is interesting to me, as I have never studied the topography that makes them. But I do remember one thing that I heard years ago on this subject.

A writer in some paper said—perhaps not with entire accuracy—that there was a barn on some high elevation near Pittsburg, Penn., that is so situated that if a drop of rain falls so as to be split in two on its ridgeboard one half of the drop will find its way to the ocean (if it keeps in motion) through the St. Lawrence River, while the other (if equally agile) will go down the Mississippi River into the Gulf of Mexico.

A sermon or poem that should use this incident to show how slight a jostling in early life will send a young man either to success or perdition might gather from it a pathetic and forcible illustration.

South American Mate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to "Anti-Coffee," Brazilian tea, or "mate," or Paraguay tea is much used as we do common tea or coffee, in Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Paraguay, and other countries. Very pleasant to the taste, non-exhilarating, somewhat nourishing, and generally useful. Perhaps some of the South American importers here can get it for you. Yes, you can buy it in stores in London, Germany, Paris, and some parts of Italy.

THE WOMEN.

One strides a horse and rides away
  Full gallop in the race
That scours the woods and fields all day
  A tiny fox to chase.
Her laugh contains a boisterous note,
  She swears in French and Spanish—
But when you ask her if she'd vote
  She says, "It's quite too mannish!"

One's always foremost at the track
  And bets her every cent;
She slaps her escort on the back
  To give her feelings vent.
She smokes with any one she meets
  And makes the highballs vanish,
But, parrot-like, she still repeats—
  "To vote is quite too mannish!"

One dines with married "chums" at will,
  And wrecks a home or heart,
And year by year is flirting still
  In some gay social mart.
Not one of all the tricks she's learned
  From mankind will she banish,
But when toward Suffrage she is turned
  She says, "It's quite too mannish!"

One likes to figure in the news,
  In scare-head type, of course,
And freely airs her aims and views,
  Her marriage and divorce.
She talks on themes we cannot quote
  And deprecates things clannish,
But when you ask her if she'll vote
  She says, "It's quite too mannish!"

One does the work upon the farm,
  Plows, plants the seed, and hoes;
She scorns the aid of manly arm
  As to her work she goes.
She dons the trousers, one might say,
  And lets her neck grow tannish,
But ask her if she'll vote some day
  And she'll say, "It's too mannish!"

IMMIGRATION TIDE APPROACHING FLOOD

Twenty-three Ships, with 30,000 Aliens, Now at Sea Bound for This Port.

ELLIS ISLAND ASKS HELP

Return of Prosperity and High Taxes Abroad Cause Thousands to Seek New Homes in America.

Thousands of immigrants, who went to Europe during the unsettled time which followed the season of financial depression in 1907, have begun to return in great numbers, and with them are coming thousands more, many of whom, it is said, have been driven to seek homes here because of the increased burden of taxation in Europe.

Commisisoner Williams returned yesterday from Washington, where he went to urge the necessity of a large force to handle the expected invasion. Judging by the arrival of aliens here in March, the officials look forward to the greatest April and May in the history of the port. It is said that 30,000 immigrants, on 23 ships, are on the Atlantic bound for this country. Within the last few days 5,000 aliens have passed through Ellis Island, and 2,000 are on vessels here waiting to be landed at the Immigration Station.

The increase in March over February, when 44,397 landed, is phenomenal, and upon these figures and advance information from abroad the officials base the prediction of a flood of immigration during the next two months.

In March 132,397 persons arrived here in cabin and steerage from foreign ports. Of this number 11,553 were citizens, and 120,844 aliens. Those classed as immigrants numbered 108,286, many arriving second cabin, which is growing in popularity among those of small means, who have been here before and know the discomforts of a steerage voyage.

The month's arrivals brought to this country, it is estimated, about $2,457,375, not including the value of their household and personal articles brought by the immigrants.

The figures compiled on Ellis Island, officials say, indicate that a better watch is being kept by the big lines on passengers embarking on the other side. In March only 1,472 persons were deported as undesirable. Those deported included 175 women. Of the illiterate over 14 years 28,208 were men and 4,147 women. The greatest illiteracy was found among the Italians, of which nationality 13,070 were so classed. Only four Englishmen could neither read nor write.

Of the arrrivals for the month 2,611 were classed as "adventurers" by the officials, meaning persons who have neither relatives nor friends on this side of the Atlantic.

The Berlin, from Naples, is approaching port with 2,316 steerage passengers. Other vessels due here within a week include the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and Zieten from Bremen; the Laure, San Giovanni, Cretic, and Ancon, from Naples; the Caronia and Lusitania from Liverpool; the Oceanic and New York from Southampton; the Oscar II. from Copenhagen; the Ryndam from Rotterdam; the Lapland from Antwerp, and the Touraine and Gascogne from Havre.

FIRE HEROES NOT FORGOTTEN.

Bliss Says the Public, Not the Committee, Is to Blame for Delay.

Cornelius N. Bliss, ex-Secretary of the Interior, a member of the committee in charge of the fund for the erection of a suitable memorial to the city's firemen who have lost their lives when on duty, said yesterday that it was through no fault of the committee that the proposed $100,000 fund was not yet subscribed. He added that although the committee is still working the public has apparently forgotten the object for which it was organized, and had stopped subscribing to the fund. At present it totals about $50,000, just half the sum needed.

The memorial was proposed by the late Bishop Potter at the funeral of Deputy Chief Kruger. Since the Bishop's death Isidor Straus, now in Europe, has been the head of the committee. The other members are Gen. Thomas L. James, Andrew Carnegie, Henry W. Taft, Hamilton W. Mabie, George W. Babb, Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Brann, Cecil I. Allen, Fire Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, Chief Edward F. Croker, and Mr. Bliss.

The committee, when the sum reached $50,000, canvassed various sites and selected the north side of Union Square Park. They requested the services in an advisory capacity of Cass Gilbert, Henry Rutgers Marshall, Mr. Mead of McKim, Mead & White, and H. Van Buren Magonigle, the architects, and a design submitted by Mr. Magonigle was selected. It now appears that Chief Croker and many firemen are opposed to the Union Square site, and that others do not favor the Magonigle design.

Mr. Bliss said that the criticisms were not merited by the committee, which had been hard at work trying to get the sum needed since its organization several years ago.

"The plans for the memorial," Mr. Bliss added, "were accepted by the city government and approved by the Municipal Art Commission, while the site was selected after a consultation with Mr. Stover, now Park Commissioner.

On the coming in of the new city administration we learned of the plans for the improvement of the northern part of Union Square, which contemplate the erection of a forum, and it was decided to place the Firemen's Memorial in the southern part of the park. This made changes in our plans necessary and caused a delay pending final action as to proposed improvements in the north part of the park.

"I remember that Chief Croker preferred the site at Fifty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue, but I was not aware of any serious objection on his or the firemen's part to the Union Square site."

MEMORIAL TO HARRIMAN.

Orange County Horse Improvement Association Will Erect a Fountain.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 11.—The Orange County Horse and Road Improvement Association, which E. H. Harriman originated, and which decided to dissolve after Mr. Harriman's death, will use the balance of money in its treasury to erect a memorial to Mr. Harriman. At a meeting of the committee, composed of ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr., J. A. P. Ramsfell, Frank P. Wood, Charles C. Tegethoff, former secretary to Mr. Harriman; C. H. C. Beakes, and William B. Royce, Goshen, Orange County, was selected as the place for the erection of the memorial.

A tablet of some sort will be erected also by the committee on the first piece of road built by Mr. Harriman at his own expense as an object lesson to the people of Orange County. Several parties have submitted designs for the memorial. That of C. C. Rumsey of New York City conformed more nearly to the ideas of the committee, and probably will be accepted.

The design is that of a fountain, with a bronze column extending from a right-angled base in the centre, the column to be fifteen feet in height and to be arranged so as to permit of being lighted by electricity at night. There will be tablets on the side of the base for inscriptions.

Mrs. Fiske seems to be practicing a system of self-effacement, which has hitherto not been the rule with American stars, during her present engagement at the Lyceum Theatre. She began her season two weeks ago with a performance of "The Pillars of Society," in which her part is by no means the principal one, and last night in the new double bill which she presented she did not appear at all in the first play.

This first play came as an agreeable surprise to those in the audience who had fancied that they were to see an ordinary curtain raiser. Schnitzler is a Viennese dramatist not unknown in New York, however, and some of those present may have seen this same play when it was presented with the same author's "Literature" in a triple bill at the Irving Place Theatre during the Conried régime at that playhouse. "Literature" was afterward played in English, as was Schnitzler's "The Reckoning." "The Green Cockatoo" was probably given its first performance in English here last night.

The action of the play occurs in a Paris cabaret during the night of the fall of the Bastille, but much of the satire might easily be applicable to the Paris of to-day, where just as many actors find employment in these dives, engaged to represent murderers and cutthroats and to do realistic "Apache" dances.

It seems that the aristocrats of that period were as interested as those of this in slumming, only on the particular night in question a great deal of the action in the cabaret turns out to be real. The little play is full of interest, and toward the close one swift surprise follows another. It was capitally acted last night by a cast headed by Holbrook Blinn.

Gerhardt Hauptmann's "Hannele" has had some strange experiences in New York. This "Dream Poem" was given in English in New York some fifteen years ago in a translation by Charles Henry Meltzer, presented under the author's direction. The play at that time aroused much discussion, but since then, with the exception of some performances in German at the Irving Place Theatre, it has been allowed to slumber on library shelves. In the répertoire of many Continental theatres, however, it retains a more persistent place than some others of this writer's works.

It is extremely difficult to bring out the atmosphere and to answer all the mere mechanical demands of this play, and it cannot be said that all of these difficulties were smoothed away by last night's production. However, it might be said that most of the visions were effective. The final vision, however, disclosing Hannele mounting to heaven in the arms of the Saviour, was almost rendered ridiculous by totally inadequate singing.

The incidental music of the piece, which plays an important part, was composed by Max Marschalk, and was played last night by an orchestra conducted by Alexander Birnbaum. The audience became restless during the prelude and started to applaud, a breach of good manners, which was promptly hissed down, but which indicated that many who were present were probably in no fit mood to listen to the play itself.

Mrs. Fiske appeared as the child, Hannele, a part which is entirely different from any in which she has appeared here before, and Holbrook Blinn was the schoolmaster and the Christ. The other characters were in generally able hands.

DUNCAN DANCES IN "ELEKTRA"

Trips Lightly in His Besandled Feet—Mrs. Duncan as Elektra.

The lean limbs and besandled feet of Raymond Duncan were seen again in public last night, but this time they were tripping lightly over the stage of the Berkeley Theatre instead of across the windy reaches of Broadway. Duncan was cast as Aigisthos in his own production of the "Elektra" of Sophokles, and the programme announced that it was "the first correctly given performance in America." Mrs. Duncan was Elektra, while the rôle of Klytaimnestra was acted by Eleni Sikelianos of the Royal Theatre of Athens, and that of Orestis by Dionysos Devaris of the New Theatre of Athens. In addition to playing his part, Mr. Duncan performed the lyric choral dances at the end of the first and second acts.

The performance was well received by an audience made up mostly of Greeks. In the boxes were several distinguished patrons of the performance, including Lady Duff Gordon, M. L. Coromelas, the Greek Minister at Washington; the Marquis de Beauvoir, Etienne Lanel, the French Consul General at New York; Mrs. Burke-Roche, Mrs. Daniel E. Sickles, George Stanton Sickles, ex-Secretary of the United States Legation at Athens; the Countess Podevissatzki of St. Petersburg; Baron Schlippenbach, German Consul General at New York; Lionel Hastings, and the Rev. Nicholas Lazaris of the Greek Orthodox Church Evangelismas.

At the theatre entrance leaflets were distributed stating that Mr. Duncan numbers among his intimate personal friends August Rodin, Frau Cosima Wagner, Georges Clemenceau, Ernst Haeckel, and King George of Greece. For Mrs. Duncan it was stated that she "is a marvelous musical genius and has the ability to change the sequence of the overtones of her vocal notes in any desired form." As Elektra in its original Greek simplicity is without singing numbers, Mrs. Duncan showed the range of her voice last night only through the intonations of her words.

Ben Greet Appears as Bottom.

SIR ARTHUR ELIOTT TO STAY.

Stock Broker's Inheritance Consists of 20,000 Acres on Scottish Border.

Sir Arthur Boswell Elliott, a member of the Stock Exchange firm of Isaac Starr, Jr., & Co., who on Wednesday last received a cablegram announcing his accession to the Elliott Baronetcy of Stobs, in Roxburghshire, will probably continue his business relations in this city. His inheritance consists of several country estates and about 20,000 acres of land on the Scottish border.

Lady Elliott was Miss Lilla Burbank of Boston. The Elliotts have one son, Gilbert Alexander Boswell Elliott, who is in business for himself, and two daughters, the Misses Vera and Beatrice Elliott, who were educated in Brussels. Miss Vera Elliott made her début in London about a year ago, and Miss Beatrice Elliott made her début here a few months ago.

Sir Arthur's middle name comes from his ancestors, the Boswells, of which family the biographer of Dr. Johnson was a member. The first Earl of Boswell and Sir Francis Drake, the famous English Admiral, are also numbered among his ancestors.

The Baronetcy dates back to 1666, when Charles II. created Sir Gilbert Elliott, who had already been knighted, a Baronet.

Persons who have no particular love for music, or having it, love the musician less—who know the name of Beethoven, but, hearing his works played, are not especially curious about the man—all such will probably find Rene Fauchois's play somewhat lacking.

It is, in fact, not a play at all under any of the ordinary definitions. But for those who know the life of Beethoven well enough, who have lived it over in imagination, and can live it over again—to whom, in short, his disappointments and his growing deafness can bring the sense of tragedy, the piece acted at The New Theatre last evening will have some share of interest. After all this "Beethoven," as we see it here, ought to be a work for the Beethoven enthusiast—and yet, paradoxical as it may seem, it is just such who will probably find most in it to carp about. For he will know his life and times so well that the irregularities and improbabilities as well as downright errors of the story will offend his sense of truth.

For the ordinary observer it is scarcely likely that Beethoven's love affairs, here touched upon, will have any serious meaning or any strong appeal. Indeed, something like an audible smile was seen at the point last night where the lovely Bettina Brentano, "Goethe's spirit child," after mutual confidences between the musician and herself, told him of her betrothal. It was a place where, by all the rules, one should have been greatly moved.

But only a little while before, unfortunately, there had been an almost identical passage in which figured another lady, the beautiful Giulietta Guicciardi, whose marriage to the Count von Gallenberg may or may not have been felt so deeply by the great musician. Historians disagree upon this point, but the burden of proof now seems to be with those who claim that the pair were merely friends. In either case, however, fickleness in heroic lovers is one thing that audiences will not understand, or, understanding, will not easily condone. To have been an appealing stage lover Beethoven should have gone on eating his heart out for Giulietta to the end.

To the sensitive observer the composer's deafness, slowly gathering and finally overwhelming him, will be more appealing than his love affair, firstly because it suggests a bigger, deeper, more profound, heartrending tragedy, secondly because this, indeed, is the real theme of the piece, if anything so scrappily put toegther may be said to have any dominating theme. The idea, in fact, seems to have been not so much the writing of a play as the arranging of a panorama of events in the musician's life, in which music should play its part in creating, if not complete illusion, a sense of the importance of the hero. And if to get this result the author has had to pull a bit here and twist a bit there, what does it really matter?

The main point to remember is that there was a great musician, Beethoven, who composed immortal works, and who paid the price of genius in his suffering, that a number of his noblest works were composed while he was growing deaf or after the tragedy of complete loss of hearing had fallen upon him, and that, like others of the great, he had to struggle against envy, poverty, and malice, and that, as in the case of his scapegrace nephew, Karl, he was betrayed where he trusted most and where his heart was most strongly set.

It gives one a curious sensation, however, to see the man Beethoven composing his works on the stage, and like a conjurer creating symphonies and sonatas on blank paper while you wait. It requires a good deal of imagination to get the contact between the music as he writes and that which sounds from the unseen orchestra playing as he thinks. Nor is it done without some trouble on his part. For now he rubs his forehead, now presses his temples with his hands, now rushes here and there in seeming ecstacy of joy or sinks sadly into his chair, to dream and write.

Not only is his greatness shown in his own thoughts uttered at length that you may hear them; others are here to apostrophize while the action halts. And in the meanwhile much rhetoric is spun. In the original there are passages of some beauty. And here, too, the speeches are occasionally rich and rhythmical, but there is too often the transition from exalted speech to that which is merely commonplace.

All through, of course, the music plays its part, with the so-called "Moonlight Sonata" an inevitable accompaniment in the first act to the duet between Beethoven and the Countess, while softly changing silver lights play on the river painted on the drop. And she tells of her betrothal, leaving him in sadness. In the second act the gathering of the composer's deafness forms the major theme, with the climax of despair at the moment when his quartet is performing in his lodgings before the Archduke Rudolf, Kinsky, and Lebkowitz. He discovers that he cannot hear a note. In the third act he surprises his nephew, Karl, stealing bank shares from his desk. And the end comes soon, with the vision of his nine symphonies to make the final pictures.

At intervals there are glimpses of his brother Johann, wealthy and overbearing, and the devotion of his faithful Shindler brings in a little touch of tenderness. There is a scene, too, in which he flouts the Archduke and his suite, and voices his changed view about Buonoparte, whose name he erased from the 'Eroica. But the general effect is a sort of patchwork play, which, indeed, is about the best that could be expected. The last act depends almost entirely upon the effect produced by the appearance of the nine symphonies, here represented by young women, while the musician sits at his piano rapt in thought.

Apart from Beethoven there is not much for any one to do, and it is not a part in which to take the measure of an actor. Donald Robertson, appearing here for the first time since he became well known in the West, suggests the Beethoven of the pictures. The things that such a man might do, according to the popular imagination, he does very well. He is gruff and agreeable, humorous and pathetic by turns, and rarely ever of this earth. He meets his superiors in social rank with greater dignity than theirs, is kindly to his inferiors, flouts the tuft-hunting mercenary brother in a way to please all righteous, democratic souls.

Mr. Robertson has a magnificent voice, for which he gets full play, as there is so much exalted oratory in the part that it is practically impossible to keep on the plane of natural acting. What the actor seems most to lack in his playing of this role is the sensitive, sympathetic touch that reaches out to move the heart. But it would be unfair to say he positively lacks it until one sees him in something genuinely human. But he was certainly never really moving in the role last night, and though variety and light and shade marked his reading, he grew monotonous at times.

Of the others it is hardly necessary to do more than mention names, though Mr. Benrimo and Mr. Dunrobin gave good color to their roles, and Mr. Currier enough of crustiness to his. Mrs. Sol Smith, Mr. Aiken, and Mr. McWade were others who did their small parts well.

Of the women Miss Rebecca Warren, very beautiful as Bettina, and reading with clean-cut diction very rare, was welcome where speech to be heard well must be very clearly spoken.

The lighting of the Immortal Nine was not especially effective last night, and the intervals between the descriptions and the end tedious. As it was Beethoven seemed an unconscionable long time a dying.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT" FAULTY.

Plot Development Suffers Through Too Brief Story—Snappy Dialogue.

THE SPENDTHRIFT, a play, in four acts, by Porter Emerson Browne. Hudson Theatre.

Richard Ward	Edmund Breese
Saunders	James Cherry
Philip Cartwright	T. Daniel Frawley
Monty Ward	Jack Devereaux
Frances Ward	Thais Magrane
Clarice Van Zandt	Gwendolyn Piers
Gretchen Jans	Mattie Ferguson
Elise	Alice Kelly
Suffern Thorne	Robert Cain

In "The Spendthrift," that was given its first public performance in New York at the Hudson Theatre last night, the author has been under the disadvantage of having an all too brief story to carry through four acts. By skillful writing he has been able to hide some of the attenuation under which the plot development suffered, but even his snappy dialogue and well-devised scenes are scarcely enough to intensify the piece. The audience last night was very friendly, and insisted on a speech from the author, although the author seemed disinclined to grant the request.

The story is about a spendthrift wife and a hard-working husband, driven to bankruptcy through her extravagance. The idea of losing all of the things she most likes makes her borrow a sum sufficient, as she thinks, to save her husband from ruin. The lender happens to be a notorious character, whom the husband suspects of having some motive other than generosity for lending the money. After learning that his wife has lied about one thing he suspects her about others, and forces her to call her generous friend to her room at night. The husband learns that the wife is innocent of any wrong. She leaves him, however, and five months later she is discovered living in a single room and making a living as governess. Forgiveness and tears conclude the story. A millionaire aunt with common sense, a lawyer friend, and a couple of young lovers add to the important characters.

Edmund Breese as the husband received a warm welcome, and his performance of the part won him many scene calls. Thais Magrane was the wife. Gwendolyn Piers as the ingenue sweetheart, Jack Devereaux as her lover, T. Daniel Frawley as the lawyer, and Robert Cain as the suspected benefactor, were other principals. Mattie Ferguson as the rich aunt found great favor.

Mathers Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milton Mather celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding last evening at their home, 16 West 122d Street. Mrs. Mather is the daughter of the late Andrew Mills, who founded the Dry Dock Savings Institution. He was President of the bank until his death, when he was succeeded by his son, Andrew Mills, who is still at the head of the institution. Mr. Mather is the eldest son of the late Deacon George Mather of Darien, Conn., who celebrated his golden wedding in 1876, his mother being present, then in her ninety-fifth year. Mr. Mather is the grandson of the fourth generation of the Rev. Moses Mather, first pastor of the Darien church from 1744 until his death in 1806, a period of sixty-two years. On the exterior wall of the Darien church is a tablet bearing the following inscription:

"On Sunday, July 22, 1781, while engaged in public worship in the building then occupying this site, the Rev. Dr. Moses Mather and fifty men of his congregation were captured by British troops and taken to New York, where several of them perished in prison."

Mr. Mather is a descendant from the Rev. Richard Mather, founder of the family in this country in 1635, when he emigrated from England to Boston, Mass., where he preached until his death, and was followed in the ministry by his son, Increase, who was also President of Harvard College, and by his illustrious son, Cotton Mather, D. D.

Clarence Pell's Ushers.

At the wedding of Miss Madeline Borland and Clarence Pell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Pell, which takes place on Tuesday, May 17, in the Church of the Incarnation, Mr. Pell's best man will be Griswold Lorillard, and his ushers are to be Charles Brown, Richmond Talbot, Arthur Jones, Orme Wilson, Jr., and Morton Newhall of Providence, and Charles Leonard of Boston. Mr. Pell's brother, Herbert C. Pell, Jr., is still abroad.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

At the Lyceum Theatre this afternoon the children who will take part in the performance of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" at Wallack's Theatre next Friday, will be entertained by other child actors, under the management of Daniel Frohman, Mrs. D. H. Davison, Mrs. Walter J. Heimann, and Mrs. James Speyer.

The last performance of Hans Dober's play, "The Greenhorns," will be given at the Irving Place Theatre to-night. To-morrow night there will be a revival of Gustav Davis's farce, "Das Heiratsnest," ("The Marriage Nest.")

At Wallack's Theatre last night Elsie Leslie appeared for the first time in the rôle of Rose Lane, formerly played by Laurette Taylor, in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Members of the New York National League baseball team were in the audience.

Hitch together such a sound and strong team of arguments, and of course youths are drawn to our stores.

STYLE—three models of which even the most ultra is distinctly a gentleman's style.

ECONOMY—fabrics and making that save in the long run.

Youth is not necessary to qualify for youths' suits. Any man with a chest measure of 32 to 35 inches can come in.

Youths' Spring suits, $16 to $32.

All our raincoats are real "Cravenette," proofed by the genuine Priestley Process.

But that's only half the story.

"Cravenette" is a rainproofing Process—we believe the best Process.

It can not, however, make a serviceable cloth out of a poor one.

So it is of prime importance that all our raincoats are of fine all-wool and fast color fabrics.

Here's another strong team—two bargains.

TWO GIANTS SCORE ON 'SQUEEZE PLAY'

Meyers Taps Ball to Second Baseman as Devlin and Merkle Start Double Steal.

Taken in its entirety, the game between the Giants and the Jersey City team of the Eastern League at the Polo Grounds yesterday, which the New Yorkers won by a score of 10 to 8, was about as slow and uninteresting as baseball can be. There was, however, one piece of brilliant work which accomplished what the most dyed-in-the-wool enthusiast might consider bordering close to the impossible. The participants were Meyers, Devlin, and Merkle, and a double squeeze play was accomplished by the trio in the fifth inning. Meyers had the big stick, and Devlin thought it a good chance to try to steal. He started from third and Merkle from second as Walker was winding up to throw the ball to the plate. Meyers worked his end of it by tapping a grounder past Walker toward second, and Devlin and Merkle dashed across the plate. The best Loudy could accomplish under the situation was to head Meyers off at first. It was by far the neatest play that has been pulled off in a considerable time.

The rest of the game, however, was of a tame order. Undoubtedly the cold weather had a great deal to do with it, for it was decidedly chilly by the time the game was called, and there was no abatement of the condition as one inning succeeded another, but there was rather an increase of the weather's ill temper.

"Bugs" Raymond found things very much to the contrary of his wishes, or at any rate that is the charitable way to put it. The Skeeters scattered hits here and there during the first few innings by way of becoming acquainted, and then in the fifth they pounded the big pitcher's delivery in a most lamentable fashion. Five runs totaled the extent of the damage, in which three hits and two bases on balls figured, and the game that looked clinched in the second inning, when the Giants pounded out five runs, was a tie.

Just before Raymond went to pieces completely, McGraw was contemplating a change in the whole team, that of taking all of the first team out of the game and substituting a new combination. The work of the Jerseyites, however, made him think better of the plan for an inning or two, and then, after the Giants had apparently packed the contest in their knapsacks with a total of four runs at the conclusion of the fifth inning, fresh men supplanted the others in every position.

Weimer took a turn at pitching, and he was little more effective than Raymond, for he had a disastrous session in the eighth, when five hits were marked against him and three runs crossed the plate for the men from across the river. If it had not been for rather stupid base running on the part of the New Jersey players, they might have pulled into a tie or even taken the lead. The score:

Reulbach, pitcher for the Chicago Nationals, who is seriously ill with diphtheria at his home here, was said to-night to be resting more comfortably. The crisis is expected to-morrow. His physician declares it will be at least a month, if Reulbach recovers, before he will be able to don a uniform again.

Station G Wins Post Office Game.

The Station G baseball team defeated that of Station J yesterday afternoon at McAvoy's Field, 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, by the score of 11 to 5. The feature was the pitching of Gimeney of the Station G team, who struck out fourteen of the opposing team's men. This is the first game of the series that will be played this season between the different branches of the Post Office.

Tinker and Hofman Not Arrested.

HEYDLER IN WASHINGTON.

Talks on Rule Barring Photographers and of Kling Case.

John Heydler, Secretary and Treasurer of the National League, has been spending a few days in Washington, and expects to see the game to-day between the American Leaguers and Jack Dunn's Baltimore team. Heydler is enthusiastic over baseball affairs at the National capital. "I have been a resident of Washington for twenty-two years, and this is the first time that the city has been on a substantial standing," is the way he puts it. "Much credit is due the men behind the club, for they are giving it their attention and support, and I hope that Jim McAleer will turn out a winner, and from all that I can learn he will come pretty near doing it this year."

In speaking of the rule which President Lynch has ordered enforced against the presence of photographers on the playing field after the game starts, Heydler says:

"Rule 75 will be enforced until such time as the League sees fit to wipe it off of the books, or so amended it as to allow photographers on the field. Under existing conditions the presence of photographers may cause a team to lose a game, and if it were protested it would be shown that the President of the League had not enforced the rules. Personally, I believe that the game gets much publicity of the proper kind from the pictures that are taken during a game, but there is the rule, and there is nothing to do but to enforce it."

Of the decision in the Kling case Heydler made plain the reason why the rules which banishes a player from the game for a period of years for violating his contract, did not apply to the case of the Chicago catcher.

"The rule," says Heydler, "is that when a player violates the reserve clause of his contract and then plays with an outlaw club he shall be suspended from organized baseball for three years, and for four years if he should jump his contract. It would have been this latter rule which would have applied in Kling's case if he had joined an outlaw team, but he never did that, and consequently could not be kept out of baseball, though he was fined."

LIEBGOLD TURNS "PRO."

Champion A. A. U. Walker to Coach Curtis High School Athletes.

Samuel Liebgold of the Pastime Athletic Club has decided to desert the amateur ranks and follow the example of Lawson Robertson and Harry Hillman by turning professional coach.

Liebgold has accepted the offer to train the boys at the Curtis High School, Staten Island, and will begin his new work at once. Liebgold has held the walking championship of the Amateur Athletic Union continuously since 1891, during which time he has won fully forty National championships. In addition, Liebgold is an expert boxer, wrestler, and gymnast, having competed for prizes in all these branches of sports.

ALOHA HAS TRIAL SPIN.

Commodore James and Party Bring Flagship Down to Cape Cod.

BOSTON, April 11.—The new auxiliary bark-rigged yacht Aloha, which will be the flagship of the New York Yacht Club, owned by Commodore Arthur C. James, was put through her trial paces off Boston Light to-day in a light northerly breeze.

The Aloha, with her owner and several friends on board, came down from Quincy under power, but on getting outside the light dropped her big sails and headed off in the direction of Cape Cod, moving along smartly before the gentle breeze.

Ainsworth Too Light for Navy Crew.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 11.—Owing to his lack of weight W. L. Ainsworth, Captain of the Naval Academy boat crew, is not rowing in the first boat at present and may fail to win a seat during the season. He is lighter by ten pounds than any other member of the crew and Coach Glendon finds it difficult to place him. He is now stroking the second crew and may still find a place in the first eight, as he is an excellent oarsman. The Harvard rowing squad is expected here Friday evening and will remain until Thursday or Friday of next week, depending upon the date fixed for the race.

Britons Not Likely to Row Here.

LONDON, April 11.—R. G. M. Gridley, Secretary of the British Amateur Rowing Association, said to-day that no action yet had been taken regarding the invitation to English crews to take part in the American National regatta of 1910, which will be held in August on the Potomac River at Washington. He thought, however, that the English oarsmen would not be able to find time to accept.

Oarsmen Have Training Table.

In preparation for the Annapolis race early in May, twelve 'Varsity oarsmen were sent to the training table at Columbia yesterday. They were R. K. Murphy, '10 S.; F. Miller, '11 S.; F. S. Dellenbaugh, '10 S.; F. Culman, 12 C.; J. I. Moore, Jr., 12 S.; A. M. Hamann, '10 S.; L. R. Clapp, '10 S.; W. Steinschneider, '10 S.; S. Pitt, '11 S.; J. Steckler, Sp.; J. W. Pulleyn, '12 C., and J. T. Kemp, '12 S.

The seniors and juniors made their start yesterday in practice for the interclass race on May 17, each class getting a full eight out on the river. The second-year men and the Law School oarsmen will take their try in the barges to-morrow.

Breeders Oppose Anti-Betting Bill.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 11.—Writing a "round robin," urging the New York Legislature to defeat the bill to prohibit oral betting on horse races many breeders of thoroughbred horses in Kentucky to-day sent a telegram to State Senator E. T. Brackett, Chairman of the Codes Committee. The breeders declare that a law against oral betting would strike a vital blow at the horse breeding industry, already crippled by antagonistic legislation.

Vanderbilt's Sir Peter Wins Race.

PARIS, April 11.—The Prix des Villas, run at Saint Cloud to-day, was won by W. K. Vanderbilt's Sir Peter. Mr. Vanderbilt's Ramesseum finished second in the Prix Simonian.

Harmsworth Cup Race for 1910.

At a meeting of the Motor Boat Committee of the Automobile Club of America held at the clubhouse yesterday afternoon it was decided to hold the Harmsworth Cup race this year on waters adjacent to the Larchmont Yacht Club.

NOTES FOR THE GOLFERS.

The annual invitation tournament of the Garden City Golf Club, to be held May 5, 6, and 7, will differ little from previous Spring affairs of this organization. According to the programme the fun will start with an eighteen-hole testing round in the morning, contestants to qualify in two sixteens. Those making the first division will continue on at match play for the President's Cup, while the second sixteen will qualify for the Hempstead Cup. The first match round is scheduled for the afternoon of May 5. In addition to the two regular sixteens the beaten eight in the first flight will have a chance to try again for the Garden City Cup. Final rounds for all three trophies, on Saturday, May 7, will be at thirty-six holes. An eighteen-hole medal play handicap is also on the cards for the last day, and contestants may compete in this event either morning or afternoon. Except for the handicap, entries will close on May 2.

The competitive season at the Glen Ridge Golf Club will begin on Saturday, and from then on to Thanksgiving Day there will be plenty to keep the members busy. Alec Cunningnam, the professional who was with Dave Ogilvie at Augusta during the Winer, will be in charge again at Glen Ridge.

The Wykagyl Country Club has a greenkeeper in addition to a professional this season. Alec Smith continues as the club's "pro." It is said that the club has plans to greatly improve the course this season and incidentally smooth out a few of the putting greens.

Under the watchful eye of Jack Campbell, the new professional at the Forest Hill Field Club, the course is rapidly rounding into condition. All save four of the Summer greens are now in commission, and the first ball sweepstakes of the season will be run off next Saturday.

YANKEES ON HILLTOP BEAT PRINCETON, 5-2

American Leaguers' Homecoming Marred by Raw Atmosphere and Small Crowd.

The Princeton baseball team was the formidable guest of the New York Americans in the opening tussle at American League Park yesterday, the Yankees tucking the Tigers away by a score of 5 to 2. The battle was closer than the score indicates, and erratic fielding played a part in some of New York's scores. They came far from getting acquainted with the service of Woodle, the big Princeton pitcher. Six hits were the best the Yankees could get, while the collegians corralled five off Vaughn and Doyle.

A fair-sized crowd braved the raw atmosphere to welcome the Yankees home, and as each man came to the bat he got attention from admirers in the stands and bleachers. It was too cold for good baseball, and the players failed to handle the ball with anything like warm weather agility. Manager Stallings was unable to present his regular line-up on account of the indisposition of Earl Gardner, who is expected to cavort some around second base this season. Cree was at second and Engle took Cree's place in the outfield. Lou Criger was behind the bat and got a fine reception, but the day was too cold for him to do good work, and he didn't display the ginger that is due from him when it is 89 degrees in the shade. The collegians were fast on the bases, and grabbed several sacks during the game.

Jim Vaughn gave an encouraging exhibition in the box, allowing four scattered hits and fanning eight Tigers. He worked in harmony with Criger, and in the fifth struck out three Princetonians in a row. Doyle pitched the last three innings, and allowed but a single hit, a sharp rap past second base by Dawson in the ninth. Doyle mowed down the next two men in short order.

The Princeton nine showed plenty of life and some baseball knowledge, and made the game interesting. They are tutored by Bill Clark, who used to be a big leaguer, and who is now manager of the Albany Club of the New York State League. Woodle, who was in the box, hurled the ball with speed and kept the enemy close to the bases. Capt. Dawson makes a gingery backstop and pegs to second like an old-timer. Ballin, the rightfielder, was all over the lot, and pulled down seven fly balls, getting some of them only after hard sprinting.

The Yankees got a couple of runs in the second. Engle singled to left and went to second on Woodle's wild pitch. Foster flied out to Ballin, and Austin shot an exclusive grounder through second, scoring Engle and reaching the second station himself. Criger hit to right, pushing Austin to third, and he came through on Hemphill's single to left. In the fourth inning the Yankees didn't get a hit, but squeezed in two runs. Foster and Austin walked, were sacrificed along a station by Criger, and the duo trotted home when Hemphill bounced a roller to little Read at short, who tossed it far over the first sacker's head into the vicinity of the bleachers. The last run for the homecomers was chronicled in the fifth. Cree was hit on the back of the hand by a pitched ball, went to second on Engle's sacrifice, to Base No. 3 on a wild pitch, and scored when Woodle foozled Austin's bunt.

The Tigers tallied in the third. Ballin walked, stole second, and went home when Criger threw wild to second. In the sixth Read walked, hurried to third on Vaughn's wild pitch, and was sent home on White's spunky bunt to Vaughn, which he beat to Chase's station. The score:

Yankees No. 2 Sweep Their Series.

Special to The New York Times.

LANCASTER, Penn., April 11.—By defeating the Lancaster team, Tri-State League champions, here to-day 8 to 1 the New York Americans No. 2 made a clean sweep of their exhibition series since leaving Athens, Ga., over a week ago. The features of to-day's game were the batting of Knight, who made a triple and a home run, and the fine pitching of Chunn. Had the latter not hit a batter in the final inning the local club would have been blanked, as he held them to three hits and fanned eight men. The team left for New York to-night. Score by innings:

New Rule Has Robison Guessing.

M. Stanley Robison, owner of the St. Louis National League Club, is rather perplexed over the rule forcing the teams to cut to twenty-five players by May 10. What Robison would like to know is whether players who have not reported to the club are included in the twenty-five. On his reserve list he has Enright of California and Cowell of Decatur, Ill., from whom he never expects to get any services. Enright refuses to play under any consideration. Cowell is unable to play because of injuries in a mine explosion. "Enright cost me a lot of money," Robison says, "and it does not seem fair that I should be asked to release him unconditionally. He might decide to play in the future, and I would be out of pocket and also the services of the player. The same condition exists in the case of Cowell. I paid good money for him last Summer. Since he was injured I have been told that it is questionable whether he will ever be able to play ball. But if he recovers he should be my property. In the meantime I should not be forced to carry him."

Outfielder Stone Refuses to Play.

The St. Louis American League Club is likely to lose the services of Outfielder George Stone this season, owing to a reduction in salary. Stone refused to report for the training trip because his salary was cut from $5,000 to $3,500. For the last two years he has been drawing $5,000, but after his poor showing last season a contract was tendered him calling for a cut of $1,500. Stone refused the lesser amount and so notified President Hedges. Two years ago Stone held out for an advance in salary. The team went South without him, but the outfielder was lined up before the season started and signed a two-years' contract.

Berkeley and Sachs in Tie.

The baseball game between Berkeley School and Sachs School which was played yesterday afternoon on the Berkeley Oval resulted in a tie, the score at the end of the sixth inning, when the game was called on account of darkness, being 13 to 13. The tie game will be played off next Monday on the same field.

Changes in Yale's Nine.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 11.—With the return of the Yale nine of Capt. Philbin to-day a shake-up was ordered. Walter Taylor, a former University of Chicago player, was placed as catcher in place of Barger, who was sent to left field, supplanting Cahart. Loutrel was displaced at short stop, Dick Merritt, Freshman Captain and third baseman last year being tried out. These changes will be tried in the Yale-Harvard game Wednesday.

UFFENHEIMER LOSES MATCH.

Dr. Douglas Shows Best Form in 18.2 Billiard Championship.

Dr. Walter G. Douglas of the New York Athletic Club won his first game in the amateur 18.2 billiard championship tournament at the Hamilton Club, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon when he defeated Dr. Walter E. Uffenheimer of the Columbia Club of Philadelphia by a score of 400 to 305 in a match that extended sixty-two innings. The result was a surprise to those who have been following the championship play. Dr. Douglas has not shown proficiency in play, and Dr. Uffenheimer on the other hand has been improving with every match until that of yesterday.

That the latter was undoubtedly off his game was shown by the fact that he could not get together a cluster of more than 31 as a result of the play in any inning. His counts were mostly much below that figure, there being many zeros and strings that did not reach beyond the total of four or five. The average which Dr. Uffenheimer made was 4 57-62.

Dr. Douglas established his high-run mark of the tournament, a cleverly executed string of 43, and his average, too, was the best that he has been able to get thus far, it being 6 28-62. The scores:

AFTERNOON GAME.

Douglas—6 5 7 1 2 25 1 8 1 1 28 34 6 0 0 43 4 21 5 1 0 2 24 0 3 2 19 13 17 9 9 0 1 0 14 5 1 11 0 0 2 10 2 0 4 0 3 0 15 1 6 0 0 1 3 0 3 0 15 2 3. Total—400. Average—6 28-62. High runs—43, 34, and 28.

The evening game brought together Edward W. Gardner of the Montclair Athletic Club and Joseph Mayer of the Columbia Club of Philadelphia. It was a hard-fought struggle between the two, the contest taking nearly four hours, and was won by Gardner by the narrow margin of 400 to 378.

Mayer had the lead in the match until the last hundred points, and it seemed that he would certainly win, but carelessness marked his efforts toward the last, and Gardner took full advantage of the situation, making a strong finish. Then, too, there was an incident in the twenty-third inning which had a direct bearing on the result. Mayer played his first point and counted easily, but on his second effort was credited with nothing, according to the referee. It was stated by several, however, that the second object ball moved and that the carrom was completed. Mayer did not protest, however. The set-up which resulted gave Gardner an opportunity to run a string of 43, so that the decision materially affected the result. The score:

Results of Billiard Matches.

C. H. Warrington (2) defeated Charles Hansell (scratch) in last night's game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at McGraw's Billiard Academy, by the score of 32 to 29 in 129 innings. Warrington's high run was 8, and Hansell's was 2. In to-night's game C. H. Beyers will cross cues with Louis Pell.

In the first block of the 500-point 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at the Washington Heights Billiard Academy, 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, last night, D. Weiner defeated C. Garfinkle by the score of 250 to 244. Weiner made a high run of 56, and an average of 7 34-36, and Garfinkle's high run was 54, and his average, 7 30-35.

In last night's game of the amateur three-cushion carrom billiard tournament in progress at John Doyle's Billiard Academy, Forty-second Street and Broadway, J. Van Raalte defeated H. Beck in a very closely contested game by the score of 20 to 19. To-night D. Sullivan will oppose H. Turner.

Walsh to Box Pal Moore.

Jimmy Walsh, claimant of the world's bantamweight championship, and Pal Moore will furnish the entertainment in the star bout at the Empire Athletic Club, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue, on Thursday evening, April 21. There will be no stag at the Empire Athletic Club this week. The managers of the club have decided to hold off in order to give Walsh more time to get into condition for the contest with Moore.

William Beecher and Maxey Baker of Boston will meet at the Long Acre Athletic Association in West Twenty-ninth Street Thursday evening. Both boys are in great condition, and each is beginning to put the finishing touches to his training. Besides this contest, Manager Newman has arranged several excellent preliminaries.

LIVE WIRE NEARLY FALLS ON JEFFRIES

Fighter Cuts Down Tree, Which Brings String of Power Wires Close to Him.

BEN LEMONDE, Cal., April 11.—The old question of whether hard luck is camping on the trail of James J. Jeffries, determined to put him out for the count before he gets a chance to show what he can do against Jack Johnson on July 4, came to the front again to-day at Jeffries's training camp, when the fighter had a close call from death or injury by a live wire.

Jeffries went to cut down a redwood tree, accompanied by Farmer Burns and Jack Woolley, an Oakland sportsman. When the tree fell it crashed through a string of power wires, and the ends of a highly charged wire dropped close to Jeffries. Those near the champion were frightened thoroughly, but Jeffries did not show any emotion. He went right to work cutting logs and chopping wood.

Rain made outdoor work impossible in the morning. The sparring sessions were postponed again without any apparent reason other than that Jeffries did not feel in the mood to box. In place of this, Jeffries went through the full list of the gymnasium apparatus, working himself into a fine glow.

The monotony of the camp was broken during the afternoon by a wrestling match between Farmer Burns and Baron Carl Henkel, an officer of the German Army, who was a visitor at the camp. The baron thought he could win from Burns easily, and several wagers were made on the outcome of the match. Burns, however, scored a fall in 2 minutes and 35 seconds.

Sam Berger, Jeffries's manager, returned to camp to-day. Berger would make no announcement as to the first boxing performance, which is looked forward to anxiously as giving the only true light on Jeffries's condition. Carpenters will start to-morrow lifting the roof from the gymnasium to admit more light and air.

Mrs. Jeffries was taken slightly ill to-night, and she will leave for Oakland to-morrow.

JOHNSON BEGINS TRAINING.

Will Start for San Francisco April 20, Making Several Stops.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Jack Johnson to-day started training for his fight with J. J. Jeffries for the heavyweight title of the world. For more than an hour he boxed with Joe Cotton. "I was just feeling myself out to-day," said Johnson. "From now on I will live up to a regular programme until April 20. Then I start for San Francisco. I will stop on the way West at Omaha, Kansas City, and Los Angeles."

RAINSTORM HALTS WESTON.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWALK, Ohio, April 11.—Cleveland is not to be snubbed, as threatened repeatedly by Edward Payson Weston, veteran pedestrian, on his Los Angeles to New York walk. Because Chief of Police Fred Kohler, who two years ago refused an escort to Weston, is absent from Cleveland, Weston announced to-night he would make Cleveland a point of call.

Weston halted in Monroeville, a few miles west of this city, at 9 o'clock to-night, because of a heavy rainfall. He walked from Toledo to-day, being accompanied by Louis L. Dipman, a pedestrian of Norwalk. He hopes to arrive in Cleveland at dark to-morrow night. He has a promise of police protection.

'KNOCKOUT' BROWN GETS HARD BEATING

Willie Beecher Puts Opponent Down, but Cannot Keep Him There for Count.

Willie Beecher gave "Knockout" Brown the worst beating of his career last night in the main ten-round bout at the Olympic Athletic Club in the presence of 1,500 members. Not only did the little east sider establish a decisive lead in all but the second and fourth rounds—which were even—but he duplicated his performance of a few weeks ago by dropping Brown in the eighth round for the count of seven, and only some very clever stalling on the latter's part saved him from a knockout.

Brown has long been reputed to be a glutton for punishment. He proved last night that he deserves whatever honor may accrue from such a reputation. Beecher hooked, swung, jabbed, and uppercut him until Brown reeled, but, try as he might, Beecher was unable to land the final punch. As it was, a worse beaten man, barring a complete knockout, never left the ring at the end of a ten-round fight than Brown last night.

Beecher started proceedings by landing light lefts twice to the face, and then Brown put a right to body. Beecher caught Brown coming in with a right hook to the mouth and followed this with three terrific rights to jaw. Brown commenced to swing wildly, but they all passed harmlessly around Beecher's back and neck. Brown started with a rush in the second, but Beecher straightened him out with a left hook to to the face. Following repeated clinches, in which both scored, Brown landed left to head and right to face.

The third was a repetition of the first, and the fourth very much like the second, with Beecher unmarked and Brown taking an awful walloping. In the fifth Beecher cut loose and landed terrific right hooks repeatedly on the face. Beecher then let go with a perfect whirlwind of short swings and hooks that made Brown hang on and then swing wildly. The east sider staggered Brown with a left to jaw and right to body, and then started his mouth to bleeding with a series of hard left jabs. The sixth and seventh were very much like the fifth, with the tide of battle all Beecher's way. In fact, Brown did not land a clean blow in these two rounds.

With the bell in the eighth Brown rushed across the ring, to be met with a hard left flush on the mouth. Two right hooks to the jaw staggered him and made him still wilder than he had been with his flail-like swings. Beecher then dropped him for the count of seven with a terrific right to jaw. Brown got up gamely and rushed into a clinch. Beecher did not take time to measure distance, and his blows landed, but not on the right spot nor with their full force. The gong saved Brown from further punishment.

Brown did nothing in the ninth except to stop, with his face and body, a perfect rain of blows that started his nose and mouth bleeding afresh. In the tenth Beecher landed every kind of blow that has ever been seen in a ring, and all that Brown could do was to swing wildly or hang on hard. The gong found him very groggy, but fighting bravely to what would have been an inevitable knockout in a round or two more.

Tommy Houck of Philadelphia did unmerciful things to Kid Ghetto in the six-round semi-final, although he was unable to hit the east side lad hard enough to knock him out.

O'LEARY AND CONLON DRAW.

New Bantamweight Champion Does Not Show Much Form.

"Young" O'Leary, an east side bantam, fought Johnny Coulon, the new bantamweight champion, in the main bout at the Marathon Athletic Club last night, and, finishing the ten round in whirlwind fashion, earned a good draw, if indeed he did not have slightly the better of it, although not enough so as to get the decision.

O'Leary had the advantage in the second, sixth, and tenth rounds, and Coulon carried off the honors in the first, third, and ninth. The other rounds were even. It was announced that both boys had weighed in during the afternoon well under 115 pounds.

Coulon sent left to face in the second and then O'Leary put left and right to head, whereupon they clinched. They exchanged lefts to head and rights to body. O'Leary landed hard rights on the stomach and Coulon hung on. O'Leary repeated and then hooked right to heart, following this with a stiff left hook to the face. O'Leary pounded the body at close quarters and landed left and right to head. After O'Leary had landed two rights to the body they exchanged lefts, mixing it fast, after which the bell interrupted further proceedings.

They crossed rights to the head, and then O'Leary sent a right uppercut to mouth and right and left swings to body. Coulon pounded the kidneys with hard rights, and then they mixed it in fierce manner, with O'Leary having a bit the better of it. The east sider staggered Coulon with a terrific right to jaw, but just as he jumped in to finish the job the gong rang.

It was one of the fastest exhibitions seen in New York for some time, and the crowded house frequently voiced its hearty approval at the way things were going. O'Leary surprised even his best friends by his good showing, whereas Coulon was something of a disappointment for a champion.

NEW SWIMMING RECORDS.

N. Y. A. C. Relay Team Lowers Time for 400 and 500 Yards.

In a special match race held yesterday afternoon in the tank of the City Athletic Club the New York Athletic Club quintet, composed of C. M. Daniels, L. B. Goodwin, M. Nerich, C. D. Trubenbach, and George South, established new American relay records for 400 and 500 yards. They swam against an all-star team of fellow New York Athletic Club men, made up of C. McCarthy, Jr., A. McAleenan, Jr., H. O'Sullivan, R. O'Sullivan, and T. O'Sullivan.

The races had been arranged with the special object in view of setting new figures for the two distances, and the plan was more than ordinarily successful. The old figure of 4:03 4-5 for 400 yards, made by the Chicago Athletic Club, was reduced to 4:00 2-5 by Daniels and his associates. The 500-yard record of 5:08 3-5, held by the New York Athletic Club, fell to 5:02 2-5.

In the assault on the 500-yard record C. M. Daniels did his relay of 100 yards in 0:55 1-5, and Nerich was the next fastest swimmer, getting through the water in the fine time of 0:58 3-5.

Yale to Start Football Scrimmaging.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 11.—Football scrimmaging was to-night announced by Capt. Fred Daly to begin to-morrow. He plans to continue it daily to some extent until the Spring practice closes in two weeks. Daly will be assisted by George Ade of New York City, the former Yale quarterback. It is likely that the work will be in secret, although old "Hamilton Park," where the squad is now practicing, has no gates that can be closed. Careful account will be made of the new rules and their practicability. Capt. Daly to-night issued orders to the members of the squad to wear heavily padded uniforms to-morrow and be ready for rugged line forcing. Yale has never before tried scrimmage practice at the Spring drill.

BURNS WINS ON POINTS.

Australasians Displeased with Decision That Defeats Lang at Sydney.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 11.—Tommy Burns won on points from Bill Lang, heavyweight champion of Australia, in the twentieth round of their fight for the Australian title to-day. The decision was not popular with the crowd, for, though Burns had the better of the first ten rounds, he weakened in the latter half of the fight, while Lang rallied.

The weather was fine and the fight was witnessed by 17,000 persons. The betting was 3 to 1 on Burns when the men entered the ring. Burns tipped the scales at 181 pounds, and Lang at 188 pounds. The referee was Hugh McIntosh.

Both men wore bandages. The first ten rounds were fast, Burns having the advantage. Thereafter Lang evened up matters, Burns, though more clever, tiring perceptibly and ducking repeatedly. In the sixth round Burns roughed Lang through the ropes and was hooted by the crowd. Lang, however, rose and shook hands with the American as the bell rang.

In the ninth round Burns punished the Australian champion severely, but the latter fought back gamely. Lang made a splendid rally in the twelfth, and, receiving a left to the ear and nose, responded twice with a hard right to the other's jaw. During the last eight rounds Lang fought cautiously, while Burns plainly weakened and forced repeated clinches. McIntosh gave the fight to the American on points.

Chief interest in the Burns-Lang bout was derived from the fact that Burns is the man whose defeat by Jack Johnson earned for the American colored pugilist the title of heavyweight champion of the world and afforded him an opportunity to meet James J. Jeffries. Johnson met Lang at Melbourne on March 4, 1907, and easily whipped the Victorian pugilist in nine rounds. At Sydney, on Dec. 26, 1908, Johnson defeated Burns, who had claimed the heavyweight title after it was relinquished by Jeffries. This fight was stopped in the fourteenth round, when Burns was practically helpless.

Lang had won the Australian title by knocking out Bill Squires, his fellow-countryman, on Oct. 25 last.

NATIONAL AMATEUR BOXING.

Few New Yorkers Win A. A. U. Bouts Held in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 11.—The trial bouts for the A. A. U. National amateur boxing championships were held to-night, with twenty-three matches on the card. New York fared badly, as the Gotham boxers failed to win except in a few instances. BEGIN FIGHT TO UPSET WILL.

Niece and Nephew Want Share of Mrs. Brundage's $250,000 Estate.

Mrs. Gertrude A. Forman of 512 Fifth Avenue and William H. Young of Tuxedo and Biarritz, France, niece and nephew, respectively, of Mrs. Caroline Amelia Brundage, who died last November, have brought suit to upset her will. If successful they will divide an estate of worth approximately a quarter of a million dollars. Surrogate Thomas heard testimony in the case yesterday and will continue the hearings to-day.

Mrs. Brundage's will, which was executed at the Plaza Hotel, on June 23 last, appointed the Rev. Nathan A. Seagle of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company executors and trustees. The witnesses were Arthur O. Townsend and Frank H. Vedder, lawyers, who drew the will, and Alvin Ohlsen.

Among the bequests in the will are $10,000 to the Rev. Mr. Seagle, $7,000 to his church, $20,000 to St. Luke's Hospital, $2,000 to the Woman's Hospital, $5,000 to the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples, and $2,000 to Joseph McLoughlin, Mrs. Brundage's coachman.

Attorney Townsend, who was a witness yesterday for the proponents, was searchingly cross-examined concerning codicils which he had prepared, but which had never been executed. The attorneys for the contestants declared that their object was to show that the will as executed did no trepresent the wishes of the testatrix.

The petitioners enumerate all the objections specified in the Code of Civil Procedure, but it was stated yesterday they will concentrate their fight in an effort to show that Mrs. Brundage's use of alcoholic beverages had destroyed her testamentary capacity and that she was under the influence of a certain clergyman.

Big salmon are giving anglers good sport at Sebago Lake, in Maine. Fish weighing from five to eight pounds were caught several times last week. On Saturday, John Brennan of Brooklyn caught a four-and-a-half pounder and William Church of Lowell, Mass., got one weighing three pounds. The record for the day, however, was two seven-and-a-half pounders landed by two Maine anglers.

The Taurus of the Iron Steamboat Company will make her first trip to the Fishing Banks on next Sunday. Her trips will be continuous with the exception of Mondays of April, May, November, and December.

According to Capt. Al Foster of the Angler, ling are in abundance, and a sprinkling of codfish at the Hudson-Fulton banks. The weather during the past week, however, was not favorable for fishing, the wind being a severe handicap. The ling caught were of fine size, and Capt. Foster promises good sport this week if the conditions are suitable.

Eels are reported numerous in Cheesequake Creek, a short row from Perth Amboy, N. J. While bobbing on Sunday, two members of the Jersey City Fishing Club caught fourteen of the largest ones that have been taken from the creek in a long time.

Notwithstanding the high wind that prevailed in Jamaica Bay on Sunday, many catches of flounders were reported. At the Raunt, Harry Martin and James Purcell of the Henry Davis Fishing Association of Brooklyn caught eighteen between them, not one of which weighed less than one pound.

Shad and herring are being freely caught in Chesapeake Bay, in the vicinity of Chesapeake Beach. There have been but little rod and line fishing indulged in, but when herring become very plentiful it is possible to land perch and other fish with rod and line.

There were many fishermen on the Ulmer Park pier on Sunday, and while the strong wind affected the sport few came away disappointed. One of the best records of the day was made by Dick Oglesby of Flatbush, who caught eight flounders and six tomcods.

Mississippi catfish are plentiful in the deep water of the Potomac River between the Highway and Chain Bridges, and good catches have been made recently. Some of the fish caught this season have weighed as much as fifteen pounds, while channel catfish caught in the Eastern Branch have scaled as much as four pounds.

More fishermen were at City Island on Sunday than on any other day this year, and, although handicapped by a high wind and rough water, some good results were obtained. The best fishing was near the bridge, where flounders and tomcods seemed to be very plentiful. Two Harlem men made about the largest returns of the day, landing between them sixteen flounders and twelve tomcods.

A NAME THAT STANDS FOR SOMETHING

LICENSED UNDER THE SELDEN PATENT

More Standard Features Now Generally Found on High Powered Cars Appeared First and in Greater Number on the LOZIER Than on Any Other Standard Make of Car

In 1904-5 the LOZIER car was built with 36-inch wheels, long wheel base, magneto, annular ball-bearings, and nickel steel front axles. No other American car possessed all these features, yet every standard American car has them all this year. In 1905-6 the LOZIER car was regularly equipped with the Bosch magneto, the first standard car in America to use this magneto. In this year also were introduced four-speed selective type transmission and double ignition system. No other American car at that time possessed all the above features, although they are almost universally found on this season's standard cars. The multiple disc-clutch was also incorporated in the LOZIER cars of 1905-6, a form of clutch which has since been generally adopted by the makers of high-class cars.

Brake equalizers and adjustments, clutch brakes, cast metal fly-wheel pans, valve stem oilers, the elimination of universal joints, the use of ball-bearing cam-shafts and crank-shaft, are later improvements of the LOZIER which are being used or will be used on other cars.

High-class cars are not disposed of by their owners annually for the reason that they are worn out, but for the reason, in most instances, that they become out-of-date because of important improvements. The fact that improvements are foreseen by our designers and utilized several years in advance of other cars renders it unnecessary for the owner of a LOZIER car to change from year to year to remain up-to-date, and emphasizes our claim that the LOZIER, in demand at a higher figure than any other motor car built, is proven LEGITIMATELY HIGH-PRICED.

PHILIPPINE JUNKET DINNER.

Mr. Taft Again Meets Fifty Members of the Famous Party.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The annual dinner of the party conducted by President Taft, then Secretary of War, to the Philippines in 1905, which resulted in at least three famous weddings—that of Representative Longworth and Miss Alice Roosevelt, of ex-Representative Bourke Cockran and Miss Ide, and of Representative Swagar Sherley and Miss Crittenden—was held here to-night.

President Taft welcomed fifty members of that jovial company which he chaperoned through the Orient. Representative and Mrs. Longworth and Mr. and Mrs. Bourke Cockran were not present, but Representative and Mrs. Sherley were there to testify to the President's ability as a Prince Cupid.

The President spoke briefly and read a resolution of condolence on the death of Representative De Armond of Missouri, who was a member of the party. The resolution was dispatched to his family.

Among the guests were Senator and Mrs. Nathan B. Scott, Senator and Mrs. M. J. Foster, Senator and Mrs. Charles Curtis, Senator Francis G. Newlands, Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, many Representatives, and a number of friends of BANK FLAGS AT HALF STAFF.

Wall Street District Shows Respect to James T. Woodward's Memory.

Nearly every banking house in Wall Street flew the flag at half staff yesterday in memory of James T. Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank, who will be especially remembered as the President of the Clearing House during the most strenuous period of its existence, the money panic of 1907. The Clearing House Committee has been called to a special meeting at 1 o'clock on Wednesday, at which appropriate action will be taken in the form of resolutions expressing that institution's sense of loss through his death on Sunday.

While no action has yet been taken by the Directors of the Hanover National Bank looking to a successor of the late President Woodward, it is considered probable in Wall Street that their choice will fall upon William Woodward, nephew of the late President, who had long been his uncle's closest associate.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Breaks on Good Rains—Corn and Oats Quiet—Provisions Weak—Cotton Irregular and Lower.

The long-hoped for rains in Kansas and the Southwest came over Sunday, and the wheat market broke 1½ to 2c a bushel, with very decided selling pressure in evidence at times. The weather report showed good rains in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, and Kansas. The rains were quite general in Kansas, and the fact that the prediction was for unsettled conditions in the Southwest tended still further to increase the feeling of confidence regarding the crop prospects. As there were about 11,500,000 acres of wheat sown in these States, or one-third of the total crop area, the general breaking of the drought and improvement in the weather were very important factors in the general situation. In the Northwest the weather conditions were excellent for the advancement of Spring work, and estimates indicate an increase all the way from 10 to 25 per cent. in the area. There was an increase of 207,000 bushels in the visible supply following 1,384,000 bushels gain the previous week, and compared with 1,279,000 bushels decrease last year. Cash wheat was dull and demand continues very unsatisfactory. The foreign statistics up to Saturday night made world's exports 10,992,000 bushels, against 11,792,000 bushels the previous week, and 6,872,000 bushels last year. Cash wheat quoted No. 2 red Winter, $1.22 nominal, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.24 free on board, afloat for export; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, opening, $1.22⅜ nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, nominal; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, May, $1.14⅝.

Corn was dull and easier, influenced by the decline in wheat and by the favorable conditions for Spring work. The breaking of the drought in the Southwest is an important factor, as nearly one-third of the entire corn area of the country is in Kansas and Missouri and the States Southwest to the Gulf. On the decline the market was relatively steady, however, but late showed further weakness with wheat. There was a decrease of 334,000 bushels in the visible, compared with a decrease of 612,000 bushels last year. Cash corn quoted No. 2 nominal; No. 4, 59¼c asked and steamer 62¼c asked, all elevator export basis.

Oats were also weaker, but showed at times a fair amount of rallying power. The weather conditions were considered very favorable for field work, and the advices are promising, both as to the probability of a good increase in acreage and as to the advancement of seeding operations. The visible supply showed an increase of 133,000 bushels, compared with 341,000 bushels increase last year. Cash oats quoted Natural white, 45½@48c; white clipped, 47@51½c.

Provisions were active and very weak. The market opened down on a decline in live hogs of 5 to 10 points, due to larger receipts at Chicago than expected, and better movement at other points. After midday there developed decided selling pressure, and prices became very weak, with selling orders difficult to execute. The Government report showing an improvement in the conditions of hogs this year of 1 point over last year, and of about 1 1-3 points, compared with the ten-year average, had considerable influence, although the number of breeding sows in the country was over 7½ per cent. less than last year; last year was 3.1 per cent. less than the previous year, and the previous year 3.1 per cent. less than the period in 1907. The close was at the lowest.

COTTON.

The cotton market showed a rather dull and irregular condition. The cables were disappointing, while the weather conditions were good over Sunday. The weather report showed good rains in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, with predictions of further unsettled weather. The drought has now been completely eliminated from the new crop situation west of the Mississippi. There is some complaint about the absence of rain east of the Mississippi, but these complaints are not of a serious character. A feature which entered into the market considerably was the report regarding the amount of cotton coming to New York for delivery. There was a report that about 50,000 bales were coming from Gulf and Atlantic points to New York, including the 25,000 bales from Norfolk. Later the latter was corrected to 15,000 bales. The amount of cotton which came back from Liverpool on the Baltic was less than 7,000 bales, but the estimates still point to 50,000 bales in all coming back. The market is very nervous, and prices fluctuate very irregularly on the conflicting reports regarding the probable actions of the big interests on both sides. Late the market was quiet, a little above the low point.

Southern spot markets 1-16c advance to ⅛c decline. New York spot cotton quiet, 15 points decline; middling uplands, 15.10; middling Gulf, 15.35.

COFFEE.

Coffee was dull during the early operations, with an absence of business either way, but the undertone was easy, and later in the day prices developed a weaker feeling, declining 5 and 10 points, and closed steady at the decline. Total business was 12,500 bags. The foreign markets were also lower, Havre closing at a decline of ⅛ franc, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower, and in Brazil Rio showed a decline of 25 reis and Santos was unchanged. There will be a sale of 125,000 bags of Valorization coffee in Europe to-day, distributed among the principal Continental markets. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 3,311,619 bags, compared with 3,818,939 last year and 3,771,375 two years ago. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports last week were 46,357 bags, against 62,345 the previous week and 137,134 last year. Spot coffee easy; 8½c for Rio No. 7.

REARGUMENT A SURPRISE

This Turn in Anti-Trust Suits Had Not Been Expected — Country's Domestic Exports in March.

The explanation of the suddenness with which the stock market advanced yesterday following the announcement from Washington that the Supreme Court had ordered the reargument of the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases lay in the fact that this announcement involving a delay of many months in the handing down of decisions in these important anti-trust cases came as a surprise to the financial community. Probably two considerations in respect to the new turn in this important litigation contributed in about equal measure to the strength which the market displayed following the announcement from Washington. The first of these considerations was that the order for reargument meant that the decisions in these cases in all probability would not be handed down until some time next Winter, leaving a long period during which the week-to-week anxiety regarding the character of these decisions would be done away with. The other consideration was that the order for reargument suggests the probability that the court was fairly evenly divided on the issues presented in these two cases. Undoubtedly the main influence in the rapid advance which occurred in the market between noon and 1 o'clock, following the Washington announcement, was hurried short covering, but the later course of prices, a further advance following a partial reaction, indicated that the news from Washington had given heart to traders on the long side of the market as well as discomfiture to those who had committed themselves to the opposite side of the account. Up to the time of the Washington announcement the market had been very dull and price changes unimportant. Some selling was induced at the opening by the reference in the Attorney General's address to the intended prosecution of bituminous coal interests and to other anti-trust suits proposed by the Government, but the declines due to this selling were recovered easily in the rather lifeless trading of the first two hours. Soon after noon the Washington news aroused the market from its lethargy, and in a very short space of time advances of from 2 to 4 points were recorded in a number of the most active stocks. Although the trading later quieted down to some extent the final prices were near the highest of the day, with many net gains varying from 1 to over 4 points.

The action of the Supreme Court in reference to the Tobacco and Standard Oil cases overshadowed all other incidents of the day, but in addition to this there were presented to the market's attention further tentative arrangements for gold exports and the record of the March exports of domestic products. The month's exports of breadstuffs was below the small total recorded in February and was the smallest for the month of March in many years. Thanks largely to heavier exports of cotton the total domestic exports for March ran $10,000,000 ahead of those for February, but were still below those for March last year and every other year back to 1897. The Bank of England's position was helped yesterday by the arrival of the first $2,000,000 gold shipped from New York and by the purchase by the bank without an advance in the price of gold bars of all of the $3,500,000 gold which arrived yesterday from South Africa. A tentative engagement of $1,500,000 was the only addition yesterday to the gold export movement from this centre.

Surprise from the Supreme Court.

The traders who had been waiting from week to week for the handing down of the American Tobacco decision were taken by surprise by yesterday's announcement by the court that both this case and the Standard Oil case would have to be reargued. This meant, it was estimated, a postponement of at least six months and possibly a year, and the Street thought this put both cases aside as stock market factors. That the shorts did not relish the outcome was very clearly indicated by the wild rush they made to cover when the announcement was made. Another consideration which helped along the upward movement which followed was in the theory that the order to reargue the case meant that the Supreme Court was pretty evenly divided on the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases, and the bulls acted upon this view to strengthen their own position and to help along the discomfiture of the shorts.

Up to 12 o'clock the trading was of indifferent character and in very small volume. The sales in the opening hour amounted to only 110,000 shares and to less than half of this in the next hour. The total transactions up to noon amounted to only 162,000 shares. At that time the net changes in the active stocks amounted only to fractions. When the market was awakened from its lethargy by the news from Washington trading immediately assumed heavy volume and prices rose abruptly. Between 12 and 1 the sales amounted to 284,000 shares, or 120,000 shares more than during the preceding two hours. From the low prices of the day there were such advances as 5¼ points in Reading and Union Pacific, 3⅝ points in Amalgamated, 3¼ in Southern Pacific, and 2⅞ in United States Steel. Then came a reaction and a subsequent recovery with some slowing down of the trading, although this continued at a rate much more active than that which prevailed during the morning.

$4,000,000 Gold Going Out.

A tentative engagement of $1,500,000 gold was made by the Hanover National Bank yesterday for shipment to London by to-morrow's steamer. If this gold is sent out, as it probably will be, the shipments so far arranged for to-morrow total $4,000,000, an engagement of $2,500,000 having been made last week. Foreign exchange rates showed little change yesterday, but any advance to-day would probably serve to considerably increase the gold shipment to be made by the Mauretania to-morrow. Call loans were renewed yesterday at 3½ per cent., which was the high rate of the day. Later some loans were made as low as 2½ per cent. In the time division of the money market loans were made at 4¼ per cent. for ninety days and 4½ for six months, and at 4¾ for loans running until the middle of next January.

Southwestern Gets Connecting Line.

The St. Louis Southwestern will take over the Stephensville North & South Texas Railway, a forty-three-mile line, and will extend its thirty-two miles to a connection with its main line at Gatesville.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Albert Bing of the banking house of Lazard-Speyer-Ellissen, Frankfort-on-the-Main, who arrived in New York last week, is starting on a trip over the lines of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway and the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad. Mr. Bing may go to the Pacific Coast.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list $1,151,000 additional general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway and $2,000,000 additional capital stock of the Fourth National Bank.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 11.—The local market opened quiet this morning, and with some inclination on the part of the trading element to sell stocks. Prices fluctuated within narrow limits during the early part of the session, and the market continued dull until toward the middle of the afternoon, when a sharp rally in sympathy with the New York market occurred. Lake Copper jumped 6 points, to 55; Amalgamated sold up over 4 points, to 76⅛; Indiana advanced to 27, Miami to 24, North Butte to 34⅝, and the balance of the list all made proportionate gains. Arizona Commercial was the only exception to the general strength, this issue declining to 14½, a new low record for the present movement. The general list continued strong and closed steady at the advance.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 11.—Money was in good demand to-day, owing to the settlement and the payment of Treasury bills. Discount rates were slightly higher.

The Bank of England obtained the bulk of the $3,500,000 South African gold available.

Settlement preparations interfered with business on the Stock Exchange, except in the rubber and oil shares sections, which were active and generally dearer. Several foreign bonds and railroad stocks improved on investment buying, but consols declined an eighth. Mining shares finished easy, and trunk lines declined, despite good traffic reports.

American securities opened uncertain, but light buying of Amalgamated Copper and United States Steel hardened the list before noon. Then prices declined half a point on New York selling. Renewed support caused a fractional recovery in the late trade, and the market closed irregular.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 6.70; at Lisbon, 10.50.

Bullion amounting to £432,000 (including £411,000 in American eagles) was taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

Bar silver steady, 24⅝d per ounce.

Money, 3@3½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 15-16 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3 15-16@4 per cent.

PARIS, April 11.—Prices were irregular on the Bourse to-day.

Exchange on London, 25f 26½c for checks.

BERLIN, April 11.—Trading was quiet, with prices somewhat irregular, on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 50½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3 per cent.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

Sales on the Consolidated Stock Exchange totaled 165,150 shares, the heaviest since Feb. 8 last. Fifty-seven different issues were dealt in. A large short interest was forced into covering by the wild rush-up in prices which followed the announcement, shortly after noon, that the United States Supreme Court had ordered the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases to be reargued. The market at this time differed very widely from the range of quotations on the New York Stock Exchange. Reading did not get above 166⅛, when it touched 167¼ on the other board, and Union Pacific above 187, against 187¾.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—The Philadelphia market only reflected in a mild way the violent gyrations on the New York Stock Exchange to-day. There was early weakness in the arbitrage local list. Rapid Transit displayed an advancing tendency, gaining a substantial fraction. Lehigh Valley fell about half a point, but this loss was regained when such shares as Reading, United States Steel, and Pennsylvania began to show signs of rallying, and in the afternoon when these stocks became buoyant Philadelphia issues followed suit in an orderly fashion. Lehigh Valley jumped 2 points, to 116, and Lake Superior, Pennsylvania Steel preferred, and some others rose about a point. After selling down to 60 Electric Storage Battery rose above its previous level, to 61. United Gas gained a small fraction, and Philadelphia Electric was firm, as were the Tonopahs. Pennsylvania Steel common, a stock very rarely traded in, changed hands at 65.

Mayor Gaynor to Meet Boston's Mayor.

Mayor Gaynor and Mayor James S. Fitzgerald of Boston will meet at the Hotel Astor Friday night at the informal dinner to be given to the Boston Mayor, Lieut. Gov. Frothingham of Massachusetts, and Speaker Walker of the Assembly, and 150 members of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange of Boston by the Real Estate Board of Brokers of New York, the Real Estate Exchange of Long Island, and the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange.

There will be addresses by each of these officials and by Controller Prendergast, President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, and by Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission.

The visitors desire to inspect the tunnels, the Subway, and other transit facilities of New York City and the effect they have had on the development of outlying real estate. New England capital is invested to the extent of many millions of dollars in Long Island, and the real estate men of Boston desire a more thorough knowledge of conditions in New York City's suburbs.

NO. 13,482.—IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF the United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of LOUIS KOROBOV, Bankrupt.

To the creditors of Louis Korobov, of the City and County of New York, and district aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that on the 31st day of March, A. D. 1910, the said Louis Korobov was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of John J. Townsend, Referee in bankruptcy, No. 45 Cedar Street, City and County of New York, on the 28th day of April, A. D. 1910, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

JOHN J. TOWNSEND, Referee in Bankruptcy.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

WACHTEL BROTHERS.—Wachtel Brother manufacturers of cloaks and skirts, 151 Spri Street, have made a settlement with the creditors at 80 cents on the dollar, cash, and Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on March 30.

DAVID HURWITZ.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against David Hurwitz, manufacturer of waists at 132 West Fourteenth Street, by Oppenheimer & Arnold, attorneys for these creditors: Bacon & Co., $378; Francis W. Bird, as receiver of Barnett Chabarowsky, $243, and Krower & Tynberg, $170. In January, 1909, he had $48,000 capital.

MORRIS RABINOWITZ.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris Rabinowitz, jobber in dress goods and silks at 70 Hester Street, by James, Schell & Elkus, attorneys for these creditors: Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, $100; Spielmann & Co., $500, and Samuel Eiseman & Co., $500. A year ago he said he had a capital of $76,000. Henry Lesser of H. & J. J. Lesser, counsel for Mr. Rabinowitz, said that the liabilities of this business are $40,000, and he is also personally responsible for $10,000 more on account of the Haimes Broad Silk Manufacturing Company of Paterson, N. J. He invested $10,000 cash in that company, which tied up his means so that it was not available for his own business. The company was started a few months ago with Mr. Rabinowitz as President. Mr. Lesser says the company is solvent. Mr. Rabinowitz's assets are estimated at more than $30,000. Judge Hand appointed Edmund Wright, a well-known credit man, as receiver, on a bond of $10,000, and authorized him to continue business twenty days. It was stated that in order to preserve Mr. Rabinowitz's interest in the silk mill at Paterson it is necessary to run the mill so as to complete goods in process of manufacture, and it may become necessary for the receiver to borrow money for that purpose.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Hand in the United States District Court yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts: William Winterfield, 57 West 111th Street, formerly silks and dress goods; liabilities, $59,468. Harris Lukashok, clerk, 49 Eldridge Street; liabilities, $42,534, all in Russia. Henry Greenberg, salesman, 184 East Ninety-second Street, formerly neckwear manufacturer; liabilities, $36,791. Morris L. Eisner, Poughkeepsie; liabilities, $270. Oscar A. [illegible], bartender, 1,270 Amsterdam Avenue; liabilities, $1,057. Kossoff & Schwartz, furs, 27 West Eighth Street; liabilities, $8,916. Steel Buttons Are Held by Board Not to be "Metal Manufactures."

A controversy between the Government and A. & H. Veith of this city was ended yesterday adversely to the claim of the Treasury Department, as alleged by Collector Loeb. The question at issue was whether certain steel buttons are to be regarded as dutiable as "manufactures of metal not specially provided for," with a tax of 45 per cent., but are to be classified at the rate of three-quarters of 1 cent per line per gross and 15 per cent. as "buttons." Judge Somerville, in his decision for the board, denies the Collector's contention.

The board partially sustained a claim filed by the American Express Company and R. Ogilvy regarding the classification of fishhooks made from round iron or steel wire. The Collector assessed the hooks at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem and 1¼ cents, whereas, the importers set up the contention that as the merchandise is not valued at more than 4 cents a pound, the duty should be at the specific rates provided in the proper paragraph, plus 1¼ cents a pound prescribed in the second proviso of Paragraph 137 of the tariff.

General Appraiser Sharretts has handed down a decision overruling a protest filed by O. G. Hempstead & Son regarding the rate of duty to accrue on so-called spangled schlung, which was alleged to be dutiable at 50 per cent. as "trimmings." The Collector's assessment at 60 per cent. is upheld.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The kites at Mount Weather on Monday reached an altitude of 23,000 feet above the sea level. The temperature at that height was 107 degrees below zero. At the surface it was 71 degrees.

This low upper air temperature indicates for the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States the early approach of comparatively low temperatures that now prevail from the Upper Mississippi Valley eastward, and the deflection of the wind from the normal direction also indicates that the low temperatures will be accompanied by unsettled weather, which prevailed generally since Sunday night.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate north, possibly brisk over the extreme south portion; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate and variable, becoming north; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate south.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have moderate to brisk north winds with showers to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Rain Tuesday. Wednesday, showers; variable winds, becoming north and moderate to brisk.

New Jersey—Showers Tuesday, colder in interior. Wednesday, showers; variable winds, becoming northerly and moderate to brisk.

New England—Partly cloudy in north, local rains in south portion Tuesday and Wednesday; moderate to brisk north winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers and cooler Tuesday. Wednesday, showers; variable winds, becoming north and moderate to brisk.

3 A. M.	27	45	4 P. M.	45	55
6 A. M.	25	42	6 P. M.	40	53
9 A. M.	30	47	9 P. M.	37	52
12 M.	37	54	12 P. M.	36	51

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 50; for the corresponding date last year it was 34; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 46.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 44; at 8 P. M. it was 52. Maximum temperature, 59 degrees at 1:55 P. M.; minimum, 42 degrees at 5:30 A. M. Humidity, 45 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 60 per cent. at 8 P. M.

Quality Advertising.

After a careful investigation the Charity Organization Society reported more than one-third of the Help Wanted and Situation Wanted advertisements in two New York newspapers were fraudulent or disingenuous.

The New York Times was excluded from criticism. The character of the advertisements accepted by The Times was not questioned. This high standard is made possible only by close scrutiny and careful investigation of each advertisement offered.

The New York Times has a daily circulation exceeding 175,000 copies, the largest high-class circulation of any New York newspaper.

LEAVE NO CLUE BEHIND THEM

A Noisy Policeman Scares Them from One Store Just as Its Proprietors Were Ready to Fire.

Merchants along 125th Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, which is the Broadway, Wall Street, and Sixth Avenue of Harlem, not to mention the location of the Harlem Detective Bureau, commented yesterday upon the discovery of five burglaries, attempted or carried out on that thoroughfare in the last few days under the very nose of the police. One was a splendid success, directly across the street from where the Detective Bureau is, which Capt. Barnett, ever watchful, works at night.

All the burglaries except one were managed by means of a jimmy judiciously applied to front doors or showcases. The police are inclined to credit the robberies to a gang living near by, possibly in the rear of the block. In only one case did the burglars get as much as $500 worth of goods, and in none did they leave the slightest clue. Nor were they seen by the policeman on the beat, despite the fact that he is assigned to patrol only that one block.

The largest robbery was at the clothing store of Davis & Wolfe, 262 and 264 West 125th Street, where the thieves, some time early on Thursday morning, climbed a rear fence from 124th Street, pried open a strong iron door behind the store, jimmied a strong wooden one inside of that, and made away with uncut cloth and ready-made garments valued at $500.

Messrs. Davis and Wolfe, speculating that the thieves, after such an easy haul, would come again, determined to watch. With a friend they armed themselves on Friday night, turned out the lights as usual, and hid beneath tables in the rear of the store. The iron door was fastened, but the wooden one was left open, in order to give the watchers a clear firing view of the thieves the moment they opened the first door.

About 3 o'clock in the morning their vigil was rewarded. They heard voices whispering in the rear yard and a scraping at the fence. Peering through a small window, they could see dusky forms bobbing over the top of the fence. They lay low and cocked their revolvers. At that moment they were startled by a terrific din of policemen's clubs rapped upon the pavement along 124th Street. In another moment the thieves had disappeared over the fence and escaped by way of a negro tenement behind it. The rapping, it appeared, had been caused by the policemen on the beat, who had been summoned by the private patrolman on guard after he saw the thieves, but decided to let some one else share with him the task of facing them.

Since then four more places in the block have been entered. Early Sunday morning a barber's shop, kept by Anton Schmidt in the basement of 235 West 125th Street, was broken into and a massage machine worth $25 and razors valued at $20 were taken.

At the furnishing store of Wallach Brothers, 246 West 125th Street, thieves opened a large showcase in front of the store and took gloves, handkerchiefs, and ties valued at $25. Apparently they tried to get into the store itself, but were frightened by the approach of some passer-by. There were jimmy marks on the front door.

Early yesterday morning the burglars paid a visit to the Star Candy Store, at 222 West 125th Street, and succeeded in breaking their way through the front door. The noise of their entrance awakened James Parthenidos, a clerk, who slept in the rear. He ran forward, revolver in hand, and they disappeared.

The thieves then proceeded to pay a visit to the furnishing store of S. Lieberman, at 126 West 125th Street, just across the street from the sleepless bureau of the Harlem detectives, and got $150 worth of goods from the counters and cases.

On the bureau's side of the street, only a few doors from it, they managed to break into the business college of Robert Ke[illegible]s two weeks ago and to steal a stereopticon view machine valued at $150.

PROSPERITY IN STEEL TRADE.

Judge Gary Optimistic—Copper Outlook Good, Ryan Says.

After a fortnight's rest at Hot Springs, Va., Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, returned to his office at 71 Broadway yesterday with reassuring reports of the condition in the steel trade.

"Steel conditions are good," he said. "There has been a steady increase in business since the lull in January. The United States Steel Corporation has now more than 5,000,000 tons of unfilled orders, and during March orders kept up with the capacity of the plants. At the present rate of booking, our mills should continue at full capacity through the rest of the year."

As to general business conditions, Judge Gary said the main consideration now was "industrial peace," and until that was assured business men would go slowly. The rehearing ordered in the Standard Oil and tobacco cases he looked upon as favorable.

John D. Ryan, President of the Anaconda Copper Company, explained yesterday that the copper situation was not as bad as the figures of the Copper Producers' Association for March would make it appear. A comparison of the current statistics with the figures of the corresponding period last year, Mr. Ryan said, would help to clear the situation.

The American production in the first quarter of 1909 was 338,000,000 pounds; in the same period of 1910 349,000,000 pounds. The deliveries of the first quarter of 1909 were 273,000,000 pounds, and in 1910 367,000,000 pounds, an increase in deliveries of 94,000,000 pounds.

Copper sold ¼ cent per pound lower yesterday in small quantities, or at 13 cents per pound, against 13¼ cents at the close of last week. It was said, however, that large producers were quoting 13¼ cents per pound.

CEREAL EXPORTS FALL OFF.

But More Cotton Went Out in March Than in the Same Month Last Year.

The report of the country's exports of domestic products in March issued yesterday by the Department of Commerce and Labor shows that exports of wheat and corn fell off still more compared with March last year and with February this year, while the month's exports of cotton were larger than a year ago or two years ago. The total domestic products exports for the month were $59,047,936. This was nearly $10,000,000 larger than the February total, but was smaller than the exports for the month of March in any year since 1899. The March exports of breadstuffs, including wheat and corn and of cotton and the total exports of domestic products compare as follows for the last half dozen years:

	Wheat, Corn, &c.	Cotton.	Total. Dom. Products.
1909	9,774,182	26,393,968	61,013,210
1908	12,610,008	24,679,164	66,371,824
1907	14,094,294	43,394,023	82,291,085
1906	15,531,743	26,832,841	69,749,539
1905	12,631,404	28,476,974	67,494,434
1904	11,557,451	23,263,438	59,147,663

1910	$653,289,954	1904	$665,831,722
1909	687,794,128	1903	636,694,154
1908	792,605,211	1902	632,404,419
1907	762,740,928	1901	671,830,501
1906	714,189,385	1900	590,735,144
1905	581,962,183	1899	575,103,808

Cotton exports in March amounted to 448,176 bales, compared with 541,461 in March last year, the increase in the value of the cotton exports being due altogether to the higher prices at which that staple is selling.

Artist's Early Paintings Have Special Charm of Technique and Feeling.

The Yerkes collection is replaced at the American Art Galleries by Carroll Beckwith's paintings, drawings, and studio effects, which are to be sold prior to the artist's emigration to Rome, where he intends to spend his later years. His letter to the American Art Association, published in the catalogue of his works, states that after upward of thirty years' pursuit of his profession in New York he feels the need of rest and change, and that he comes to his decision with the hope that the influence of Italian atmosphere and surroundings may enable him to continue his work with renewed energy and interest.

Mr. Beckwith's accumulated works show that variety and inequality which are the certain proof of a mind retaining its impressionable quality, and one may safely predict his prompt response to the Roman influence.

A number of the pictures are nudes, and they reveal the painter's sincerity of vision more effectively than the more or less idealized draped figures, in which expression is made to play a star part, and occasionally forces the other more purely pictorial qualities into subordination. In such charming studies as "Sappho," "Pastoral," "The Mirror," "The Spirit of the River," and the life-size figure called "The Awakening," in spite of the imaginative titles a remarkably dainty realism is shown. The structure of the form is adequately though not aggressively revealed through the veil of the flesh, and the modeling is sound and firm.

The textures of the hair and flesh in many instances are closely interrogated and beautifully rendered. "The Gold Braid" in particular is distinguished by the rich and sober treatment of the lovely head and the light graphic touch in the painting of the hair.

Some of the early pictures painted in 1882 and 1883 at Andé have a special charm both of technique and feeling that has given place to other characteristics (often not less rewarding) in the later work. "Peasant Girl Against Hay," painted on a wooden panel, has great delicacy united to an unaffected simplicity that is most engaging, and "Summer in the Orchard" is another vivid and attractive work.

The studio furnishings which are displayed with the pictures give a pleasant air of intimacy to the exhibition and will prove a temptation to connoisseurs of beautiful objects. The little case of Egyptian ornaments represents, no doubt, the greater prizes, but the chairs and tables and chests and quaint bits of Dutch brass will be no less interesting to the general collector who is or should be enraptured at finding antiquity and rarity walking hand in hand with taste.

BROKAW ALIMONY STANDS.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 11.—The decision of Justice Putnam in the final argument for further alimony, held in Brooklyn recently in the case of Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw against her husband, William Gould Brokaw, for a separation, was filed in the Nassau County Clerk's office here to-day. The amount of the alimony was not increased from $15,000, but it was decided by Judge Putnam that the conduct of Mr. Brokaw toward his wife as brought out by the recent trial was such as to warrant its being impossible for the two to live together. While he did not grant the request of the plaintiff that a bond of $400,000 be put in a trust company as security for the payment of the alimony, he provided that Mrs. Brokaw should apply to the court for a future order should circumstances arise making security necessary.

With a few exceptions, according to the decree, Mrs. Brokaw proved to the court all of the allegations which she had made. In the findings for the defendant it was proved that on Dec. 13, 1908, Mrs. Brokaw permitted an unmarried guest to occupy the individual sleeping room of Mr. Brokaw while he was absent. It was not found that the room in the bachelor quarters of the house could not have been prepared, as was contended in the trial. It was also found that Mrs. Brokaw did not tell the name to her husband of the man who slept there at that time, but it came out at the trial that the guest was "Bunnie Wells."

The case of H. S. Wilder against William Gould Brokaw, as assignee of the hotel known as "14 East Sixtieth Street," will probably come up the last of the week here, with Mrs. Brokaw as the chief witness.

At the time Mr. Brokaw closed Nirvana, his estate at Great Neck, Mrs. Brokaw went to this address in Manhattan, and it is alleged left an account of about $1,600 there which was charged to Mr. Brokaw. This, it is alleged, the latter refused to pay.

HOUSEWIVES ARE INDIGNANT.

Object to Their Description on Census Forms as "Having No Occupation."

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 11.—Women of Central Kentucky to-day united in a protest to E. Dana Durand, Director of the Census, against what they term is the classification of housewives in the forthcoming census as "idlers."

The protest was formulated at a meeting of the Central Kentucky Women's Clubs, participated in by prominent clubwomen from all over the State. A telegram was sent to Mr. Durand, objecting to the form of the blanks on which the census enumeration is to be made and in which housewives, according to the telegram, are classified as "having no occupation."

Signers of the telegram urge that the word "housewife" be inserted by the enumerators in the census blanks.

Women's Day in Bankruptcy Court.

It was women's day in the bankruptcy court yesterday, and six received their discharge from Judge Hand. They were Anne D. Hatch of 40 West Fifty-ninth Street, who got rid of liabilities of $7,379, for all sorts of wearing apparel, hotel bills, and pew rents; Catherine Hayes, vaudeville performer, of 19 West 108th Street, liabities, $840; Ella Mortensen and Anna Collins, dressmakers, of 3 East Forty-sixth Street, liabilities, $876; Helene G. De Foreest, milliner, Kingston, N. Y., liabilities, $832, and Ella C. Tompkins, milliner, Poughkeepsie, liabilities, $5,373. Clerk Thayer said that this was the largest number of women ever discharged in one day in the bankruptcy court.

POLICE REPORT 78 EXCISE VIOLATIONS

NEW AFFIDAVITS USED

Manhattan and the Bronx Provide 38, Brooklyn 25, and Queens Borough 15 of the Cases.

Seventy-eight violations of the liquor law were reported by the police on the second Sunday's trial of Mayor Gaynor's plan to enforce the laws. Thirty-eight of the violations were reported from Manhattan and the Bronx, twenty-five from Brooklyn, and fifteen from Queens.

Thirty-eight affidavits were turned in to District Attorney Whitman by the police in Manhattan and the Bronx yesterday. This is six more than the total turned in last week. Of the affidavits submitted yesterday twenty-five were for selling liquor, seven for open doors, three for obstructed views of the bar, two for no license, and one for selling to a minor.

The affidavits were made out on the new forms prepared by the District Attorney last week and turned over to the police on Saturday. These forms, it is believed, made possible much stronger grounds for action, and a warrant, it is said, will probably be issued as a result of each one submitted.

The record made by the police was considered a very good one in view of the fact that throughout Manhattan and the Bronx on Sunday most of the saloons were closed.

Dr. Parkhurst was quoted yesterday as criticising the Gaynor plan for excise enforcement and to have declared that the new plan was nothing more nor less than a subterfuge to liberalize the Sunday closing laws. The doctor was quoted as saying it was a woeful failure.

In Brooklyn twenty-five violations were reported to Borough Inspector Holohan, and in each case affidavits were handed to District Attorney Clarke yesterday.

Three saloon keepers were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate O'Reilly, in the Manhattan Avenue Police Court charged with violating the Sunday excise law. The examination in each case was set for April 19. In the meanwhile they are paroled.

In the Butler Street Court four saloon keepers were arraigned charged with obstructing the view of their saloons from the street.

In the Adams Street Court four saloon keepers appeared before Magistrate Tighe charged with violating the liquor tax law by policemen from the Hamilton Avenue and Butler Street Station, on April 3. They pleaded not guilty, and their cases were adjourned.

Most of the Brooklyn violations were reported from Inspector Dillon's district, which takes in the South Brooklyn and downtown sections of the borough. His men found nineteen violations.

Deputy Police Commissioner Reynolds of Brooklyn, who spent Sunday at Coney Island, declared he was satisfied with the way the law was kept. The police in Coney Island could find only two violations.

In Queens Borough the police reported fifteen violations. A week before they were unable to find any.

AFTER PRUDENTIAL'S PROFITS.

Seventeen Stockholders Sue to Have $16,000,000 Surplus Distributed.

Vice Chancellor Howell held a final hearing yesterday in Newark, N. J., over the proposed apportionment by the Prudential Insurance Company of Newark of a surplus in excess of $16,000,000 to its policy holders. The proceedings were instituted some time ago by Leon F. Blanchard of Newark. It was announced at the hearing by John R. Hardin, who, with Robert H. McCarter, is counsel for the complainant, that seventeen other stockholders had intervened in the suit and desired to ally themselves with Mr. Blanchard, who has 725 shares of stock.

The bill of complaint declares that a considerable part of the Prudential's profit accumulations "can now be safely distributed to its stockholders; that by law the said stockholders are entitled to such distribution if the same can safely be made; that to withhold such distribution and diminish and deplenish the amount of said surplus by voluntary gift to policy holders in excess of their contract rights is, as against stockholders not assenting thereto, an invasion of their property rights and without legal warrant."

TWO SENTENCES SUSPENDED.

Prisoners Plead Guilty to Perjury in Suit Against Traction System.

Sentence was suspended yesterday by Judge Swann in General Sessions on Charles Le Croix of 217 East 126th Street and Frits Nitzman of 315 East Thirty-second Street, preparatory to their deportation from Ellis Island. They pleaded guilty to perjury in a suit for damages against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company.

Le Croix had sworn that he was jostled from a car at Sixth Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street on Dec. 22, 1908, with resulting injuries that kept him in bed for four months. Nitzman said he saw the whole thing.

GIANT FOUND DROWNED.

Note in a Pocket Said He Was "First of the Fogartys to Do This."

Mystery surrounds the death of a man of gigantic build whose body was found in the Hudson River yesterday. The body had been in the river over a month.

In a pocket of the man's coat was a note which was so badly water-soaked that the writing was not legible in places. The part of it that could be made out read as follows:

> This is the first of the Fogartys to do anything like this. Better be in hell than in Bellevue, the laughing stock of hell.

SCORE JERSEY LAWMAKERS.

Preachers Call Upon Fort to Investigate Stories of Riotous Closing Session

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—Before the largest meeting that the Methodist preachers have had in years the Rev. George W. Ridout, pastor of the Westry Methodist Episcopal Church, declared to-day in the State Street Methodist Episcopal Church that the last session of the New Jersey Legislature had repudiated the Church and legislated against the Ten Commandments. Mr. Ridout said his attack was warranted because of the association of the saloon with politics.

The recent scandals at the closing of the session were also brought before the meeting by Mr. Ridout. Resolutions presented by him were adopted by a standing vote, not a person voting again the proposition. A copy of the resolutions was forwarded immediately to Gov. Fort. The resolutions said:

> Whereas, The indecency attending the closing of the Legislature reported by the press is an insult and disgrace to our State and in open defiance of the Christian sentiment of the Commonwealth; therefore be it resolved,
> First, That we Methodist preachers of Trenton and vicinity record our intense disgust at the proceedings reported, and pledge our hearty co-operation to any and every effort that may be made to purge the State of this disgraceful affair.
> Resolved, Second, that we have heard with pleasure of the intended investigation by his Excellency, the Governor, J. F. Fort, and sincerely hope that the guilty parties may be brought to justice.
>
> Third, that we call upon the people of our churches to take warning from these recent events and absolutely refuse their support at the polls to any man or men who are in any way influenced by or allied to the liquor interests.
> George M. Hughes, Henry J. Zelley, George W. Ridout.

In his speech the Rev. Mr. Ridout said: "Year after year our New Jersey Legislature has turned down any proposition looking toward local option. The Legislature just closed not only repudiated all proposals from the united Church for needed temperance legislation, but one branch passed a bill violating the Fourth Commandment and then closed in disgrace.

"It is now a fact known State-wide and Nation-wide that scenes of vile iniquity were committed within the State House walls on the closing night of its session, and that with the knowledge, consent, and participation of some of the legislators; women of bad character were conspicuous in revelry, and drunkenness and low practices were indulged in by some of our lawmakers.

"Let these men be scorned by a righteous, indignant State, and forgotten as a dreadful dream. Let their names go down in disgraceful oblivion, and let the people send up a clean brand of men to represent them in the State House."

Dr. Hugh B. McCauley, Secretary of the Inter-Church Federation, and the Rev. Dr. W. W. Case, President of the Trenton Ministerial Union, called upon Gov. Fort to-day and tendered him any assistance within the power of these organizations toward a thorough investigation into the charges. President Frelinghuysen of the Senate and Speaker Ward are expected here to-morrow to confer with the Governor.

STRIKERS GET BROKEN HEADS.

Trenton Police Fire on Italians—A Sergeant Is Knocked Unconscious.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—The most serious riot of the Roebling strike occurred this afternoon, when between 400 and 500 Italian strikers congregated about the plant of the American Cigar Company and endeavored to get the girl employes to go out on a sympathetic strike.

A squad of police in charge of Sergt. Zenker failed to disperse the crowd. Bricks and other missiles were hurled at the police. Sergt. Zenker was struck in the back and knocked unconscious. The police had to resort to drastic measures, and fired several shots, but injured none of the strikers. About fifteen of the Italians were arrested. Some of them are suffering from broken heads.

In Newark and West Hudson the Paperhangers' and Painters' Unions struck yesterday for an increase in wages. About a thousand men are affected.

The machinists employed in the Cooke and Rogers shops of the American Locomotive Company at Paterson have organized as a branch of the International Association of Machinists. These were the only shops of the company not in the association. A new wage scale was agreed upon, which will be submitted to the Superintendents of the various shops. A conference will then be asked for April 21, when the scale will be discussed by the Superintendents and a committee from the union. About 600 machinists are interested in the change.

At the Waclark Wire Works, Elizabeth, N. J., this morning, about 260 Polish and Hungarian laborers refused to answer the whistle calling them to duty, and stayed out on strike. About 125 skilled workmen are made idle by the strike of the laborers.

PASTOR DENOUNCES BIG HATS.

Dr. Daniel Interrupts Sermon to Express His Thoughts on Easter Millinery

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 11.—Suddenly pausing in his sermon at the First Baptist Church here yesterday, the Rev. Charles W. Daniel moved a few steps to the right in the pulpit, then a pace or two to the left, peering over the sea of Easter millinery in the front pews.

"I'm trying to see some of the men I am addressing," he said, "but the barbarous hats the women are wearing keep me from seeing the men and prevent their seeing me."

Then Mr. Daniel made a few other remarks on millinery, its height, circumference, and cost. When he remarked that if the women would wear hats half the size they would save half the cost, many of the women smiled derisively.

"These big hats have become a nuisance," Dr. Daniel continued. "You women are forbidden by law to wear them in Atlanta theatres, and you ought to take them off in God's house."

The women were indignant, but men generally approved the pastor's remarks.

BISHOP DOANE RECOVERING.

He Is a Little Lame from His Fall, but Rests Comfortably.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—No serious results are apprehended from the fall which the Right Rev. William Croswell Doane, Bishop of Albany, suffered at Troy last night.

He was brought to Albany to-day in an automobile, and although somewhat bruised and lame as a result of his experience, he was resting comfortably to-night.
